METHADONE – MISTRUST SHROUDS A GIANT STEP ON ARDUOUS ROAD TO KICKING THE HEROIN HABIT

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

The room is not large. Its white walls do not shine with pristine newness. A low couch lies against one wall surrounded by office-type, but comfortable chairs. The corner of the room has the informal air of someone's "lived in" living room.

At one side over a long table a pretty-legged nurse, not in uniform, dispenses medication to a host of average-looking people, most in their early 20s.

A hallway leads to a series of small offices.

This is the Orange County Methadone Maintenance program, located on the second floor at 2215 N. Broadway, Santa Ana.

The people lined up at the long table are all ex-heroin addicts. Now they are methadone addicts.

The pretty nurse is handing out their daily dosage of the drug that is being hailed as the greatest advance in the treatment now available for opiate addiction.

The Orange County program, begun a year ago, has 250 "patients" and a waiting list of more than 400.

It has been estimated — conservatively, the experts say — that there are between 8,000 and 10,000 heroin addicts in Orange County alone.

The cost of these people "maintaining their habit" cannot be estimated.

First, the cost alone in money which they must raise — almost always by criminal or illegal means — amounts to millions of dollars.

The cost of catching them at these activities, trying them in court and putting and keeping them in jails adds more millions.

Finally, the cost in human suffering and sacrifice by them and their families is incalculable in money or anything else.

President Nixon's labeling of drug abuse as the nation's "public enemy No. 1" is an indication.

The use of methadone in treatment of heroin addiction has been criticized both by the general public and by the medical profession. Mainly, the critics "don't understand it," says Dr. John F. Kramer, who heads the program.

Methadone, a synthetic opiate, has been used for more than 30 years as a pain killer, but only in the last six years has it been utilized to get heroin addicts off their addiction.

According to Dr. Kramer, who is one of the West Coast's leading authorities in the field, it has no serious effects, either physical or mental, on the patient.

It is habit-forming, however, and this has caused much criticism.

"You are just substituting one drug for another," the parents of a 24-year-old ex-addict said when he told them he was in the methadone program.

This was even the attitude of the medical profession until just recently.

ALTHOUGH substituting methadone for heroin still leaves the patient "a habit," it isn't the same habit—and that's the saving grace.

Persons on methadone not only don't have a physical craving for heroin, they also don't suffer any other serious ill effects.

They can—and most of them do—work, get along with other people and live normal lives. They also don't have to steal or peddle drugs.

All they really have to do is get their daily dosage, which varies with their stage in the program.

One of the big problems of the program is getting the public to understand, according to Saul Stolzberg, the psychiatric social worker who runs the clinic.

"IN THE PAST year I've had only one call from a parent or oth-

Palmy

Q. Is there a nursery or a company that will remove a palm tree from your property without charge or for a small fee in exchange for keeping the tree? Mrs. A. McD., Long Beach.

A. We found two nurseries that sometimes will transplant trees without charge but only if they are unusual and have good resale value. Most palm trees do not fit this requirement. Neither do pines, yuccas (unless they are multi-stemmed), small bottle brushes or plant-sized trees. Distorted olive or oak trees could qualify. The nurseries are J. & Jerry's Nursery and Florist, 22427 Norwalk Blvd., Hawaiian Gardens, 421-1690, and Mordigan Nurseries, 5301 W. Compton Blvd., Lawndale, 772-6461.

Methadone

Q. I have a friend who has fought a drug problem since his teens. He has been in jail several times and has lectured to high school and college students about the dangers of narcotics, using himself as an example. He's been on the methadone waiting list since the program began and there seems to be no hope he'll ever make the top of the list. At this rate he'll be dead before he gets any help. Is there anything I can do to help my friend get into the program? N. D. J., San Pedro.

A. No. But there is legislation pending in the State Legislature to expand the controversial program of supplying methadone to heroin addicts as a substitute. Proponents say methadone, while a habit-forming drug itself, eliminates the craving for heroin. The cheap, synthetic drug does not produce heroin's euphoric feeling and allows addicts to lead normal lives and hold jobs. Currently, funding for the program at the Los Angeles County Metha-

Thousands pack balmy beaches in Southland

By CHARLES HINCH

Thousands poured out to the beaches in the Long Beach area Saturday. There was something for everyone: a brisk wind for sailors, a hazy sun for sunbathers and water in the mid-60s for swimmers. Lifeguards said there were an estimated 95,000 out at Newport Beach, 10,000 at Laguna, 30,000 in

Huntington Beach, 9,000 in Seal Beach, 150,000 at Long Beach and another 6,000 at Cabrillo Beach.

About 6,500 persons visited the Queen Mary. A seven-day-a-week schedule for visitors began this week on the vessel, and officials said weekday visitors are averaging about 3,000 a day.

Another attraction in Long Beach was the Lifeguard dory race. Long Beach teams dominated the race. They placed first, second and fourth, and a Long Beach lifeguard composed half of the team which finished third. There were 10 teams in the competition.

Temperatures along the coast today are expected to be in the low 70s. The marine air cooling the shoreline won't extend too far inland, however, the weather bureau reported, and just a few miles from the coast the temperature will rise to 85. Saturday the high was 82 in most of the city and 77 at the beach.

Fog and low clouds are expected near the coast in the early morning, but they will burn off and leave a hazy afternoon sun. The forecast is the same for Monday.

There were unusually large numbers of rescues on the beaches Saturday, lifeguards said. Riptides caused problems in Newport, as did "poor swimmers" in Huntington Beach and "boats conking out and turning over" in Long Beach.

The dory race extended from Oil Island A to the Queen Mary and back, a distance of three miles. The two-man teams were from Long Beach, Santa Monica, Zuma Beach, San Diego and Hermosa Beach.

The winners were Scott Hagee and Bruce Lemmon, first; Pat Flynn and Gary Drent, second; Bill Starr and Ward Barthels (of Santa Barbara, the only non-Long Beach man among the winners) third, and Hank Powell and Rick Hoss, fourth.

SERIOUS CONDITION
Albert Valdez, 10, of Los Angeles, stares vacantly in shock and pain, sitting on a Long Beach curb as an ambulance attendant bandages his bleeding head. Under intensive care at St. Mary's Hospital for a fractured skull, the youth was most seriously injured of ten persons involved in a two-car crash at Alamitos Avenue and Pacific Coast Highway about 4 p.m. Seven of the injured were members of a Los Angeles Sunday school class, returning home in a station wagon from a beach outing with two adult leaders.

N.Y. Times wins first court test

NEW YORK (AP)— Tossed an historic case at the last moment, an appeals court judge Saturday ordered a ban continued over the weekend on the New York Times publication of secret Pentagon archives on Vietnam.

Earlier in the day, U.S. District Court Judge Murray Gurfein, hearing his first case since appointment to the bench last week, had denied the government's request to enjoin the Times from resuming publication of a series, discontinued Tuesday after a temporary restraining order.

GURFEIN said the documents were of an historic nature and that the government had failed to prove its contention that further publication of them would damage national security.

As Gurfein ruled 90 minutes after the restrainer expired, the Times faced a 6 p.m. press run and a decision whether to roll with the Vietnam study story for its Sunday editions.

"The temporary restraining order will continue," Gurfein ruled, "until such time during the day as the government may seek a stay from a judge of the Court of Appeals for the Second District."

This statement had the effect of tossing the ball to Appeals Judge Irving R. Kaufman, a short, dapper judicial veteran. He had been on hand in his 24th floor office of the courthouse in lower Manhattan anticipating an appeal from whatever decision Gurfein made.

While the drama in New York was unfolding, the Washington Post remained temporarily restrained by a Washington Appeals Court from printing portions of the same secret report.

THE POST printed articles Friday and Saturday before the appeals court overruled a district judge's refusal to stop publication. A Monday hearing was set in that case.

Kaufman, after a 12-minute hearing, said he would not pass on the rockets and mortars, including big Soviet-made 240mm rockets.

Early today a terrorist hurled an M26 fragmentation grenade outside the building housing the joint U.S. Public Affairs Office in downtown Saigon, but no one was injured. Spokesmen said the grenade exploded outside the thick walls of the building which formerly housed the U.S. bachelor officers quarters.

Cambodian troops on the offensive in marshland near Phnom Penh clashed with Communist forces Saturday in the 19th day of heavy fighting for the swampy area east of the Cambodian capital.

More than 50 rockets and mortars slammed into South Vietnamese outposts dotting the southern fringes of the demilitarized zone's eastern sector, military spokesmen said. They said nine of the 240mm rockets were fired at the bases, but no South Vietnamese casualties were reported.

The shellings followed early morning rocket attacks on Da Nang, South Vietnam's second biggest city, and on the airfield at Quang Ngai, 318 miles northeast of Saigon.

In ground action Saturday, South Vietnamese troops of the First Infantry Division killed five Communists Saturday morning in a brief fight six miles southeast of Quang Tri, spokesmen said.

L.B.'s high schools get good grades from student leaders

EDITOR'S NOTE—How does the Class of 1971 evaluate the quality of Long Beach's five general high schools? Five recent graduates who should know, the schools' spring student-body presidents, tried recently during an informal interview, discussing the strengths and weaknesses of the schools, student apathy vs. militance, and drugs.

Participating were Melody Broadbent, 17, Lakewood High; John Crutchfield, 17, Wilson; David Hillbrand, 18, Poly; Alvin Clark, 17, Jordan; and Dale Hammer, 17, Millikan.

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

"Yes," Miss Broadbent said, "on the whole, it was a good education."

Seemingly the others agreed. Wilson's Crutchfield, for instance, praised several new specialized "mini-courses" for improving levels in his school.

And, "Millikan is a good school so far as curriculum is concerned, and opportunities are available to the student body," noted Hammer. "But . . ."

He went on to cement the foundations for later discussion of a problem all five agreed was prevalent in their schools — student apathy. A recurring theme throughout the discussion, student disinterest would be paired with a reputed excess of administrative red tape as areas deserving attention from future campus leaders.

Hammer recalled that in his first year at Millikan, students raised "a lot of important issues that made the school what it is now." Today, however, "we are reverting back to the old ways, when students didn't really care what was done . . . and there is just not that much interest any more in doing something about rectifying problems."

"If I had the power at Jordan High School," said Clark, "I would see that students themselves would be more directly involved" in self-government. Before he joined the student House of Representatives, "the budget was made up. I thought the whole student body should be able to vote and pass the budget, not just a small group."

Responding to Hammer's question "Don't you run into a problem of getting students interested?" Clark said "That's true, but I feel the entire student body should have a say on things like the budget."

"At Lakewood," said Miss Broadbent, "it's extremely difficult to talk in terms of the total 3,800-member student body; maybe 600 to 800 are extremely interested in what's going on. Of that group, it was almost unanimous that we should work for a 'student bill of rights.' Of the others, I would say they either had no opinions or were not opposed."

"This goes along with what I said before," said Hammer. "The number of students actually interested in doing things on campus has dwindled to a small minority; in fact, on the Millikan campus . . . there were only about 10 or 15 that actually put much effort into" a campaign for a similar student rights bill.

Hillbrand said that "at Poly, the student body is apathetic unless something directly concerns them. The only thing this year (was when) we voted to abolish homecoming queens." He said that at his racially diverse school, "everybody was getting mad" for one reason or another . . . because "on a campus like Poly it's stupid to try and say who is the best-looking or most congenial girl. It was causing racial tensions every year and kept getting worse.

"We finally put it to a student-body vote and they supported a decision (to abolish homecoming queens) almost 2-to-1."

Miss Broadbent offered "three reasons why students are apathetic—because of the red tape one has to go through to get something accomplished; because we are in school to learn and our subjects take up a great deal of time; and finally, when someone gets a little frustrated, it is easier to do homework rather than pursue the interests of student government."

She rephrased it in a postscript. "The reasons are a lot of red tape, little student power and student involvement in their own academic subjects."

The five seemed to agree that student activism currently has taken a new tack, is more concerned with educational rather than political issues.

Again, there was apparent con-

Find body of elderly woman

Victim beaten, home looted in Signal Hill

The beaten body of a 64-year-old woman was found Saturday by police in her ransacked Signal Hill home.

It appeared the victim, Mrs. Evelyn J. Abbott, 3302 Orange Ave., had been beaten by an intruder who combed the home for loot, police said.

But officers said they couldn't be sure that the beating caused her death or how much was missing from the home pending an autopsy and further investigation.

Officer Robert Deely said it appeared Mrs. Abbott had been dead at least 12 hours before a friend summoned police to the house.

THE FRIEND had tried unsucessfully to telephone Mrs. Abbott, then went to the home, where she received no answer to her knocks on the door.

Police entered the house and found the body about 10 a.m. Mrs Abbott had last been seen alive about noon Friday, officers said.

Her body was found on the bathroom floor. Officer Deely said it appeared Mrs. Abbott had been "punched around", although she hadn't been beaten severely. There were no stab wounds, he said.

GAS STATION PLOY

Postage stamps latest gimmick

BY CAROL ROSS

OXON HILL, Md. (UPI) — Anyone with a first class letter to mail — but no postage — should stop by Smitty's service station here and buy eight gallons of gasoline. He'll leave with an eight-cent stamp.

Since the first of May, Smitty's station in this small Washington suburb has been giving customers one cent in U.S. postage for each gallon of gas purchased.

The man behind this mini post office operation is Hoyt M. "Smitty" Smith, 43, owner of the station, who said he woke up in the middle of the night and wondered "what would it be like to give out postage stamps."

"I THOUGHT this would be something different, something the public would really go for," said Smith, a retired Air Force man who has been in the service station business about seven years.

Smith said he never believed the public really went for trading stamps or other sales devices.

"The oil companies, they're always giving away steak knives, mugs, razor blades and what have you," he said. "You can only use so many steak knives. But you can use U.S. postage stamps today, next year, and even when you're 50."

Smith said many of his customers are surprised when handed the postage stamps, but "everybody says it's something different. "We've even had some people say they've always collected trading stamps, but now they're going to collect postage stamps."

Smith would prefer that service stations not give away anything.

"If we gave good service, and nothing else, we'd be a lot better off," he said.

HE SAID THE business is so competitive, however, that he decided to give out postage stamps and stocked up on the one-cent, six-cent and eight-cent varieties.

Asked if any customers have come in just to get stamps, Smith said: "Yes, indeed. It was the day before yesterday. A woman came in with a letter and said, 'I need an eight-cent stamp, give me eight gallons of gas.'"

Supervisors take up budget on Thursday

Los Angeles County supervisors begin their own deliberations Thursday into the $2.7-million budget package which currently calls for a property tax rise of about 68 cents.

The man in the middle is Arthur C. Will, county administrative officer, who has defended the budget against department chiefs, who want to increase spending, and citizens groups seeking reductions.

A member of the Property Owners Tax Association said Friday that Will overestimated county welfare costs by $109 million and that the Aid to Families With Dependant Children program ought to be scaled down.

Will, responding to such claims during five days of public budget hearings, said the county needed every penny to cover welfare costs and couldn't trim it as suggested.

Will, on the other hand, also resisted efforts by the assessor's office, the air pollution control department and the mental health directors for budget increases.

U.S. judge warns state 'quit horsing around' in Angela case or he'll move it to federal court

Combined News Services

A federal judge in San Francisco has warned state authorities to quit "horsing around" in the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee case or he might remove the matter to federal court.

"I'm concerned that the trial should be held," U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti told newsmen last week after issuing an order formally returning the case to Marin County Superior Court.

"If they keep horsing around over there, I might very well just remove it to federal court."

Magee, a San Quentin convict, and Miss Davis are charged in the Marin County Courthouse shootout which killed four persons, including a judge.

Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arnason, the sixth jurist in the often-delayed case, ruled Tuesday the federal court order was necessary because of a petition Magee filed Jan. 17 in Federal District Court. The petition asked that Magee's civil rights be protected by removal of the case to federal court.

Judge Conti rejected the petition as "legally frivolous" on Jan. 18 and denied Magee the right to file it as a pauper. He said that order was sufficient but Judge Arnason said the petition was technically "filed" and the 1964 Civil Rights Act prohibited the state from going ahead in such cases without an official remand order.

DIVORCED

After 14 years of marriage, billionaire Howard Hughes has been divorced by former actress Jean Peters.

Miss Peters, 44, won the divorce Friday from the 65-year-old recluse simply by saying she had not lived with him for the past year, legal grounds for divorce in Nevada. She had announced their separation over a year ago. An attorney represented her in court.

"This is not a decision reached in haste," she said in a statement released by the Hughes organization, "and it is done only with the greatest regrets. Our marriage has endured 13 years, which is long by present standards."

BEN BELLA

Former Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella, who has been held in house arrest for six years, has married an Algerian journalist, members of his family announced in Algiers Saturday.

The wedding of Ben Bella, 54, to Zohra Sellami, 28, took place May 28. She works for African Revolution, a weekly newspaper published by the National Liberation Front.

Ben Bella has been held in custody since he was ousted by Houari Boumedienne, who is now president.

EXPELLED

David Dellinger, one of the defendants in the Chicago Seven trial, said Saturday in Paris he was detained by British immigration officials at London airport Friday night, held for nine hours and then expelled from the country without explanation.

Dellinger, an outspoken opponent of the Vietnam war, is free on bail pending appeal of his conviction of going to Chicago in 1968 to incite a riot at the Democratic National Convention.

He told a newsman he flew to London to visit his teen-age daughter, after talks in Paris with the North Vietnamese delegation at the Vietnam peace talks.

INFLUENCE

Defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey will seek to prove this week that command influence was exerted in Capt. Ernest Medina's case.

The Boston lawyer held in a day-long pretrial session last week at Ft. McPherson, Ga., that such pressure is grounds for dropping charges that Medina assaulted one person and murdered 102 villagers during an attack on My Lai, South Vietnam, in 1968.

Bailey said he hopes to prove the command influence allegation through the testimony of former Army Capt. Aubrey Daniel, the prosecutor in the trial of Lt. William Calley.

Medina, 34, of Montrose, Colo., was the commander of Charlie Company when it mounted the My Lai attack. Calley was one of his platoon leaders.

OAKES HURT

Richard Oakes, a leader of the Indian occupation of Alcatraz, has been hospitalized after a fight at the abandoned Toyon Job Corps Center north of Central Valley.

Oakes suffered head injuries and was listed in satisfactory condition Friday night at Redding Mercy Hospital, where he was being held for observation. He was seriously injured last year in a barroom fight in San Francisco.

SARTRE

Author Jean-Paul Sartre was charged in Paris Saturday with defaming police and penitentiary guards in articles which appeared months ago.

The four charges were lodged against Sartre, nominal publisher of the two left-wing publications in which the alleged slanders appeared, by two examining magistrates.

The articles in question appeared in "La Cause de Peuple" (The Cause of the People) in May and June last year and in "Tout" (Everything) in February. The author accused police and penitentiary guards of torturing detainees.

Thomas W. Thompson, 79, embraced by his bride Emma, 76, after their recent wedding in San Diego. The couple were sweethearts for three years in Judsonia, Ark., before Thompson left town in 1912 to find work. A honeymoon trip to Hawaii is being planned. —AP Wirephoto

HANDICAPPED

An Ohio artist Saturday was named "Handicapped Professional Woman of the Year" by the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped and the Pilot Club International.

She is Mary Kathleen McGraw of Cleveland, who has been paralyzed by polio since she was a child.

Miss McGraw is director of an art studio at Highland View Hospital, a Cleveland rehabilitation center, the announcement said.

NEW RED

ERICH HONECKER, 58, the onetime protege who replaced Walter Ulbricht as No. 1 man in East Germany, was elected Saturday to a five-year term as first secretary of the party Ulbricht founded and entrenched in power.

The East Berlin balloting took place at a secret session of the Central Committee elected on the last day of the eighth East Germany Party Congress.

The East German news agency ADN said Ulbricht, now 78, would continue as chairman of the State Council, a titular office similar to president, and was unanimously made chairman of the party, a new and largely honorary post.

DEFECTION

A Soviet space official defected to the West at the Paris Air Show three weeks ago and was turned over to officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, French sources said Saturday.

The sources said the official, Anatole Fedosselev, is believed to be one of the highest-ranking Russians to defect to the West. He was deputy head of his country's delegation to the air show and was believed to have been a vice minister in charge of space research dealing with the Soyuz and Luna spaceship programs, they said.

Fedosseiev is believed to have been flown to Washington after he was handed over to NATO officials, the sources said.

NO MOTORS, NO SAILS, JUST ELBOW GREASE

Power and sail boats lost their customary hold on the public's attention along the Long Beach shore Saturday as Hawaiian outriggers and dories came traveling over the waves. The outriggers—manned by six-men crews—are shown above as they passed the Queen Mary. Below, the dories—operated by two-man crews of lifeguards—are ending a three-mile race. Ten teams were entered and Long Beach lifeguards dominated the contest, finishing first, second and fourth. The outriggers belong to the California Outrigger Association, who stage some interesting contests themselves.

NATIONAL STATES RIGHTS PARTY MEET DISRUPTED IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The conservative National States Rights Party was abruptly evicted from an auditorium where it was meeting Saturday after protests by the militant Jewish Defense League set off a skirmish resulting in seven arrests.

In addition, occupants of a hotel adjoining the Embassy Auditorium were evacuated after a telephoned bomb threat during the afternoon meeting.

Earlier, in Saturday's predawn hours, a small bomb exploded outside the auditorium, breaking a few windows. The Jewish group has labeled the states' group a neo-Nazi organization.

Just after the morning explosion, the Associated Press received a telephone call from a man who said, "I have a news release. I just blew up the Embassy Ballroom because the National State's Rightists — the Nazis — are coming there. If they come I'll blow them up again."

The caller concluded by saying, "Never again, never again," the slogan of the JDL, best knows for its protests of treatment of Soviet Jews.

Police were on hand in case of trouble when the meeting convened. A skirmish among JDL pickets and about 75 spectators broke out, and at least seven were arrested for investigation of offenses including resisting arrest.

The manager of the auditorium-hotel, Planaria Knill, said she stopped the meeting after a phoned bomb threat forced her to evacuate 252 occupants of the hotel — mainly elderly persons who live there.

"I received a call a 2 p.m. from someone saying a bomb would go off at 2:30," said Miss Knill. Police searched the building but found no bomb.

"I had to cancel the meeting because of the threat to everyone in the building," Miss Knill said. She said the states' rights members left peacefully.

U.S. constructing Indian Ocean base to oversee Russian naval activities

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

WASHINGTON — The U.S. has finally put its foot down in the Indian Ocean, creating a communication base to monitor Russian Naval activity there.

The base will be on Diego Garcia, a remote British-owned atoll 1,200 miles south of India and seven degrees below the equator.

Atlantic Fleet Seabees from Davisville, R.I., who will man it, reacted with an incredulous "Diego what?" When told of their assignment last month.

The 750 Seabees will work with the British on the 14-by-5-mile island, listed as part of the Chagos group. As usual the U.S. will pay the bill — expected to be about $20 million when the base is completed in 1974.

SEABEES WILL have a 3,500 runway completed in mid-July so that cargo- and - personnel - carrying C130s can land.

Britain and the U.S. have a 50-year agreement, signed in 1966. The U.S. will derive the most benefit as Britain already has an air base on Gan (700 miles away) and a communications base on Maritius (300 miles away).

The Pentagon says Diego Garcia "will fill the gap in Naval communications between The Philippines and Ethiopia."

However, the Pentagon forgot to mention the U.S.'s Harold E. Holt communications station on Australia's remote Northwest Cape.

The U.S. has only two ships in the Indian Ocean, both based in the Persian Gulf.

THUS, the new base will be extravagance unless it is to be used as a sensitive listening post and on-scene communications facility for more ships operating in the Indian Ocean.

This is borne out by Australia's agreement to permit joint usage of its new navy base in Cockburn Sound, near Freemantle, on the southwest coast.

The Pentagon says Diego Garcia will not be used to communicate with Polaris-Poseidon submarines — true since Northwest Cape can do that with its powerful very low frequency (deep water penetration) transmission units.

Russia keeps from 10 to 20 ships in the Indian Ocean and many have set up regular ports of call among the nations bordering it.

THE LONG BEACH destroyer USS Eversole was the first U.S. ship in many years to visit Madras, India, two months ago.

When completed, Diego Garcia will have an 8,000-foot runway, landing ships (LSTs) will be able to beach to discharge cargo and there will be full-scale military comfort facilities.

The first increment of Seabees will work until late November, then return home and be replaced by another detachment.

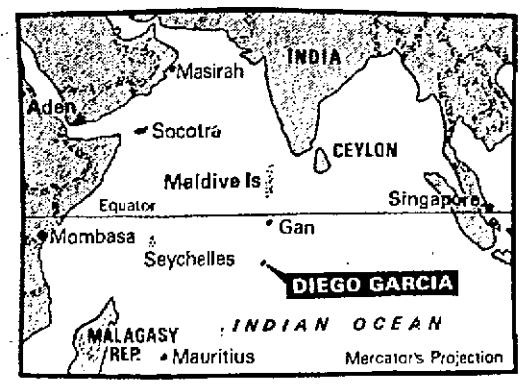

Coconuts are the sole industry on Diego Garcia and about 250 plantation workers from Maritius were there when the Seabees arrived.

MOST WILL be relocated, with a few remaining to help the Seabees.

The British will base an ecology expert on the atoll to insure protection of its natural aspects.

Diego Garcia is under the operational control of the Atlantic Fleet commander-in-chief with the communications facilility and assorted "eyes and ears" under the Naval Communications Command.

Seabees get their mail via Fleet Post Office, New York, 09530 — 11,000 miles from Davisville.

Corona case gag rule told

YUBA CITY (UPI) — Judicial District Court Judge J. J. Hankins has prohibited the release of any information on the health of murder suspect Juan V. Corona, Sutter County District Attorney G. Dave Teja disclosed Saturday.

Corona, 37, charged with 10 counts of murder in the slaying of 25 itinerant farm workers, was moved to Sutter County General Hospital here Friday from his jail cell in Marysville after he complained of chest pains. He was ordered held in a jail ward for 24 hours' observation.

Teja indicated Hankins took the action after a meeting involving the district attorney, Sheriff Roy Whiteaker and hospital chief of staff Dr. Thomas Leavenworth.

"We were all instructed not to give out any information on Corona's condition," Teja said.

Authorities had refused to discuss his ailment but defense attorney Richard Hawk said that doctors had diagnosed his troubles as mainly due to tension. However, Hawk said, the hospital was conducting thorough tests to make sure there was no heart problem.

Corona was taken to the hospital Friday morning and returned to the jail three hours later. But later in the day he was taken to the hospital for a second time after again complaining of chest pains.

Inventor-boatbuilder 'Gar' Wood is dead

MIAMI (AP) — Garfield Arthur "Gar" Wood, a millionaire industrialist and powerboat racing enthusiast credited with inventing the lift for dump trucks, died Saturday after being hospitalized with a stomach ailment. He was 90.

Investing 50 cents in a small polished cylinder, Wood began an intensive career struggling with the first hydraulic lift for dump trucks.

His return was a $50-million personal fortune.

YEARS LATER, Wood contended that the invention "built the world" and others compared the automotive development to that of the automatic gearshift.

Statisticians once computed that the Wood lift represented a savings of $96 billion to automotive civilization in man hours, time and delivery speed.

His fortune enabled him to pursue his hobby as a speedboat fan. He won the Harmsworth Trophy eight straight times and set five world speed records.

His Miss American models streaked from 92.83 miles per hour in 1928 to a then-fantastic 124.91 m.p.h. in 1932.

IN THE early 1930s he designed a high-speed powerful launch for the Navy and chatted with President Franklin D. Roosevelt about its possible combat use. FDR liked the vessel but Navy brass scoffed at what later became the hit-and-run PT boat of World War II.

He financed the Chris-Craft boat manufacturing company and expanded his industrial holdings into a vast network of nationwide factories and assembly plants.

In the early 1940s, Wood sold out and retired to Miami's Fisher Island. From there, he traveled about the continent in a twin-engine seaplane and worked on endless mechanical projects.

In May Wood sold his Fisher Island estate, formerly owned by William K. Vanderbilt. In 1959 Wood owned another 150 acres of the 220-acre island but sold out to a group headed by R. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a friend of President Nixon who reportedly owned a piece of the deal. Nixon later sold his interest.

He was born in Central Michigan and was long a widower. Named for the president and vice president in 1880, Garfield Arthur Wood was the son of a sea captain.

Survivors include his son, Gar Wood Jr., a resident of Japan; three sisters, Mrs. Bess Wood Boston of Franklin, Mich., Mrs. Frank McAllister of Lakeland, Fla.; and Mrs. Esther Work of Oakland, Calif.; four brothers, Philip Wood of Bal Harbour, Fla., Clinton Wood of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Winfield Wood of Minneapolis, Minn., and George Wood of Detroit, Mich.

Belmont girl new Miss California

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — Carolyn Jean Stoner, a dark-eyed, willowy 18-year-old from Belmont, was crowned Miss California Saturday night at the annual beauty pageant.

Miss Stoner, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Stoner, a Lockheed Aircraft engineer, dazzled the judges with her 35-23-35 figure in a swim suit and her gymnastic ballet to "Malaguena" in the talent division. She is a sophomore studying oceanography at the College of San Mateo and was San Mateo County's entrant.

Other finalists were: Antonette Yuskis, 18, Miss San Diego County, 1st runner up; Gail Tribou, 21, Miss San Joaquin County, 2nd runner up; Denise Jones, 20, Miss Butte County, 3rd runner up; and Kathryn Pardee, 20, Miss Contra Costa County, 4th runner up.

Car rams house, jars occupants

A 22-year-old woman and her infant daughter, sitting on a sofa in a Central Long Beach home Saturday afternoon, were knocked across the room when an auto crashed through the wall — and both escaped serious injury.

Police said Mrs. Effie M. Fletcher, of 2379 Caspian Ave., and her three-month-old daughter, Tina, were thrown to the floor of a home at 2090 Lime Ave. when a car smashed through the building's west wall about 3:45 p.m.

The auto, driven by Ariel Palomares, 19, of 2317 Lime Ave., collided with another car in the intersection of 21st Street and Lime Avenue, and hurtled out of control for 60 feet before striking the house, officers said.

Neither Palomares nor the driver of the second car, Bilkis Ahmed Manjra, 27, of 2644 E. 41st St., were injured in the collision, police said.

ALBUQUERQUE VIOLENCE BLAMED ON JOBLESS ROWDIES

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — City Manager Richard Wilson says it was aimless jobless young people looking for kicks who ran wild through the streets of Albuquerque throwing rocks and fire bombs.

But some of the young people arrested in the disorders, which resulted in 15 persons being wounded by gunfire, 600 arrests and property damage that may reach $4 million, said the violence was caused by reaction to "police brutality and harassment."

During the two days of violence, Lt. Gov. Robert Mondragon contended there had been previous incidents of police brutality in the city, and state Atty. Gen. David Norvell said there would be an investigation into the brutality charges. Their comments came during a rally at a park where the trouble began.

Albuquerque's top elected official, City Commission Chairman Charles Barnhart, accused Mondragon and Norvell of inciting part of the disturbances. They denied the brutality allegation.

Police Chief Donald Byrd, who came to Albuquerque from Dallas, Tex., just a few weeks ago, has made no statements about the claims of police brutality or excessive force, except to say that he is looking into it.

ALBUQUERQUE normally is a quiet city of 247,000, but the trouble that struck the city Sunday night and again late Monday included gunfire, street looting and burning. More than 1,000 National Guardsmen were mobilized to help end the disorder.

If there was disagreement among state and city officials regarding the allegations of police brutality, there was some common ground that summer joblessness among youths — a problem nationwide — probably played a role in the disorders.

Mondragon agreed with Wilson that one underlying cause was lack of jobs for young people.

"We have seen some of the characteristics all over the country — aimless, unemployed, unoccupied youth looking for kicks and issues," Wilson said.

Wilson also agreed that police overreacted to the initial trouble.

City Commissioner Louis E. Saavedra, 38, said the mob was composed of young people from the streets, "who don't have any ethical or moral commitments and are unimpressed by what's right or wrong."

Gov. Bruce King has named a special fact-finding committee to seek the answers. King said he believed outsiders were at least partly responsible.

Soviets fly past U.S. mark aloft

MOSCOW (UPI) — Three Soviet cosmonauts aboard the Salyut orbital station broke the U.S. spaceflight endurance record early Sunday and flew on toward the world record set by the Soyuz 9 cosmonauts last year.

At 2:30 a.m. Moscow time the Salyut cosmonauts had been in space a total of 13 days, 18 hours and 35 minutes, equaling the 1965 flight of Gemini 7. The Gemini 7 record had stood until June, 1970, when Soviet spacemen Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastianov spent nearly 18 days in space aboard Soyuz 9.

Scientific observers said there is every reason to believe the Salyut crew will establish a new record by staying aloft for at least four more days.

A MAJOR reason for the Salyut flight was to test new methods of overcoming the ill-effects of weightlessness. Scientific observers say the flight would have to last as long as that of Soyuz 9 so doctors can compare the two.

The Sallyut crew demonstrated bubbling good spirits when one of them, Viktor Patsayev, celebrated his 38th birthday Saturday. His colleagues gave him an onion as a present, but there were no vodka toasts — the first manned orbital station is dry.

The onion was a taste of Soviet humor. Many vodka drinkers follow large swigs with "chasers" of raw onion.

"We gave Viktor an onion but we searched the station and could find no vodka," Georgi Dobrovolsky and Vladislav Volkov deadpanned during a telecast from the birthday party.

Facts You Should Know About Diamonds

As we discussed last week, a Cultured Pearl Necklace (or strand) is one of the most ideal gifts to bestow upon a woman. Cultured Pearls can be worn anytime, for any occasion, with any dress or outfit and will always be appropriate. There are three standard lengths: choker (16" in length), matinee (1½ times the choker length), and Opera (twice the choker length). They come in single strand, two strands — called double, and three strands — called triple. Thus, the terms would be: choker, meaning single strand 16" in length, or double choker, which is two matched strands, etc.

In evaluating a particular cultured pearl necklace, you should utilize the same principles you have learned when judging a diamond — the size of the pearls, the quality of the pearls, the color of the pearls, and most important, the uniformity of the pearls as to color, size, and quality in the necklace. Remember, the average choker contains 40 to 50 individual cultured pearls. That is why the uniformity of matched color, size and quality is so important.

A choker strand of cultured pearls may range in price from $10.00 to $10,000.00 depending upon the above factors. Matinee would be $15.00 to $15,000.00 and Opera would be $20.00 to $20,000.00, because matinee is 24" long (1½ choker strands) and the opera is 32" (two choker strands).

We are most fortunate to have the widest selection of cultured pearl strands available. Our buyer travels to Japan at least once a year to buy pearls directly from the growers. We buy these in "hanks." When they arrive at our main office, they are graded as to size, color and quality. Then graded pearls are individually strung with a knot between each pearl. This is important. Should a strand break, (which is a rarity) you are protected. You would only look for one or two pearls, the remainder being knotted, they will not fall loose. Remember to look closely at the strand you are desirous of buying to make sure each pearl has been separately knotted.

For helpful hints as to the color, size and type of strand you should purchase, read next week's article.

TAXING

NEW YORK (UPI) — A member of the cast of the broadway hit "Oh, Calcutta," was arrested in front of City Hall for practically nothing at all.

Unfortunately for Miss Raina Barrett, the nothing at all was what she was wearing underneath a flowing gown while she and nine other members of the cast were picketing in protest of a scheduled 3 per cent theater tax.

A sudden breeze fluttered Miss Barrett's dress giving police a glimpse of the true situation.

A New York policeman, showing great presence of mind, threw his raincoat over the 29-year-old woman. His chivalry ended there, however and he arrested her on charges of public lewdness.

SAINTED

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Atheist Madalyn Murry O'Hair's "Poor Richard's Universal Life Church" has issued its list of "saints."

The list included:

Neanderthal man, saint of first human development and patron saint of the atheist church.

Mark Twain, saint of human laughter.

Clarence Darrow, saint of the legal profession.

Madame Marie Curie, saint of explorative science.

Thomas Edison, saint of modern times.

Margaret Sanger, saint of birth control.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, saint of women's liberation.

Eugene V. Debs, saint of the worker.

PRACTICE

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI) — A woman whose husband used her to practice and demonstrate wrestling holds was granted a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

The judge, Lord Fraser, said wrestling enthusiast William Miller was "always pulling at her, turning her upside down and twisting her arms behind her back."

SAFETY

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusett divisiin of the American Automobile Association is admiring girls in hot pants and says it's for safety reasons.

"There was a a time when fashion used to be a problem for women drivers," the AAA said. "Maxicoats, midiskirts, bell bottoms spiked heels — all were a hazard to the common driver."

The AAA said with hot pants, bell bottoms won't get entangled around the foot pedals and skirts will not become trapped in a door.

There was one minor hazard: when a woman returned to her car after it had been parked in the sun.

"That's when hot pants become very hot pants," the AAA said.

HUNGRY

LEICESTER, England (UPI) — For nearly seven months, 17-month-old Jason Hildrew could not keep any food down, except milk and yogurt.

Doctors were baffled until an X-ray showed the cause: Jason had swallowed a toy's clockwork spring. An operation removed the spring and Jason is back to normal.

"He wants to eat so much of everything that I have to restrain him," said his mother, Mrs. Diane Hildrew.

HANG ON

DETROIT (UPI) — If your car is Kaiser or a Frazer, hang onto it. According to the president of the Kaiser - Frazer Owners Club, the car will be worth what you originally paid for it by 1980.

National President Kenneth B. Mercicle of Belleville, who owns eight of the old cars with the buffalo ornament on the hood, says collectors have driven the price to within $1,000 of the original $3,500 cost. The car has been out of production 15 years.

The Kaiser - Frazer Owners Club, Mercicle said, now has 1,300 members.

AEC orders stricter nuclear power plant safety standards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stricter built-in safety standards for nuclear power plant emergency cooling systems were announced Saturday by the Atmoic Energy Commission.

The AEC said its tighter guidelines will require minor adjustments for some newer operating plants, but that these could be carried out with little or no loss of electric power output.

The standards call for a threefold increase in inspections of piping within light-water reactors and more extensive installations of emergency cooling systems to be completed in three years.

The agency's regulations director, Harold L. Price, told a news conference "it is impossible to guarantee absolute safety, but we are confident the new criteria will prevent a reactor from getting out of hand," even though "the possibility of that happening is very, very remote."

The standards are designed to prevent the possibility that loss of cooling water from a leaking pipe might permit a temperature rise in the fuel chamber that could melt it down.

Price said the reactor manufacturers "feel that our criteria are conservative — on the safe side — but that they can live with them."

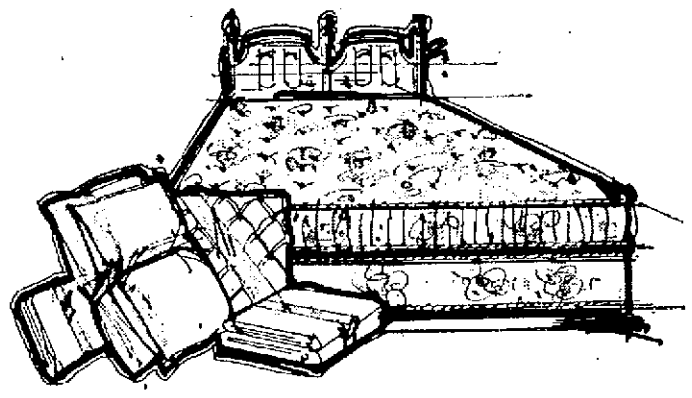

General Electric, one of the four makers of light-water reactors, said in a statement that with the possible exception of two older plants, all those being built "or proposed plus GE reactors now operating ... fully meet the new rules."

The AEC said emergency cooling systems, including some advanced concepts, are now under review by Westinghouse Electric, Babcock and Wilcos and Combustion Engineering.

Antiwar ad prompts retaliation by stores

BOSTON (UPI) — Two of the largest retail stores in Boston, apparently objecting to an antiwar ad in the Boston Globe, have reportedly withdrawn an estimated $55,000 in advertising from the newspaper's edition for today.

The advertisement, which appeared in Thursday's edition, called for a moratorium on shopping by women Monday to dramatize opposition to the war in Indochina.

"If you don't buy the war, don't buy anything," urged the ad, sponsored by the "Voice of Women," of Newtonville. "Don't shop June 21."

Sources told UPI Friday the Jordan Marsh Co. had withdrawn $25,000 worth of ads in ths Sunday Globe and Sears Roebuck and Co. had canceled $30,000 in advertising spacs.

"The Boston Globe accepts all legitimate advertising on public issues, including the Vietnam war," the paper, said in a one sentence response to the stores' action.

Both the nwspaper and the stores declined to comment on the amount of advertising withdrawn.

Eight-second Tijuana wedding nice memory

Ridder News Service

TIJUANA — You can get married here quicker than you can get dysentery.

My wife and I tied the nuptial knot across the border from San Diego in eight seconds flat, which might be an indoor wedding record. Our kids were best man and bridesmaid.

It wasn't that we had to get married. Heaven forbid. What would our two children say? We had the knot tied. American style, 13 years ago.

But we figured a genuine Mexican wedding license would be a more interesting memento of our visit south of the border than a genuine imitation walrus wallet or a tarnished silver spoon inscribed "Souvenir of Tijuana."

Tijuana's welcome mat to Yankee tourists is a string of little shacks and roadside stands with signs announcing:

"MARRIAGES and DIVORCES."

We stopped our car at the first one we saw. A whitewashed shack on the dusty street had a sign larger than itself to lure in both lover and haters.

Like a spider coming out into his web, Bob Lopez amoled to our side as we came to a halt at his shack.

The man was best described as sleazy. Short, with narrow black eyes and a speckle of day-old beard, he came to me and asked if he could be of service.

"How much to get married?" I asked.

"Twenty-five dollars?"

"Twenty-five dollars!" I exclaimed. "For the hell que?"

That was my Spanish-American method of asking him what the hell for.

We had been in Tijuana a few days earlier and learned one thing . . . to the people of this border town the first price quoted on anything is merely an intelligence test. If you are loco, you pay the first price. Reductions of 25 to 30 per cent are common and rice some 13 years ago, make it one of the best bargain centers for shopping tourists. Even if you are in the market for matrimony.

"It's legal!" he retorted and looked a bit put out by my questioning of his fee.

"So what's the $25 for?" I argued.

He took me inside the shack — alone. My bride-to-be stayed outside with our kids.

The shack had (a) a table; (b) a chair; (c) a file cabinet.

He quickly sat down on "b" and reached into "c" then put a stack of paper forms onto "a".

"You fill these out," he ordered. "It's legal." He had about five forms on the table in front of me. They all asked about name and address and previous conditions of marital servitude.

"Too much," I said, again zeroing in on the price. "I'll give you $10."

He shook his head no, starting to stack up his precious forms.

"I tell you what," I said, remembering that in bartering Tijuana style you must grant concessions or else it is an insult to the person who is going to fleece you anyway.

"I'll tell you what. You keep all these forms but the yellow one (it was the marriage license). For $10."

"What's the name?" he asked quickly.

"Who?"

"The girl."

"Nancy," I said.

"Write," he commanded, handing me the license and a ballpoint pen.

"Ten dollars?" I said.

He agreed.

"But," I protested "No ceremony. We don't get a ceremony?"

Lopez shook his head one jerk to the negative.

"How much for the ceremony."

"Fifteen dollars."

"No." This time I was offended.

"I'll give you $12 for the license and the ceremony."

"Get the girl."

I called out to my blushing bride, whom I had seen showered with rice some 13 years ago, if memory serves me.

"Hey, honey. Come on in, we're going to get married."

She was stunning in her J. C. Penney ensemble, carrying a Brownie Hawkeye.

The groom wore sunglasses and slacks.

The kids were ecstatic. But too late for the ceremony.

Lopez had us stand in front of his card table while he raised his right hand. His voice went like a machine gun.

"By the power vested in me by the state of Mexico I hereby . . . wish you many years of peace and happiness. You are now married. Kiss the bride."

That was it. No rings, no dearly beloveds even allowed to gather there.

Lopez handed me the wedding license. It reads:

"MR. WILLIAM S. FARMER AND MISS NANCY FRANKENBERGER HAVE SIGNED ON THIS DATE IN THIS OFFICE ALL THE NECESSARY PAPERS AND DOCUMENTS IN ORDER TO BE MARRIED IN MEXICO. THEREFORE IT IS HEREBY UNDERSTOOD THE SAID MARRIAGE IS TO BE RECORDED IN THE STATE OF MEXICO: HE INTERESTED PARTIES HAVE PAID THE FEE FOR SERVICES AND THE CORRESPONDING EXPENSES. IN CASE OF BALANCE PENDING NO BUSINESS WILL BE STARTED UNTIL TOTAL IS COMPLETELY PAID. IN CASE OF PERSONS UNDER AGE. PROPER AFFIDAVITS MUST BE SUBMITTED DULY SIGNED AND NOTARIZED. PERSONAL CHECKS WILL HAVE TO WAIT FOR CLARENCE (sic) BEFORE BUSINESS IS STARTED."

We never did find out who Clarence was.

"By the way, Lopez," I asked. "How much for a divorce?"

Sensing he had a live one, he replied without hesitation:

"Eighty-four dollars."

"Too much!" I complained.

For the first time, probably in this century, Lopez grinned:

"Cheaper than in the States," he chuckled, poking my ribs. "Cost you $100 there. Right?"

Diplomatic, image-building mission Sends Agnew around the world

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is sending Vice President Spiro T. Agnew off to do the kind of thing that he has done best — foreign diplomacy.

In contrast to his much publicized domestic hassles with the news media Agnew has made two past diplomatic jaunts with a minimum of uproar.

Now he is off again, on a round-the-world trip that will keep him abroad from June 27 to July 28 and take him to 11 Asian, African and European countries.

Barring the unexpected, it is the kind of thing that could help the Agnew image at a time when there is much speculation over his political future and whether he will again be President Nixon's running mate in 1972.

For much of the Spring, Agnew has been touring the country to stir up support for the President's legislative program, especially revenue sharing and government reorganization. It has kept him busy, but pretty much out of the spotlight.

Now, starting with South Korea, where he will be Nixon's representative at the inauguration of President Chung Hee Park, he will once more be involved in activities that drew some attention.

Government officials involved in planning Agnew's trip say there are no hidden missions and that its purposes is, as stated, to represent the President in countries the chief executive has been unable to get to himself.

After Korea and a rest stop in Singapore, Agnew flies to the oil-rich Arab countries of Kuwait and Saudi Arabia before heading for Africa for visits to Ethiopia, Kenya and the former Belgian Congo.

A week-long visit to Spain, where his wife Judy will join the vice presidential party, will be divided between official functions and a short vacation. The vice president then will conclude the trip with visits to Morocco and Portugal.

Officials said it would be off-base to speculate that the Arabian visits have anything to do with U.S. oil policies, or to read anything into the Spanish trip in relation to the possibility that country might join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

But this trip conceivably could strengthen the vice president's foreign-policy credentials on the eve of a campaign in which Republican strategists intend to emphasize foreign policy-especially if the nation's economy remains spotty.

Cat gets caught where Santa dares to slide

MIAMI (AP) — It just wasn't Victor Marmojelo's night.

The admitted 22-year-old cat burglar tried to slip down a chimney to gain entrance to a home May 18.

He got stuck.

Eventually, police had to dismantle the chimney to get him out.

Marmojelo on Friday pleaded guilty to attempting to gain entry to a dwelling that was not his own.

Criminal Court Judge Jack Turner placed him on two years probation — and ordered him to pay for repairing the chimney.

BOGOTA, Ill. (UPI) — Mrs. Mable McKinney retired as postmistress today and took the Post Office with her.

Mrs. McKinney operated the Bogota Post Office from her home and postal officials say they have not been able to find a new location. Patrons will be served by the Newton Post Office for the time being.

South Viets stage Armed Forces Day parade, but few on hand to witness it

By KEYES BEECH
Chicago Daily News

SAIGON — South Vietnam showed off its armed might Saturday in an Armed Forces Day parade notable mainly for the fact that elaborate security measures prevented all but a privileged few from viewing it.

Thousands of citizens who converged on the parade route were disappointed when they were turned back by police and soldiers. Some of those turned away had passes. However thousands of people watched the three-hour procession on television.

Only a few thousand government employes, their families, the diplomatic corps and newsmen were allowed to witness the parade. The route was short — perhaps less than a mile from the Saigon zoo down Thong Nhut Street past government buildings and the American Embassy to the presidential palace.

If the Communists were trying to spoil the occasion, they failed. Not one Communist rocket or mortar fell on the city in contrast to past public events. Nor were there any acts of terrorism or sabotage reported in the city.

Small contingents of allied troops took part in the parade. The American participation was limited to only 120 men and a band, symbolic of the declining U.S. military presence in Vietnam. It was probably the last time U.S. troops would march in a South Vietnamese parade.

President Nguyen Van Thieu witnessed the parade from the same platform with his most persistent critic and political rival, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky. Ky is challenging Thieu for the presidency in the October elections.

In a brief speech Thieu restated his hardline stand toward the Communists and promised continued war. He swore he would never "betray" the Vietnamese people or the sacrifices of their soldiers.

He promised a South Vietnam without Communism "in any form" and said "peace cannot come under conditions that would enable the Communists to take over this country in one way or another." At the same time he promised to go anywhere any time to seek peace.

Thieu spoke two days after Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh, third man in the presidential sweepstakes, staked out his claim as a "peace" candidate and attack Thieu without naming him.

Each year, only a very small percentage of agents qualify for such a distinction, and Mr. Hoffman's record of service and performance has earned him this important place.

Pakistan says revolt over, allows newsmen to return

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI) — The Pakistani federal government announced Saturday it is opening up East Pakistan to foreign newsmen for the first time since a secessionist civil war broke out there March 25.

It said the opening is effective immediately. The official announcement by the government's Radio Pakistan said foreign correspondents "may now visit East Pakistan on their own."

The broadcast said law and order had been restored and there would be no restrictions on direct and independent coverage by foreign newsmen.

The announcement said correspondents may now move around East Pakistan without escort but did not specify whether the lifting of restrictions included those imposed on television crews and news photographers.

The federal army moved March 25 to crush a separatist movement for an independent "Bangla Desh," meaning Bengal homeland in Bengali. All foreign correspondents in East Pakistan were expelled the following day.

Since then, a few selected correspondents have been allowed in on heavily-supervised tours. Other foreign newsmen have gone in without permission to cover the civil warfare.

The announcement was made shortly after federal President Aga Mohammed Yahya Khan appealed Saturday to Pakistani nationals who had fled to India to return to their homes.

The president said hindrances were being put in the way of their return but did not mention India specifically.

Pakistani government officials and news reports have charged repeatedly that India is obstructing the return of thousands of refugees who began streaming into India when civil war broke out in the eastern province in March.

In a statement prepared for broadcast over Radio Pakistan and issued to the press, Yahya expressed "gratification" that many had responded to his earlier appeals and recrossed the border.

The president said he was again appealing to all Pakistani nationals, "irrespective of cast, creed or religion," to return to their homes and not be misled by "mischievous propaganda being conducted outside Pakistan."

The president said the government had made arrangements to receive the refugees and to assist in rehabilitating them.

Spread of Hodgkin's disease hints at virus

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A teen-age girl who died in 1952 after suffering from Hodgkin's disease may have started "an extended epidemic" that spread this form of cancer to 13 persons, say state medical investigators.

The State Health Department, investigating the epidemic possibility, has found a complicated series of contacts among the victims and classmates, close friends and relatives.

If this theory is true, says one pathologist, it suggests Hodgkin's disease may be caused by a virus and that it may be spread by a contagion of a very low degree, perhaps through a carrier.

FURTHER, physicians here say, very preliminary studies indicate that individuals who have had tonsillectomies may be more susceptible to Hodgkin's disease. The doctors suggest the tonsils may act as a barrier to the virus, which may lodge in the throat.

None of this has been proven yet, the doctors emphasize. They say that Hodgkin's is a rare malignancy affecting 3,700 Americans a year.

Hodgkin's is often fatal although it can be cured. It resembles leukemia, marked by an enlargement of the lymph glands and the spleen, coupled with progressive anemia.

The first clue to this so far unique cluster of the disease came when the widow of one of those who died told Dr. Jacqueline Mauro, an Albany pathologist, of a puzzling number of cases among the graduates of Albany High School.

Dr. Mauro told Dr. Peter Greenwald, director of the state's Bureau of Cancer Control, who led the investigation. Although skeptical at first Greenwald now says:

"Investigation of the school class disclosed an extended epidemic situation of a type that seems not to have been previously noted."

WINDSOR NEARS 77

Duke still won't live in England

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI) — The Duke of Windsor will be 77 on June 23 and once again millions of his former subjects will wonder why he cannot return to live out his remainnig years in the land he once ruled so briefly as King Edward VIII.

Many of those who remember the handsome boyish figure he cut as Prince of Wales will attribute his self-exile to a quarrel inside the royal family over the status of his American-born duchess. They will be wrong.

It is not Queen Elizabeth who stands in the way nor is it Queen Mother Elizabeth whose husband, King George VI, was projected to the throne, despite his less robust health, when his brother gave up his birthright for marriage.

Duke of Windsor

Tha thas been long forgiven. Dowager Queen Mary, who could not bear the thought her son had placed his personal life before his duty, is gone. Time, in fact, has dissipated all the reasons usually advanced to explain why the duke and his duchess from Baltimore prefer to live in Paris when they are not jet setting elsewhere, rather than among his own folk.

Yet the way is still not open, in the duke's eyes, for his return. And the stumbling block is not Buckingham Palace. It is Ten Downing Street, home of the prime minister.

In the new, democratic age the queen and other members of the royal circle have long since recognized the duchess, met and talked with her both in public and in private. She was in the royal family group where the queen unveiled the memorial to King George VI.

WHEN THE DUKE was recovering from an eye operation in London some years ago the queen gave him the key to the Buckingham Palace gardens and he and the duchess used them. There is no doubt that if the duke did decide to come back to his homeland the queen, his niece, would help him settle down in every way she could.

Queen Elizabeth has strong family feelings and loyalty and has never forgotten her childhood affection for the Uncle David who was a regular playmate in the royal nursery. She has given formal consent to his wish to be buried in the royal family's private vault at Frogmore, near Windsor Castle, with his duchess.

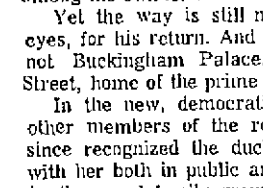

But there is still the duke's insistence that he cannot live in a country which does not recognize his wife as his equal. When he abdicated the throne in 1936 and was given the title of Duke of Windsor he was also given the rights and precedence of royalty. His American-born duchess was not given the same prerogatives. The duke finds this intolerable and that is why he has continued to live abroad.

FOR A LONG TIME it was thought the process of conferring royal rank on the duchess had to be initiated by the palace. But court advisers, studying documents going back hundreds of years, have come to the conclusion that the queen is powerless.

24 cents for food too little, U.S. tells Mexican jailers

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP) — Arguing that a man can't eat on just 24 cents a day, the U.S. consul has called on the mayor of this border town for help in getting more food for U.S. citizens in jail here.

About a dozen U.S. citizens, most of them young men arrested on marijuana charges, are being held in "La Loma" (The Hill), a jail west of downtown Nuevo Laredo.

Since it is not a federal prison, those held on federal charges are not fed from the jail kitchen, U.S. Consul Lee Cotterman pointed out.

They receive at regular intervals, instead, a daily food allowance of three pesos — or about 24 cents.

But Cotterman says he has found that it costs between five and seven pesos (40 to 56 cents) a day to feed prisoners from the jail kitchen or to buy from vendors who are admitted into the jail to sell food.

Cotterman said he has asked Nuevo Laredo Mayor Francisco Garaz Gutierrez to take the matter up with Tamaulipas Gov. J. Manuel Ravize to determine if the city and state governments can supplement the federal food allowance for such federal prisoners.

AIP leader seeks wide-scale switch to GOP

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Bob Walters, prominent in the American Independent Party's 1968 backing of George Wallace's presidential campaign in California, has switched to the Republican Party and says the AIP is virtually dead in this state.

Walters served as 1968 chairman for Wallace in California but charged Saturday that "the AIP has degenerated to such an extent that Gov. Wallace has even indicated he will never run again on the AIP ticket in California and indeed doubts he will even conduct a campaign in this state next year."

As a result, Walters announced his intention to launch a Republican registration drive among members of the American Independent Party.

He said Orange County will serve as the initial reregistration center in a drive that will include a mailer and a subsequent door-to-door campaign to meet and recruit every member of the AIP into the Republican Party.

Walters said he decided for the GOP after a conference of Wallace leaders "concluded that the AIP has virtually ceased to operate in most counties and that what does remain of the party has been taken over by selfish individuals who don't stand for the principles upon which the AIP was founded."

Most of the former Wallace campaign leadership is joining him, Walters said. The group includes Jim Sartin, whom Wallace designated last year to serve as state AIP chairman. Walters says the campaign has the active assistance of the conservative United Republicans of California.

NORTH L.B. GOP

Earle Christo will speak on "Impending Taxes" at the Monday luncheon meeting of the North Long Beach Republican Women's Club Federated at Houghton Park Club House, 6301 Myrtle Ave.

Mrs. Inez Ten Napel, legislative chairman, said Monday's meeting will be the club's last until September. The public is invited.

CHACE APPOINTMENTS

Mrs. Cora Cooks, 2450 Pine Ave., Long Beach, and Mrs. Edna Oleson, of Pacific Palisades, have been reappointed by Supervisor Burton W. Chace to two - year terms, effective July 1, on the Los Angeles County Public Social Services Commission.

Chace said both women "have distinguished records of dedicated services to this commission." He also announced new one-year terms for Harry Simon, 2750 Bellflower Blvd., Long Beach, and Herbert Cameron, of Los Angeles, to the county Commission on Judicial procedures.

CARTWRIGHT TRIP

Richard Cartwright, co-chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, 32nd Congressional District and a founder of the National Council of Senior Citizens, was a delegate to the council's 10th anniversary convention June 10-12 in Washington, D.C.

Cartwright conferred with Democratic legislators, including some of those mentioned as presidential possibilities, during the convention.

Saudi Arabia king, Egypt's president open talks on Mideast peace efforts

CAIRO (UPI) — After two rounds of preliminary talks Saturday, Saudi Arabia's King Faisal and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat are expected to get down to business today in talks centering on current diplomatic efforts to reach a Middle East peace settlement.

King Faisal arrived here Saturday for a seven-day official visit and a review of the latest Middle East developments with Sadat.

It was the first meeting between the two Arab leaders since Sadat became president last October.

Cairo gave Faisal a warm welcome, with hundreds of Egyptians crowding the airport building and shouting for Egyptian-Saudi friendship.

Sadat led Egyptian officials greeting Faisal on his arrival at the head of a 51-man delegation.

After an official welcoming ceremony, which included a 21-gun salute, Faisal and Sadat drove to the Kubbeh Republican Palace where they plunged into a 30-minute informal round of talks.

They had more informal talks Saturday night when Faisal called on Sadat. Faisal later was Sadat's dinner guest at an official banquet.

Official talks, centering on the current diplomatic efforts to reach a Middle East peace settlement, will begin today, political sources said.

Egypt's planes swoop over Israelis along Suez Canal

Associated Press

Egyptian warplanes swooped over Israeli positions along the Suez Canal Saturday, drawing fire from antiaircraft batteries but escaping unhit, the military command in Tel Aviv reported. It was the second reported Egyptian overflight to draw Israeli fire in less than a week and the fourth since the cease-fire began last August.

A spokesman said Israel lodged a complaint charging a violation of the cease-fire with the U.S. truce observation headquarters in Jerusalem.

IN CAIRO, President Anwar Sadat announced the appointment of nine new governors, seven of them to replace men involved in an alleged plot to oust him last month.

Among the outgoing governors was Hamid Mahmoud, whose arrest apparently set off the alleged plot to topple Sadat. Hagih Abaza, former governor of Cairo, also was reported under arrest.

Sadat later rolled out the red carpet to welcome King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, who arrived primarily to muster concerted Arab action to work out a settlement of the Middle East crisis. It was the first meeting between the two leaders since Sadat became president last October.

Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad also met in Cairo to review the impact of the Middle East crisis on the European Common Market.

In a 2½-hour session in Riad's office, they discussed diplomatic efforts to reopen the Suez Canal, closed by Egypt at the outset of the 1967 war. The success of these efforts was understood to be Harmel's primary concern.

POLICE in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip reported finding the bodies of two murdered women in in the Jebellyah refugee camp, bringing to 50 the number of murder victims found in the area this year. Most of the killings are blamed on Arab terrorists opposed to Arab-Israeli cooperation.

In Beirut, Lebanon, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine — PFLP — said it attacked an Israeli-chartered tanker off Yemen nine days ago to undermine an agreement in principle on occupied Sharm el Sheikh.

The PFLP newspaper, El Hadaf, said the United States had worked out the agreement with Israel and Egypt a few days before Palestinian commandos fired rockets on the tanker Coral Sea.

Under the agreement, El Hadaf said Israel was to withdraw from the former Egyptian strongpoint at the tip of the Sinai Peninsula while retaining the right to select the countries that would make up an international peacekeeping force there.

ISRAEL HAS said it must retain a military presence at Sharm el Sheikh, which controls the Strait of Tiran, the entry to the Gulf of Aqaba and the way to the Israeli port of Elath. Egypt says Israel must get out and be replaced by an international force.

El Hodaf also said the United States and Britain "are jointly sponsoring an imminent invasion" of Southern Yemen to overthrow its leftist regime.

It claimed the invasion force, equipped with American and British arms and a radio station is ready to cross the border from Saudi Arabia and the Republic of Yemen.

El Hadaf said American and Britiish military experts have been readying the invasion forces for the past 12 weeks in secret camps in the Saudi province of Najran and the eastern province of Harib in the Yemeni Republic.

IT CLAIMED the alleged invasion is designed to first establish control over six areas in Southern Yemen's western, northern and eastern borders and to form a "moderate government to lead a march on Aden.

Meet bug-eyed Matilda, a back seat driver in space

By EV HOSKING
Sunday Editor

MATILDA IS ALSO WALL-EYED

Meet Matilda!

She's the bug-eyed monster in space, complete to fluttering eyelashes.

Launched by the Air Force's Space and Missile Systems Organization (SAMSO) from Vandenberg Air Force Base last week, Matilda is an experimental spacecraft attitude sensor which tells a satellite's control system if it is flying straight and level through space. In other words, Matilda is a back seat driver, a very sophisticated one.

MATILDA'S two one-and-one-half inch diameter eyes perched atop her casing give the monster her "bugeyed" look. The two bugeyes look off into space 45 degrees apart, making her wall-eyed as well.

She weighs four and a half pounds, and her measurements are a modest 8-4½-5, not quite enough to qualify her for the International Beauty Pageant.

To do her job, she flies with her face to the wind — the wind created by the satellite's movement through free ions which occupy space beyond our atmosphere. The ions enter her eyes through half-inch wide pupils, and are directed down to a particle multiplier, or ion counter, in her body. As the ion strike the counter, an electrical charge is built up on its surface. The more ions, the stronger the charge.

Her eyelashes are pairs of electrically charged screens mounted behind the pupils, or ions in her case. But, they work differently.

THE FRONT scheen in each pair "flutters," or alternates between a positive electrical charge and no charge at all. The rear screen in each pair carries a constant negative charge.

When the front screen of the left eye is positively charged, the front screen of the right eye is uncharged, and vice versa. This cycle is repeated 30 times a second.

When the screens are positively charged, they repel positive ions. When they are negatively charged or uncharged, positive ions pass through. The negative screens repel any negative ions that might enter the pupils.

So, the ion counter in her body is struck by streams of positive ions coming alternately through the left and right eyes. A small computer measures the strength of the charge built up on the counter, and compares the strengths of the charges on each cyle.

If the spacecraft wobbles to the left, more ions will enter the right eye, since it is pointed more directly into the ion wind. This will cause the charge on the ion counter to increase on the right cycles.

THE COMPUTER will measure the difference and relay a command to the satellite's control system which will obediently fire a small rocket back to the right, and on a correct course.

SAMSO engineers in El Segundo say that Matilda is doing everything she is supposed to do, living up to all expectations.

They say her lightweight low power requirements and accuracy combined put her in a class by herself.

New insurance policy offer

The Independent, Press-Telegram — which has offered accident insurance as a service to readers since 1935 — announced a new low cost policy that pays $1,000 a month in hospital benefits and $500 a month in recuperative benefits after the insured leaves the hospital.

The recuperative benefit is paid for the same length of time the insured was in the hospital.

IN EFFECT, the policy pays $1,500 a month in hospital income benefits for accidents.

In the tradition of reader insurance the cost has been kept bargain low. "About half what you would normally expect to pay for such coverage," according to W. J. Morrisey, Independent, Press-Telegram circulation director, who announced the new policy.

The Independent, Press-Telegram is among the first in America, to bring to its readers this new value-priced coverage.

The policy is available to persons of any age.

There is no reduction in the hospital benefits after Medicare age — only in the death benefits. These latter range from $2,000 to $10,000.

"The idea of this new policy is to put substantial sums of money in the hands of our readers when they must go to the hospital because of an accident — this is in addition to any other insurance they have or collect," Morrissey said.

The premium cost for the new insurance is $5 for two months or $27.50 the year.

READERS WHO hold The Independent, Press-Telegram usual policy were advised of the new offering by mail last week, with the suggestion that they add it to that coverage.

National Casualty Company is the underwriter of both the newspaper's usual reader policy and the new hospital and recuperative income policy.

Bloodmobiles due in two communities

The Red Cross has scheduled two community bloodmobiles to be held in the month of June in the communities of Lakewood and Paramount.

The first bloodmobile will be at St. Cyprian's Catholic Church, 4714 Clark St., from 3:00-7:30 p.m. on Friday.

The second will be at the Paramount United Methodist Church 16635 Paramount Boulevard, Paramount from 3:00-7:30 p.m. on June 28.

"We particularly urge the people of these communities to support these bloodmobiles," said Leonard V. Foster, chairman of the Long Beach Chapter's Blood Committee. "June marks the beginning of the vacation season. It is a time when the supply of donors slacks off and the need for blood rises."

Foster recommended that all families add blood donations as the first item on their vacation check lists. "If they cannot make the bloodmobiles when they visit their communities, our blood center at 340 West Willow is open four days a week for their convenience," said Foster.

Life's got so much — and he knows it

BOSTON (UPI) — James J. Doty, 35, from the Boston suburb of Dedham, underwent two operations for cancer last fall. Friday he said he felt strong enough to dive into Boston Harbor for a 12-mile swim today. "It's unbelievable," he said. "Life's got so much to offer."

'Wide range of normal' heart rates called diagnostic problem

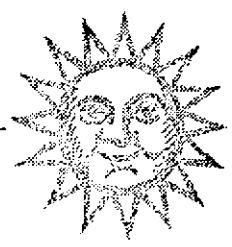

BOSTON (AP) — Famed heart surgeon William Dudley White says that some physicians fail to recognize "the wide range of the normal" in their diagnosis of heart conditions.

White told the annual meeting of the Harvard Medical Alumni Association Friday night that activities of many perfectly normal people have been curtailed "because of the failure of the recognition, even at times by physicians, of the wide range of the normal."

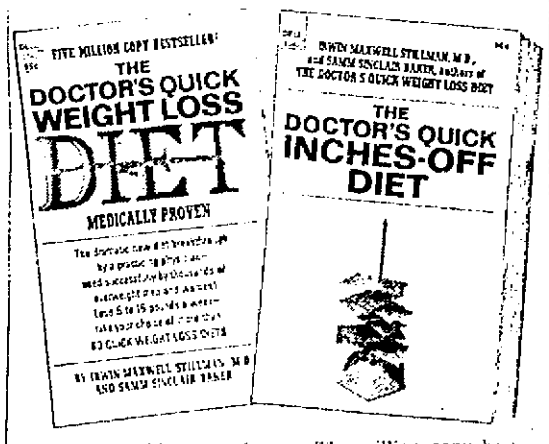

"I myself know from actual testing that the heart rates of perfectly healthy champion athletes, in perfect condition and at physical rest, in this instance distance runners, can range from 33 to 118," he said.

Louisiana rock fete halted

McCREA, La. (AP) — Promotors of the Celebration of Life rock festival abandoned Saturday night plans of staging it, leaving thousands of youths stranded along highways and camping in pastures and empty farm houses.

A U.S. District Court judge refused to hear their appeal of a state court decision blocking the festival, the promoters said. About 60,000 persons had been expected.

"This is the end of it," said promotoer Kenny Lind of New Olreans. "We don't have any other recourse left."

Sheriff's deputies moved into the 700-acre proposed festival site in rural Pointe Coupree Parish to remove the workers who had been constructing platforms and putting up sound systems.

"The party's over," the deputies said as they moved through the lush area located between the Mississippi and Atchafalya rivers in central Louisiana. Lawmen set up roadblocks in a 15-mile radius of the site shortly after the state court order was issued, thus piling up traffic waiting to get into the area. The traffic built up through the day as authorities waited to see the outcome of the appeal.

The state injunction was issued by Judge G. Rosse Kearney Jr. of New Roads, parish seat of Pointe Coupree. He issued the paper on the gruonds that no health permit was obtained from the parish health unit.

"People are coming in by the thousands and are going into empty houses and fields," said Parish Police Jury President Walter Claiborne late Saturday. The police jury is the governing body of the parish.

An estimated 2,000 to 3,500 workers and celebrants were on the festival site Saturday morning before the roadblocks went up and remained there.

The Ponite Coupree Parish Police Jury, governing body of the sparsely populated parish, passed an emergency ordinance Friday night that requires promoters of any event expected to gather more than 5,000 persons to apply for a permit 10 days before the event.

Fund-sharing--what Nixon meant to convey was . . .

New York Times Service

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — President Nixon appears to have unintentionally left a misleading impression when he said Friday that enactment of his general revenue sharing plan by Congress would lead in time to a 30 per cent reduction in local property taxes.

Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House press secretary, issued a statement of clarification Saturday in which he said that what Nixon meant was that the measure, if approved, would give revenues to cities equal to about 30 per cent of the "average annual increase in property taxes."

In other words, he suggested, revenue sharing funds, if applied by the recipient communities to a reduction in property taxes, would decrease by 30 per cent the anticipated increase in property taxes, and not necessarily lead to a net reduction in taxes from their present level. This seemed to be the clear meaning of Nixon's comments Friday to a group of editors assembled in Rochester, N.Y., for a briefing on the administration's domestic program.

"IF REVENUE sharing . . . is passed," Nixon told the editors, "looking ahead it has been estimated by our experts in the various departments, particularly the Treasury Department, that it could result in a reduction of property taxes across the country — of course varying, depending upon the situation in each state and local government unit — a reduction of approximately 30 per cent."

Earlier in the briefing, Nixon referred frequently to the rapid rise in property taxes which, he said, could lead "to a financial crisis of enormous proportions."

The White House hopes that by emphasizing the prospects of property tax relief, Nixon may be able to generate enough public interest in revenue sharing to overcome the adamant opposition of the head of the Ways and Means Committee, Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and the committee's ranking Republican, John Byrnes of Wisconsin.

Ziegler insisted that Nixon had not deliberately erred in saying that a 30 per cent net decrease in property taxes would result from passage of his revenue-sharing proposal.

ZIEGLER suggested that the thrust of Nixon's remarks, taken in total "context," was that revenue-sharing funds turned back to the cities by the federal government could, at best, arrest the rapid rate of increase in property taxes.

Even so, Nixon's heavy emphasis on revenue-sharing as a device for mitigating the impact of property taxes was regarded by most observers as a shift in tactics to win passage of the plan. Until now, mot administration now, most administration had expressed the hope that local governments would maintain their own tax efforts and use the new federal money for additional and badly-needed municipal services.

Nixon's general revenue sharing proposal would give cities and states $5 billion in unrestricted federal funds the first year, and more thereafter.

Nixon has also proposed an $11 billion program of "special" revenue-sharing, under which states and cities would be allowed to spend the funds with considerable freedom within six broad programs areas such as health, education and housing.

NIXON ARRIVED here Friday night to begin a long weekend, stretching through Monday, of work and rest at his bayside compound on Key Biscayne. He brought only a few aides, including H. R. Haldeman, his chief of staff and Henry A. Kissinger, assistant for national security affairs.

He was also accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and his long - time personal secretary, Rosemary Wood, who will help with the final drafting and typing of an address the President will give to the American Medical Association in Atlantic City on Tuesday.

The President and Mrs. Nixon will celebrate their 31st wedding anniversary on Monday.

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien said Saturday his party favors "full disclosure" of documents relating to United States involvement in Vietnam, as long as national security is not threatened.

But he said, "We favor full disclosure of all facts and documents, within the context of national security, pertaining to U.S. involvement in Vietnam. The public has a right to know."

Says auto prime cause of smog

By GILBERT BAILEY
Contributing Editor

It was Bob Chass' day before the Los Angeles County Environmental Control Committee hearings on air pollution.

Chass, head of the Los Angeles County Air Pollution Control District, had 35 pages of prepared testimony to give to the committee.

Some of what Chass had to say was echoed by others, but there were important differences in tone and substance of the testimony given by a state official and local medical experts.

Chass, of course, is the guy in charge, the guy who should and does know the most about the county's smog fight.

BOILED DOWN his testimony made the following major points:

—The automobile is the prime cause of smog conditions in the Los Angeles Basin while industrial and other stationary sources are pretty well controlled;

—Chances of a smog disaster are non-existent;

—Smog cannot be called a "critical" medical problem, but it does affect some people;

—The smog problem here will disappear between 1978 and 1983, if automobile exhaust controls are enforced;

—While further controls of industrial sources are being prepared, most non-automotive pollution is now controlled.

CHASS ISSUED two warnings:

First, he pointed out that in the past the auto industry has not met control standards;

Second, he noted a natural gas fuel crisis, which could force local power plants to use high sulfur fuels, a very serious pollution problem.

GILBERT BAILEY

Chass saw no reason to attack air pollution on a regional basis, pointing to coordinating programs already underway.

He did want California to get authority to test autos on an assemblyline basis.

To sum up, Chass saw the air pollution battle win here, at least in the next seven to 12 years, when the auto is controlled. He saw no clear and present emergency, and he believes the local air pollution control district—his district—is doing its job.

And he feels the flaws in air pollution control programs result from the actions or inactions of other governments — state and federal.

IN SOME RESPECTS Chass' testimony was echoed by George Taylor, representing the State Air Resources board.

Taylor agreed that control of auto pollution was key.

But he differed, slightly, but significantly in a couple of areas from what Chass had to say.

First, he emphasized state public health studies which show that smog does do medical damage to people, those with chronic heart and respiratory problems.

Second, he said s m o g would be with us, not so strong, but with us in 1990, in part due to emissions from industries.

After his testimony, he expressed great hopes that we would have only one or two smoggy days a year in 1990, but he based those hopes on stronger regulation of industry. Power needs were one source of additional pollution; according to his charts.

Finally, Taylor pointed out that "drastic changes" would have to be made to rid the area of smog, and that such changes could be better proposed by committees like the Los Angeles County Environmental Quality Control Committee than by such agencies as his and Chass'.

DR. HURLEY L. MOTLEY, chairman of the scientific advisory committee to the Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District, also differed some from Chass in his testimony.

Dr. Motley listed an air pollution disaster as a possibility, unlike Chass who said chances of such a disaster were "non-existant" or Taylor who said they were "unlikely." However, Dr. Motley said the possibilities were limited, but there.

Second, he stressed the long term effects of smog on health and made clearer the damage it does to the young, the elderly and the sick. Ten to 15 per cent of the 10 million population of the Los Angeles Basin suffers medical problems from smog, he estimated.

He called for drastic changes, control of growth, rapid transit and further controls.

And he said the basin's growth may be dictated more by its shortage of air than of water.

Coalition fights power firms for Snake River

By JERRY McGINN

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — Conservationist groups boasting more broad support than those who put the United States out of the supersonic transport business will launch a campaign June 26 to save the remaining free-flowing stretch of the Snake River from dams.

Nearly 30 dams impound the flow of the Snake and its tributaries in a thousand-mile staircase of slackwater reservoirs that, for some reason not really explained, cannot support fish life in numbers equal to before dam construction and discourages wildlife around them.

To be known as the "Coalition to Save the Snake," its champion in Congress will be Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., who has entered a bill in Congress to make the undammed portion of the Snake, the Hells Canyon area about 85 miles in length, a national wild river.

SUPPORTING Packwood will be the coalition, comprising an estimated 200 organizations nationwide headed by Trout Unlimited, the Sierra Club and reaching to local sportsmen's groups, historical societies and chambers of commerce.

The group also has the vocal support of former Interior Secretary Walter Hickel and hopes to enlist former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary John Gardner's Common Cause group and link up with Northern California's Committee of Two Million.

Hickel told an audience in Pocatello, Idaho, on April 24: "All dam construction should be halted on the Snake River. There are areas where the value is greater than just the commercial value, and I think the Snake River is one of those areas."

Heading up the lobby group will be Jack Hemingway, a recent appointee to the Idaho Fish and Game Commission, and perhaps better known as the eldest son of the late novelist, Ernest Hemingway. Coalition headquarters will be in Sun Valley, Idaho, where Hemingway lives.

THE RALLYING point for the group are the words expressed in 1967 by the U.S. Supreme Court when it rescinded a license to construct the high mountain sheep dam in the untamed stretch along the Idaho-Oregon border.

Appeals court to rule on war expose Monday merits of the constitutional deadlock pitting the security of the nation versus the freedom of the press. But he ordered the restraining order barring resumption of publication of The Times series continued until noon Monday. Said Kaufman:

"It is necessary that I, sitting as a single judge, do not by my sole action permit the case to become moot (dead) before other members of the court have had an opportunity to pass on the application or consider the issues raised."

"Ultimately the disposition of this case must be made by a panel of at least three judges, Kaufman said in court. He scheduled a Monday hearing.

In three installments beginning with last Sunday's editions, The Times printed articles and documents covering the Tonkin Gulf incident, the extension of bombing to North Vietnam, and the initial commitment of American combat ground troops to South Vietnam.

THE GOVERNMENT obtained from Gurfein a temporary ban on the series, arguing that publication "has prejudiced the defense interests of the U.S. and the publication of additional excerpts from the document . . . would further prejudice the defense interests of the U.S. and result in irreparable injury to the U.S."

The Times replied that Gurfein's order was "an unprecedented example of censorship . . . classic censorship," and labeled the government's action against it as "a unique one in the history of the nation."

Following Gurfein's refusal to grant the government the injunction it sought to back up the temporary ban, Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of The Times, said:

"Judge Gurfein's opinion reaffirms the basic principles on which a free press must be based. This reaffirmation is what The Times sought in the court proceedings, and we are heartened that the great constitutional issues involved have been faced and resolved in favor of the citizen's right to know."

FOLLOWING Kaufman's ruling The Times had no further comment, but a spokesman had said earlier the newspaper would abide by the court's decision.

The documents in question are from a secret Pentagon study of the origins of the Vietnam war. The study was initiated in 1967 by then-Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and runs to 7,000 pages.

Gurfein's ruling Saturday afternoon was based on a nine-hour hearing Friday in which he heard arguments.

"Without revealing the content of the testimony, suffice it to say that no cogent reasons were advanced as to why these documents except in the general framework of embarrassment . . . would vitally affect the security of the nation."

The judge said he thought the government had acted "in absolute good faith to protest its security and not as a means of suppressing dissident or contrary political opinion."

"THE ISSUE is narrower," he said, "as to whether and to what degree the alleged security of the United States may 'chill' the right of newspapers to publish.

"That the attempt by the government to restrain The Times is not an act of attempted precensorship as such is also made clear by the historic nature of the documents themselves.

"It has been publicly stated that the present administration had adopted a new policy with respect to Vietnam. Prior policy must, therefore, be considered as history rather than as an assertion of present policy the implementation of which could be seriously damaged by the publication of these documents."

Gurfein said that if the publication of the papers embarrasses the government "we must learn to live with it."

done Maintenance Center, 10616 S. Western Ave., Los Angeles, 751-2981, has limited treatment to 500 addicts. A spokesman said some 2,000 more are on a waiting list. Assembly Bill 502, co-authored by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, and Assembly Speaker Robert Moretti, D-San Francisco, would put additional money into the program and make the treatment available to more addicts. It has passed the Assembly and currently is stuck in the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

Pension

Q. My daughter has cerebral palsy and she will be 18 years old in November. She cannot work and it is difficult for me to support her since I make less than $100 a week. Is she eligible for any kind of a pension? W. B., Paramount.

A. When your daughter is 18, she may be eligible for Aid to the Totally Disabled even though she still lives with her parents. If she qualifies, she can receive financial assistance for basic needs. To apply, visit the Long Beach office of the county Department of Public Social Services at 1945 Long Beach Blvd.

Pro-Packard

Q. Several weeks ago I saw a segment of a TV news program which featured the owner of a Packard-Studebaker garage. He mentioned that there is a Packard owners club in this area, but gave no more information. I own a 1953 Packard and would like to join. Can ACTION LINE help? C. B., San Pedro.

A. Anyone who owns a Packard automobile, manufactured from 1899 to 1956, may join the Packards International Motor Car Club. Dues for the national organization are $10 and $6 for the Southern California Regional branch of the organization. To join, write Packards International, P.O. Box 1347, Costa Mesa, Calif. 92626. Fred Mauck, co-director of the local group and a member of the national board of directors, told ACTION LINE the club was formed in 1963, so that Packard owners could pool their resources and knowledge about Packard parts and service. There now are about 1500 members and 4800 cars in the club, with branches around the world. The Southern California group meets monthly for regional driving tours and in July will meet with other branches at Lake Arrowhead for this year's national tour. Members receive quarterly national and regional publications and monthly newsletters.

Willing

Q. My grandmother, who raised me, died in Pueblo, Colo. in 1969. Is there any way that I can get a copy of her will? When she died there were things that were to be left to me, and I'd like to know if they were. M. E., Long Beach.

A. Your grandmother did not leave a will, but some of her possessions are being saved for you. Her estate was settled by your attorney uncle with a Small Estate Transfer (a document used when there is no will and the estate is very small) in the District Court of Pueblo County. We called your uncle and he said you could help yourself to your grandmother's possessions if you would come for them. He added, "My mother didn't own anything valuable -- just a bunch of junk."

Worker finds oldest mummy accidentally

CAIRO (AP) — Haphazard digging by an illiterate worker has unearthed what is described as the oldest Pharaonic mummy in recorded history.

Amm Rifaie, the worker, mistakenly dug into a right-hand-side section of an old tomb at Sakkara and discovered a mummy 45 centuries old, according to an announcement by antiquities department officials.

The mummy escaped pillage by ancient Egyptian tomb robbers because it was buried in the "unsacred" right-hand-side place in the tomb. The sun god Ra had forbidden Egyptians to bury their embalmed bodies in right-hand-side places, according to an Egyptian belief.

BUT NOFRE (the beautiful), a renowned musician, had asked his wife Kinsu (the moon) to disregard the writs of Ra and bury him in a right-side spot within their tomb, apparently to mislead robbers. Kinsu herself was buried in the "sacred" left-side spot. Her mummy was never found in the tomb.

Nofre was a favorite entertainer to King Nie Ossen-Ra, according to inscriptions on the walls of the tomb. He was so handsome that the king called him Nofre and married him off to Kinsu.

The mummy was discovered intact, and on its sarcophagus hieroglyphic inscriptions read: "Musician Nofre. Died in the sixth year of the reign of King Nie Ossen-Ra. He died in the first months in the Nile flood season."

It was found wrapped in soft jute, with red and blue beads covering the chest and stomach. The gaily painted sarcophagus was decorated in red, yellow and blue colors.

'Curing' addicts

er relative asking for help," Stolzberg says. "Everyone who comes here is referred by another addict or finds out about it by himself.

"The public either doesn't know about our program or else doesn't understand it."

Stolzberg, who lives in Long Beach, is the man who has the most contact with the patients. Not only does he see that they get their daily dosage from one of the three nurses assigned to the clinic, but he tries to help them in other ways.

One way is by trying to get the patients jobs.

"There is a great resistance to hiring a person who has used heroin," Stolzberg says. "We have people who haven't taken heroin or shown any signs of it for months who still can't get jobs.

"MANY EMPLOYERS will fire a person if they find out he once used heroin, even though the employer has no other complaint about the person or his work."

An example is a former commercial artist who is now reduced to menial work, not because of heroin but because of methadone.

"I worked for nine years as a commercial artist," he says. "I worked for my last employer for two and a half years while 'using.' I would be absent for days at a time, my work suffered and I had all kinds of trouble with the other workers. In short, I was a lousy employe.

"Then I got on the methadone program. I started showing up every day, my work improved until it was as good as most and better than some of the others and I started to 'get along'.

"I made the mistake of telling one of the other artists that I was on the methadone program and the boss overheard me. Despite the fact that he was paying me less than some of the others and said he was satisfied with my work, he fired me."

HIS LAST JOB, from which he was also fired because he had been a "junkie," was cleaning out dog kennels.

Stolzberg also talks to parents, wives and husbands of patients, explaining the program, how it works and what it will and won't do, "when they will listen to me."

Stolzberg, with the help of a number of patient-volunteers, has just completed survey of how many of the clinic's 250 patients are working and what kind of work they can do.

"We need help from employers," Stolzberg says. "One of the things an ex-heroin addict needs is a way to make a legitimate living. They need the pride that comes with accomplishment.

"Most of them want to work and are good workers if they're given a chance."

A sampling of the patients on a typical day at the clinic shows:

— A 26-year-old clothing salesman who started on heroin when he was 16 in New York, kicked the habit when he came out here seven years ago and then picked it up again when his marriage started to break up.

"I was 'clean' for two years until I started having troubles at home and it all started all over again. I was the 53rd person on the program here. I'm going to make it now but my only problem is getting a job."

— A 22-year-old housewife who started in high school when a friend offered her a fix and she liked it. She gave up the drug several times but always came back to it "when things went wrong."

"I still have what's left of my marriage and, with the help of methadone, I think I can piece it back together again."

Those are typical cases — and typical people. You can't tell by looking at them any difference between the people lined up at the cashier's stand in the supermarket.

Dr. Kramer estimates that there are 10,000 people in about 50 methadone programs throughout the United States.

"About 80 per cent of the patients who have started remain in the program," Dr. Kramer says in a recent article in "California Medicine."

"OF THIS 80 per cent, most have resumed productive lives. The remainder, though unemployed, no longer engage in illicit enterprise."

Considering that it costs about $1,000 to $2,000 for the first year and $500 to $1,000 a year thereafter to maintain a patient, the savings in crime prevention, law enforcement and incarceration are cited as making it worthwhile.

Although some patients may be able to pay for their treatment most of them cannot, so almost all of the programs must be funded by public funds.

The Orange County Medical Center, which sponsors the Orange County program, is asking for $1 million to finance next year's drug prevention program. About $600,000 of this, if allocated, is expected to be spent on the methadone program.

Summing up the program, Dr. Kramer concluded:

"Methadone maintenance is not perfect, nor is it ideal. It is merely the most widely applicable and useful measure we now have to control the problem."

sensus for Crutchfield's observation, ". . . the administration has the power . . . and everything we do comes under their jurisdiction, and they have veto power over student government. This is one of the things I would like to see changed."

At Poly, Hillbrand said, "the situation is the same, I think . . . we (in student government) are concerned not so much with political things, but moral things."

"We gained what one might call another student right last month," put in Lakewood's Miss Broadbent —"the right to circulate petitions without approval of the principal but with approval of student government."

Apathy this year emerged at Millikan, Jordan and Wilson, Hammer, Clark and Crutchfield suggested, after pet projects became lost in an administrative maze.

Red tape is "partly necessary because of the multitude of work," said Miss Broadbent, "but it actually slows down any progress.'

"If the administration is for something, it gets done right away," noted Hillbrand. "If they're not, well . . ."

Hammer was the first to note that the best way to achieve goals "is to work through the system."

"The most direct method," he said, "is getting in touch with the person who can really help you—the principal."

Added Miss Broadbent: "If the administration favors something, it will help students in any way it can. But if it is opposed to something, it will do what it can to oppose." Her solution apparently was to actively seek compromise between differing viewpoints.

The role of student government was of primary concern to the five.

Wilson's Crutchfield noted that "we got a little power this year—for the first time—when they (administration) came out with a list telling us what we could do, what we couldn't do, where we could act in an advisory role, where we could be decision makers, and those areas we couldn't even touch."

With certain reservations, "I thought it was good because they were setting down guidelines to tell us what we could and couldn't do."

BUT THIS is a "circular thing," Crutchfield said. "When (an action) like this is publicized, people look at it and see how little student government can do; consequently at the last election only 24 per cent of the student body showed up to vote.

"The administration looks at this and says 'This government only represents 24 per cent of the student body, we can't give it any power.' Students see this and they don't vote and it just keeps going around and around."

Admitting there are areas in which student government lacks power, Miss Broadbent suggested "there is a whole list of things we could deal with — some educational things, library and cafeteria service."

Millikan's Hammer said regular student government's authority may be diluted by a new advisory group "that makes recommendations when the principal asks advice from students."

THIS HAS raised, he said, "a very important question: has our authority been taken away by allowing our principal to go for advice just to the student advisory council and not to the actual student council elected from the student body? It is something to think about."

Each of the five could list goals he or she believed were achieved in the recent school year.

One of these at Lakewood, Miss Broadbent said, involved teacher evaluation. "Several questionnaires are going out now to find out what students think makes a good teacher; after this information has been combined, it will be given to teachers so they will know which (teaching) techniques are effective with students."

MORE IMPORTANTLY, Miss Broadbent said, this check showed that "student complaints could go through the system and be dealt with and be solved. I thought that was a good accomplishment."

The group seemingly felt "the campus drug scene has been blown all out of proportion" by its elders in the community.

"I HAVE always been amused by the (public) interest," said Crutchfield, "because I think most people know there are no drugs on campus. Of course, there are people from Wilson who are going to use drugs off-campus, and because they are students there, you could say Wilson has a drug problem.

"No one is going to bring drugs on-campus . . .' he reiterated.

Clark agreed. "At Jordan, there isn't the big a drug problem since my sophomore year. The big problem is right next door at the (Houghton) park. As far as drugs being on-campus, no one is that silly."

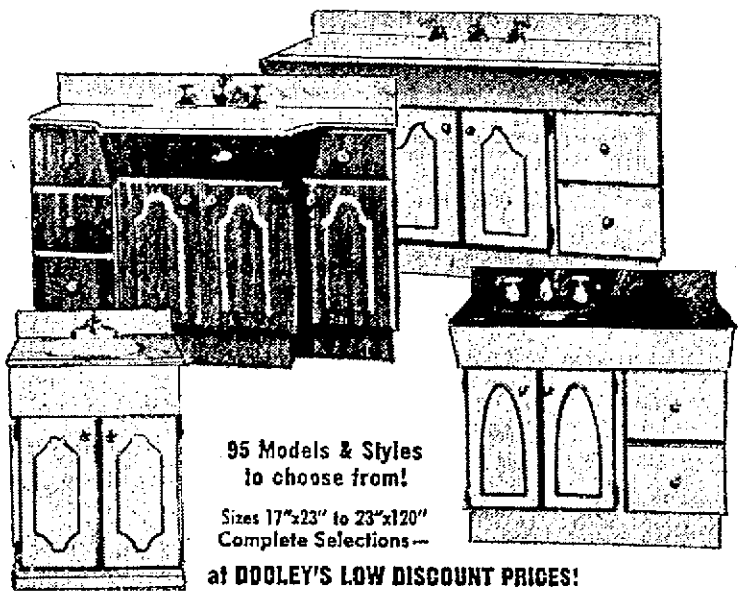

Hammer said "I think the drug problem on-campus has been blown way up out of proportion because (unless) I have led a sheltered life, I have never yet seen a marijuana cigarette on (Millikan's) campus."

The schools, suggested Miss Broadbent, ". . . should not say all those who sell drugs are villains, but, rather, give (students) an honest impression of what drugs are like from people who are on drugs — not necessarily those who have quit, but are still on them."

WHAT is Long Beach's most impressive visual experience -- the distinctive feature most likely to draw exclamations from the first-time viewer?

There are a number of candidates — the view from atop Signal Hill, the Queen Mary, the beach that dwarfs Waikiki, the rows of rocking oil pumpers in the harbor.

Any might get the nod. But when I take visitors around town, one view that is a sure-fire gasp-producer is the look at the Long Beach Marina from the Davies Bridge.

IT'S TOO bad there isn't a turnout on the bridge where car parties could pause. Traffic is pretty heavy there, and ordinarily one gets only a fleeting glimpse over the rail.

But all those boats, 1830 of them in varied colors and sizes, make a picture and a terrific impression.

Larry McDowell, the Marina boss, says there are marinas with more boats, but nowhere can one see them all at once so well as the Long Beach Marina boats are seen from the bridge.

Like me, he has had visitors who asked to be taken back, or left off on the bridge for picture-taking.

It's a great spread and a great show. If you've got visitors looking over the town, don't forget it.

THE 1830 boats, as is obvious, completely fill the available slips.

And there's a waiting list of 8000!

Most of these will be waiting a long time. Turnover at the Marina is small, 10 or so a month. That hardly makes a dent in the long list of applicants for slips.

The craft range in length from 110 feet — there's one that size there now — down to 18 feet. The average is about 35 feet.

Slip renters live near and far. While it's a municipal marina, it was financed by tidelands funds, which are state trust funds. That means slip rentals can't be restricted to residents of the city.

The Marina fits perfectly the designated trust uses, and it has never gotten even a raised eyebrow from State Legislative Analyst Alan Post.

SOME items for the "do-you-ever-write-anything-good" file:

Members of the Key Clubs at Millikan, Lakewood and Mayfair high schools served as "door bell ringers" in the Mental Health Assn. fund drive. Millikan was tops with more than $100.

Staff and students at Southern California Military Academy collected $200 (their own contributions) for Becky White of Carson to attend the Wheelchair Olympics at N.Y. The 19-year-old double amputee justified the faith of these and other supporters, won four events.

Joe Cosgrove, the Atlantic Ave. hamburger king, and Ray Shaw sponsored a trip to Big Bear for 20 members of the Beachcomber Center for the Handicapped. They had a big time as guests of Marrone's Last Frontier.

Long Beachers going to Arrowhead the other day report that a contingent of Boy Scouts was on the road, handing motorists litter bags and asking them to help keep the forests clean and free from fire.

And if YOU want to do a good deed, find an electric typewriter for the Camp Fire Girls offices, 707 E. Carson. Mrs. Pat Kern of Leisure World is a volunteer typist there and they need the electric machine for a four-carbon job Pat is doing.

Giving 10 million in Southland a taste of water

By TERRY SATTORIA
Staff Writer

It requires 45 gigantic pumps to suck water from the Colorado River and lift it more than 1360 feet over the mountains; 242 miles of canal, siphons and tunnels carry it through other mountains; three reservoirs store it and 321 miles of high-voltage power lines supply the energy at a cost of $6 million-a-year so:

Ten million Southern Californians can turn a faucet and get a glass of water.

That mundane feat, a twist of the wrist to turn a valve on a water tap, is accomplished by two-year-olds. But the incredible aspect is how the water ever reaches the valve.

If it weren't for a project begun in 1931 and completed in 1941, there might be 80 per cent fewer tappets to turn.

THE COMPARISON may not be perfect but since 80 per cent of all the water that pours from the countless spigots in every household and industrial plant comes from the Colorado River, it's not impossible to imagine a coastal plain not so green and habitable, prosperous and dynamic.

Because of the water, Southern California is like no other place on earth; the economy that thrives here is unsurpassed by any other area with similar geography.

It gets here via the Colorado River Aqueduct, an awesome tribute to engineering ingenuity and the lifeline to 4600-square miles of urban sprawl and farm land that reaches from Ventura to San Diego.

A billion gallons-a-day rushes at 135,000 gallons-a-second to quench the "thirst" of water-hungry people who daily require 170 gallons each for their existence.

The journey from the Colorado River to a water glass in Long Beach, or any of its suburbs, takes about 72 hours and the attention of 1450 men and women of the Metropolitan Water District who must assure the flow of this vital commodity is not interrupted.

DURING the 242-mile trip the water makes five giant steps up, churns through 92 miles of mountains and spends some time in water treatment plants.

What follows depends on the water's destination, but generally it is sent from the MWD's treatment plants to local water retailers who may process the water further before it is delivered to the home.

The first step in the journey from the Colorado River to a glass in a household begins a mile above Parker Dam at Lake Havasu.

Completed in 1938, Parker Dam creates the 45-mile-long lake which covers 39-square miles and holds 600,000 acre-feet (325,900 gallons in an acre-foot) of usable water.

At the Whitsett Intake Pumping Plant, 1800 cubic feet of water a second is sucked out of the lake and five 9,000-volt electric motors lift it 291 feet to start the first leg of its journey.

Two miles west of the intake pumps the water is raised from Gene Wash Reservoir to Copper Basin Reservoir which is 1,037 feet above sea level. From Lake Havasu, 450 feet above sea level, the water has been lifted a total of 587 feet.

From Copper Basin it enters a seven - mile - long tunnel through Whipple Mountain to begin a 67-mile journey across the desert to the next lift pumps at Iron Mountain.

EXCEPT for when the water has to be lifted over high mountains, the water is propelled by gravity at about six-miles-an-hour. The drop engineered into the aqueduct is from 12 to 14 inches per mile.

Iron Mountain pumps push the water up to 1,047 feet and again it flows by gravity for 30 miles to Eagle Mountain where it has to be lifted once more to 1,404 feet above sea level.

Fifteen more miles west at Julian Hinds Pump Lift the water makes a final giant step up to 1,907 feet from where it requires no assistance except gravity to reach its destination, the coastal plain of Southern California.

Elevation of the water requires 45 immense electric motors that consume $6-million worth of electricity per year. The power is generated at Hoover and Parker Dams.

ABOUT 117 MILES downhill the water is collected and stored at Lake Mathews Terminal Reservoir. From Lake Mathews, near Riverside, 1,390 feet above sea level, the water can be delivered anywhere in the Los Angeles Basin by gravity flow. A part of the water from Colorado River is diverted to the San Diego area before it reaches Lake Mathews. The rest is poured into Los Angeles Basin.

The basin's water supply comes from two processing plants; the Robert B. Deimer Filtration Plant at Yorba Linda serves Long Beach, its surrounding suburbs and Orange County.

F. E. Weymouth Softening and Filtration Plant, at La Verne serves the northern part of the basin and Ventura.

From these two plants, where the water is chemically treated to kill bacteria and algae and filtered to remove solids, it is fed into the more than 460 miles of distribution lines which supply agencies within the Metropolitan Water District.

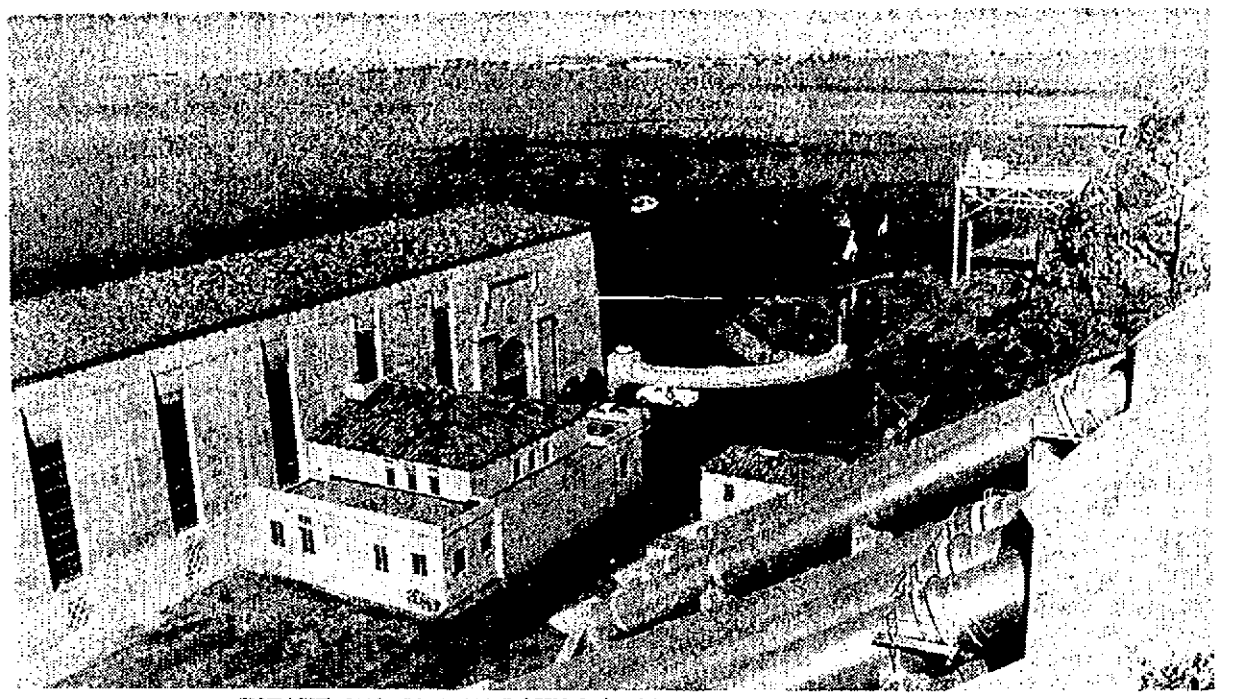

The MWD was created a public corporation in 1928 under a statute which provided "a means for groups of cities and certain other groups of governmental subdivisions, such as water districts, not necessarily contiguous, to join together to develop water supplies."

WITHIN THE MWD boundaries are more than 120 incorporated cities. Long Beach was one of the "original thirteen cities" which constituted the district when its citizens approved the sale of $200 million worth of bonds to build the aqueduct. Actual construction began in 1933.

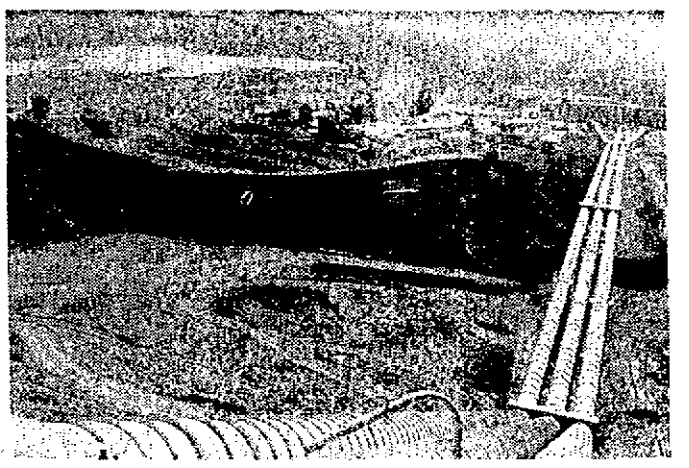

Today there are 26 member agencies which consist of 12 water districts and one county water authority in addition to the original members. The member agencies buy the water from the MWD at wholesale prices and resell it to consumers at retail cost.

Long Beach buys 60 per cent of its water from the MWD at a cost of $53 an acre-foot for softened and filtered water. It cost $49 an acre-foot for water that's been filtered only.

In 1970 Long Beach residents used 59.6 million gallons a day for a total of 66,821 acre feet. 38,000 acre-feet came from the Colorado, the rest from local wells.

The budget surgeon's art

The city of Long Beach—like a lot of its citizens—has been retrenching lately, making do with less and hoping that good times will soon return.

This is reflected in the 1971-72 budget proposals of City Manager John Mansell.

With sales tax, auto license fee and other revenues down, Mansell began to cut city expenses long before budget-making time rolled around. He put a freeze on most city hiring, cut capital projects and asked each city department head to plan for a 5 per cent cut in his operating budget for next year.

Even with $6.5 million in economies, Mansell's proposed budget—still subject to change by the city council—is $1,016,699 higher than last year. That happened because needed employe pay raises, the rising cost of goods and the high costs of the policemen and firemen's pension system will cost the city $5,593,450 extra in the coming fiscal year.

IF THE BUDGET reflects fiscal retrenchment, it does not reflect retrenchment of imagination or of concern for the needs of the people of Long Beach.

Plans are proceeding for a civic center complex to be built around a new city hall and new library. Construction is expected to begin in the coming year on part of the Pacific Terrace Center convention complex. A study of ways to revitalize the deteriorated areas of Long Beach will be completed during the 1971-72 fiscal year.

The budget problems will not halt construction of a center adjacent to the Martin Luther King Jr. Park to provide medical, child care and community social services. Nor will budget problems call a halt to needed park improvements or to plans to replace bridges in the Naples island area.

From Mansell's viewpoint, one of the brightest spots in the city's planning is the Queen Mary, which has been pulling in crowds of tourists and discharging pleased friends of the ship and of Long Beach. Mansell says he expects the Queen's drawing power to be greatly enhanced this fall when Jacques Yves Cousteau's Living Sea Museum will open aboard the craft.

THERE ARE FISCAL clouds over the Queen Mary and rumblings of thunder from Sacramento, but Mansell says no storm is near and there may be none at all.

Some state officials allege that some expenditures of tidelands oil revenue charged to the museum were improper because they benefited non-museum areas of the ship. Mansell notes that no one has provided a detailed breakdown of what such allegedly illegal expenditures were. Even if the state sues to recover some of the tidelands oil expenditures, Mansell argues that the litigation would stretch out for several years before any conceivable impact on city coffers would be felt.

If the Queen is the most spectacular of the city's shoreline developments, it is not the only one. Seaport Village, an unusually attractive and pleasantly nautical shopping area, was opened this year. Shoreline Drive was extended through Pacific Terrace to Chestnut Avenue during the current year, and the city plans to extend it to a point west of Pine Avenue during the next fiscal year. And the studies are being made of possible locations for additional marinas.

STRINGENT ECONOMIES alone cannot enable the city to cope with the adverse effects on municipal revenue of the current state and national recession. Last year city tax revenues were $2.3 million under predictions. Mansell expects the economy to rebound in 1971-72, but even projecting a city revenue increase, it will be necessary to raise the city tax rate by 8½ cents on each $100 of assessed valuation to balance the budget.

That will mean about a 5 per cent increase in the city portion of your tax bill.

If that seems high, city officials note that Chicago anticipates a 17½ per cent tax hike, that payroll taxes are in the works for Newark and San Francisco, that the city of Los Angeles plans several new taxes to deal with an expected revenue deficit of $50 million to $70 million, that Anaheim plans a 5 per cent admissions tax and a 1 per cent increase in room tax and that, for all of Governor Reagan's economies, the state of California will have to raise taxes.

IN LIGHT of all that, and of even worse crises in other cities and states, we endorse Mansell's assessment of the proposed Long Beach tax hike as "a modest increase."

The budget is modest, too, but without being timid. It should enable the city to meet its immediate needs while preparing to face the challenges of the future.

Telling it (selectively) like it is

Republicans may be whistling in the romper room in their late claims of rapport with the young. But the argument is moot if the voting kids shun elections as they have in the past. It won't matter which party has them.

It must be difficult for the GOP to whistle and sing when the polls show youth opting overwhelmingly for the Democratic party.

However, the Republican State Central Committee found a way. They prospected this month in "selected areas in San Diego County." County committee members found that even without a major registration drive, the Republican party "has attracted a strong following among responsible young people in areas where the most likely young Republican resides."

Bob Houser

POLITICAL EDITOR

That's something like saying if you're going out to shoot fish, a barrel is not too bad a spot.

SURVEYORS found about 330 persons in the 16 to 24-year-old age group. This youth registration showed 57 Republicans (43 per cent), 48 Democrats (36 per cent) and 28 others (21 per cent). Thus, the GOP had a nine-vote edge in the sample selected as most hospitable for young Republican life.

Of the 197 youth who had not registered, the survey asked which way they leaned. Fifteen leaned Republican, 25 leaned Democratic and 157 were undecided or leaned elsewhere. Thus a 10 voter edge for Democrats plus a whopping unknown quantity.

State GOP Chairman Putnam Livermore started the whistling three months ago with this profundo chirp: "The Republican party will profit more from a lower voting age than the Democrats."

BACHELOR Livermore noted that "Republicans, not the Democrats, have fought to hold the line on taxes, and this is important to an 18 or 19-year-old struggling to support his young family on a moderate income."

It seems somehow difficult to envision this vast constituency of 18 and 19-year-old family men, those whose 16 and 17-year-old marital adventures started while Republicans Max Rafferty and Ronald Reagan were saying they had yet to be convinced of the wisdom of lowering the voting age.

This is not to say that Livermore does not make the best of the material he has to argue with. For example he points out that "the Republicans, not the Democrats, have been bringing Americans home from Vietnam."

REFLECTED against dissembling Democrats of the recent past, that argument may indeed appeal to young people seeking a party sanctuary. But it ignores the congressional lineup on the issue of proposed war-ending timetables. The thrust there is overwhelmingly Democratic.

This is not meant to be a judgment that the Democratic push for a Vietnam timetable is right, merely that it represents a position that youth subscribes to.

Chairman Livermore says the new younger voters will make their decisions on the basis of the individual candidate and then plays his aces. His party, he notes, won six out of nine open legislative races last year with articulate young candidates — one of them in a district that had only 30 per cent GOP registration.

Well, there it is. Livermore, the hopeful and perceptive analyst of youth's yearnings — or the greatest whistler since Elmo Tanner.

Pentagon papers tell sordid story

Voltaire once wrote: "History is little else than a picture of human crimes and misfortunes."

How apt this is, as the American people examine the McNamara study of our involvement in Vietnam revealed by the New York Times.

This sordid story of deception and intrigue by our nation's leaders is indeed "a picture of human crimes and misfortunes." It confirms our bad faith dating back to the Geneva Accords of 1954 when the Eisenhower administration prevented free elections in Vietnam because it was feared the late Ho Chi Minh would prevail.

JOHN S. KNIGHT
Editorial chairman, Knight Newspapers

IT IS ALSO well known that in 1954 then Vice President Nixon supported the use of tactical nuclear weapons and a commitment of U.S. troops to save the French, a view wisely rejected by President Eisenhower upon advice from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, his Army chief of staff.

The Kennedy years which are covered in the yet unpublished fourth installment of the Times series provide further revelations which Thomas B. Ross of the Chicago Sun-Times says "may prove acutely embarrassing to a number of prominent citizens who now declare themselves doves."

Following President Kennedy's assassination, President Johnson inherited the choice of escalating the war or withdrawing.

A WISER MAN than Lyndon Johnson might also have listened to Gen. Ridgway, who had previously warned President Eisenhower that a successful military intervention would require several hundred thousand U.S. troops.

But Johnson listened instead to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor who called for "a carefully orchestrated bombing attack on North Vietnam."

To me, the most tragic and reprehensible figure in the Vietnam folly is former President Johnson. Although his 1964 presidential campaign was a song of peace, the Pentagon report shows that he was actually committed to the "wider war" he said he intended to avoid.

In effect, Mr. Johnson lied to the American people and to the Congress of the United States. Even as he talked about our role in furnishing advice, giving counsel and helping South Vietnam with equipment, he was girding the nation for a massive encounter.

INTERESTING, TOO, is the attitude of the Nixon administration, which regards publication of the Pentagon document as a threat to our national security. One might have thought that President Nixon would stand aside as the reputations of those who seek to defeat him are being tarnished.

But then, the Nixon administration has its own secret deals in Laos as revealed by Sen. Stuart Symington a long time ago. Moreover, the President has always taken a hard line on the Indochina war roughly comparable to the views of Lyndon Johnson.

Attempts to censor the news are not acceptable in an undeclared war. During World War II the press agreed to a voluntary code of censorship in matters involving national security. It worked well through mutual cooperation between government and the press, with the Bureau of Censorship rejecting many requests by the military which had nothing to do with the nation's security.

In 1967, Gen. William C. Westmoreland told me at his Saigon headquarters that we should have censorship at once. My reply was that since the United States had declared no state of national emergency, censorship could not be invoked.

CONGRESS AND THE people were conned into believing the Johnson administration's version of the Tonkin Gulf attacks while saying nothing of Allied raids against North Vietnam only hours before.

I find the New York Times decision to publish the McNamara study a courageous act of journalism. It provides convincing evidence that our elected leaders dragged this nation into this war despite their pious protestations to the contrary.

So the thuth is out. Long live the truth!

Courts block deportation of New Orleans mobster

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The government's unsuccessful struggle to deport alleged Cosa Nostra mobster Carlos Marcello stands as a monumental example of our court system's inability to deal with well-financed racketeers.

A major goal of the Justice Department's New Orleans strike force is the deportation of Marcello, who after 20 years continues to be the Mr. Big of the underworld in Louisiana.

BUT FOR THOSE assigned to the job, there is nothing more frustrating than a review of the record of how this 60-year-old racketeer has been able to block action in the courts.

On May 1, 1951, Senator Estes Kefauver's crime committee called Marcello a vicious criminal and urged that he be deported as an undesirable alien. In February 1953 the federal court entered the deportation order.

Marcello, born in Tunis of Sicilian parents, has never become a citizen and has spent his whole life in crime.

Conviction in 1930 for robbery and assault brought a four-year prison term and Marcello entered a plea of guilty in 1938 to a charge of peddling narcotics. He served a one-year term in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., on the later charge.

THE KEFAUVER committee found he was involved in a wide range of rackets, including gambling, illegal liquor activities, and it was hinted that he and a brother were involved in running narcotics.

Clark Mollenhoff

Marcello took the fifth amendment before the Kefauver committee with regard to questioning on his narcotics activities.

Yet, as of June 1971, Marcello hasn't yet been deported. In fact, it appears the courts now take the position that dismissal of a charge of unlawful re-entry in the 1960's bars the Nixon administration from reinstituting that charge.

Over a period of the last 20 years, the U.S. Supreme Court has on three occasions reached down to stay deportation orders, reduce his bond or make some inquiry about the length of a prison term.

When Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy came into office, he was highly critical of the stalling tactics used by Marcello's attorney.

The Justice Department learned friends of Marcello had been in a village in Guatemala, arranging for a false birth certificate for Marcello.

KENNEDY SET IN motion actions that resulted in Marcello being arrested, handcuffed, and taken to the New Orleans airport on April 4, 1961, and placed aboard an immigration service plane to fly to Guatemala. However, Guatemala officials also ordered him out.

In June 1961, Marcello's attorney appeared before a federal judge in Shreveport, La., admitted Marcello had re-entered the United States and asked a court order to block deportation.

Simultaneously, Marcello launched several attacks on his 1938 narcotics conviction on grounds he was not represented by counsel when he entered his plea of guilty.

The government finally brought Marcello to trial on the birth certificate charge in November 1963. The jury found him innocent of the charge of conspiring to defraud the United States by obtaining a fraudulent birth certificate in Guatemala.

But then Marcello was indicted on charges he and others tried to bribe jurors. Also, he was indicted on a charge of conspiracy to murder the key government witness — Carl Irving Noll — at the false documents trial.

HE AVOIDED GOING to trial through the summer of 1965. On Aug. 9, 1965, Rudolph L. Heifler, one member of the jury that acquitted Marcello in 1963, testified he had accepted $1,000 to vote not guilty. But another jury voted acquittal of Marcello on the jury tampering charges.

In the aftermath of that trial, the Justice Department dropped the last two criminal charges against Marcello, including the charge that he sought the murder of Noll and the perjury charge growing out of the deportation matter. Earlier, the Justice Department had dropped the illegal re-entry charge.

In September 1966, Marcello was arrested at the New Orleans airport after he took a wild swing at FBI agent Patrick O'Connor. Marcello was charged with assault on a federal officer. After the first trial ended in a hung jury, the second jury found him guilty and sentenced Marcello to a two-year prison term. It was the first time he was found guilty by a jury, since the earlier convictions followed pleas of guilty.

Marcello appealed his 1966 conviction to the Supreme Court, and Associate Justice Hugo Black questioned the fairness of the handling of the case by the FBI. A few days after Black's criticism, Federal Judge John V. Singleton reduced Marcello's prison term to six months.

This time the Fifth Circuit Chief Judge John R. Brown refused to give him a stay of execution, but a plea of poor health by the 60-year-old mobster resulted in his spending most of the term in the hospital at Springfield, Mo.

Carlos Marcello walked out of the prison hospital with no charges pending against him, and the courts have rejected all Justice Department efforts to reinstitute illegal re-entry charges because of the statute of limitation.

Lessons in a popentole

Samuel I. Hayakawa

In thinking about communication with children, we have to start with the nonverbal communication that is accomplished through holding, touching, caressing them — putting food in their mouths, playing pattycake, rocking them to sleep. To miss these experiences is to fail to lay the foundations for the verbal and abstract communications of later life.

After children learn to talk there is the matter of interpretation. Small children are recent immigrants in our midst. They have trouble both in understanding and using language. The reader must have noticed many times, as I have, mothers in supermarkets slapping their children for disregarding orders which, as any outside observer can tell, the children simply have not understood.

I ONCE READ of a 3-year-old in Chicago who fell out of an upper-story window and was killed. The mother, who was out of the house at the time, was incredulous as well as grief-stricken. "I always spanked him for going near the open window," she said. As a matter of fact she had just spanked him for the same offense and had felt so badly about it that she went to get him some ice cream when the tragedy happened. One cannot help wondering if the child ever understood what he was spanked for. The idea that he did not understand — could hardly be expected to understand at his age — apparently never occurred to the mother.

When we learn language, we don't just learn words. We learn at the same time the rules of language. This fact is simply proved. Little children often use such past tenses as "I runned all the way to the park and swimmed in the pool."

"Runned" and "swimmed", are words children do not learn from hearing others. They make them up by analogy from other past tense forms they have heard. This means that they learn not just words, but also the rules for making, as in this example, past tense forms.

THE TROUBLE is that the English language does not have a consistent set of rules for the past tense, for spelling or for anything else. When the child proves himself more logical than the English language, he is criticized or laughed at. It isn't fair!

Once when my daughter was little, I was at my typewriter and she was on the floor drawing pictures. Suddenly she said, "I want to see the popentole."

I went on typing — then stopped and said, "What?"

She said, "I want to see the popentole."

"Did you say popentole?"

I was puzzled, but in a few moments I figured it out. "You mean like last Sunday, you want to go to Lincoln Park and see the totempole?"

"Yes," she said.

SOMETHING MANY OF us overlook is the tremendous value of message-acknowledgement. Not "I agree (or disagree) with you," nor "That's an excellent (or silly) idea," but simply the acknowledgement, "I know you're around. I heard what you said." What was so revealing about this incident is that she sat singing to herself for another 20 minutes while she played, obviously happy that she had communicated her message.

A common naive assumption is that the way to communicate is to tell 'em, then tell 'em again, and if they still don't mind, hit 'em.

In Willard Motley's novel, "Knock on Any Door," the central character Nick ends up in the death cell convicted of murder after a long career of delinquency and crime. In the background of this career are intense hatred and fear of his father.

The father is shaken by his son's terrible fate. "I can't understand it," the father says. "I told him and told him and told him, and I always whipped him when he did wrong."

BUT THE BOY IN the death cell doesn't understand the source of his troubles any more than the father does. He gives his aunt, who calls on him in his death cell, the following advice for bringing up his newborn nephew:

"Don't let what happened to me happen to him, Aunt Rosa. Beat the hell out of him, Aunt Rosa. See that he does right."

So this whole absurd, self-defeating pattern of reliance upon violence as the ultimate method of communication is passed on from generation to generation.

Way back there with all the horses

Sterling Bemis

"What did you do, Dad," my older son asked me, "when you were a kid and there was no television? You know, way back there with the horses?"

The question came up some years ago when sons were still asking fathers about things. My first impulse was to answer: "Well, son, reckon the first thing I did every day was to cut a working pony out of the remuda with my lariat and go out and ride line. My favorite was a pinto. Half-Pint, I called him. Sure was frisky on a cold morning. But after he sunfished a few times and tried to scrape me off against the barb wire, Half-Pint would settle down. He was small, but tough as a burr and could run the hind-quarters off'n an Arabian.

"Why, I mind the time . . ."

But while I was pondering how much I should lie to my son, Freddie came whistling down the driveway and he and my son went over to the drugstore and it was after 11 when the boy came home, just in time for the late show on TV . . .

. . . I REALLY never owned a pony although I tried twenty or so times to win one by drawing three straight lines on an ad in American Boy magazine. If you could make a corral for the image of the pony in this ad by drawing three straight lines without — well it's just as complicated to explain as it was to draw and I never did get it right and never knew any boy who did. So far as I know the free pony is still waiting in old issues of American Boy to be claimed by some lucky kid. (You'd know him if you ever saw him, because from what it showed in the magazine ad the pony was three-quarters of an inch long and half-an-inch high with a white star on his forehead.)

But there were lots of horses around when I was a boy — mighty Percherons that hauled moving vans and icewagons, husky steeds pulling the smoking chemical engine of Fire Station No. 1 up the grade on 12th Street with a heart-throbbing clang-clang-clang! And the bony nag that trotted all day in front of the light rig of Pfeiff's Meat Market, steered by an equally bony delivery boy.

EVEN THOUGH you never own one, just being around horses is a pleasant way for a boy to pass the time of day. When my grandparents lived in the Brick House at York, Bapa (which was as close as I could come to Grandpa at the time) owned a trotter and used to go hell-for-leather racing in his sulky on the dusty roads on the perimeter of town.

My Uncle Gene told me that one day when he was a lad he climbed up in the loft of the barn and tamped a pipe full of Kentucky burley and lighted it and was puffing up a blue storm when he suddenly discovered Bapa standing on the top of the ladder.

"Son," Bapa said sternly, "there are two reasons you shouldn't be doing that. First, you might set the barn on fire. And second, that's MY pipe."

This shows that just being in a place where a horse lives can be educational.

One of the reasons it took so long for me to run an errand in the wholesale district of my home town was that there was a blacksmith's shop on Seventh Street. The Johnny Carson Show doesn't hold a candle with standing in the doorway of a smoky shop and watching the smithy working up a fine white heat in the forge with the bellows. Then he would snake out with long tongs a glowing red horseshoe and hammer it to size in a shower of sparks on the anvil. When he had an audience the smithy would beat out an extra tattoo with his hammer on the anvil between whacks on the shoe. The finale of the concert came when the blacksmith dipped the shoe in a barrel of cold water and the steam erupted. After that he backed cautiously up to the horse, cinched the naked hoof up between his legs and nailed on the new shoe. Sometimes he whittled into the quick of the hoof with his knife and I flinched more than the horse did.

THE FIRST TIME I went riding on anything bigger than a pony was the summer I was 11 and went out to Uncle Will Houston's farm north of York. Uncle Will asked me if I knew how to ride and I made my first mistake. I said, "Some." Then I complicated it by trying to look modest.

Uncle Will brought out a spirited pony and I discovered he had a beautiful easy canter that was very comfortable as long as we were heading away from the farm. It was different on the way back. Uncle Will had neglected to tell me the pony had been ridden by a sandhill cowboy most of the summer and the cowboy had taught Billy a few tricks.

Billy cantered along nicely until he reached the bridge a half mile from the main gate to the farm. Without any warning, he reared up. When he came down he circled three or four times and took off to set a new track record. I don't know how we got through the gate because Billy thought the reason I was yelling was to make him go faster.

Uncle Will caught up with us about ten feet in front of the barn and grabbed the bridle. Otherwise I might have gone down in history as the Second Headless Horseman of Sleepy Hollow.

SOME YEARS LATER I had a second interesting experience at Fort Crook. On a Sunday afternoon I decided to go for a trot and when the stable boy asked me if I had had any experience I said, "Some." This proved I hadn't learned anything important in nine years.

He put me up on a mount with twitching ears. As soon as we got out the gate the horse leaped into a wild gallop. I have always regretted not having a stop-watch along. To this day there are people who doubt we did the mile in 39 seconds.

It was only when we got back and I was lathered more than the horse that the stable boy said, "I fergot something. I fergot to tell you this here is a polo pony. Major Smith ain't exercised him fer a week."

The next time I went riding was at Estes Park and by that time I was almost married and a lot smarter and when I was asked if I knew my way around horses I said, "Give me the slowest horse you've got. I'm a tenderfoot."

That one backed me up against a barb wire fence and then galloped all the way through the village to the barn.

The stable boy said reprovingly, "You shouldn't run a horse that hard at this altitude."

"It was his idea," I said. "I told you I was a tenderfoot and wanted your slowest horse."

"Yeah," he said with a slow grin. "I thought you was kiddin'."

We learned a lot, even before TV.

L.A.C. Says By L.A. COLLINS SR.

How good a father are you being?

"American Men Are Lousy Fathers" is the title of a Reader's Digest article we cut out several years ago. It may seem strange we refer to it on this Father's Day, when we are supposed to sing the praises of fathers. But it does seem appropriate to us that this be a day for fathers to analyze themselves and see how they measure up to all the honors and gifts bestowed upon them.

The Digest article points out that one of the greatest causes of child delinquency might well be charged to the fact that fathers take so little time to be alone with their children. It tells of a test of 300 boys of 7th and 8th grades. They kept careful records of the time they were alone with their fathers during a two-week period. The average was found to be only minutes a week — not even an hour — that the average boy was alone with his father during the week.

IT IS POINTED out that young girls get their first and lasting impressions of manhood and the conduct of the male from fathers. If the father is so busy he cannot discuss things with daughter and is brusk or always on the run to the office, or golf course, that is the impression she will hold of man. The impression on the minds of young boys is even more important. If Dad is not interested in what his son does, then it is natural the boy will get the impression that the father does not much care what the boy does.

There are 168 hours in a week. The average man works about 40 hours and may spend another 15 hours in commuting, lunch time and overtime. That takes up 55 hours. If he sleeps eight hours a night that takes up another 56 hours. These activities take 111 hours a week, leaving the average man 57 hours for relaxation, and time with his family. But the records show a very small portion of this is spent as a companion of the children.

We pay sincere tribute to the many fathers we know who do take their responsibilities seriously. We know of others who regularly take their children on outings where they can enjoy nature together. But we know many others who consider the family as something to be with only where there is nothing else to do. Sundays are for golf — rather than a day with the family.

IT IS TRAGIC that these fathers cannot realize how much they are missing — and of what they are depriving their children. The days of a child pass very quickly. Before you know it he is grown to manhood and you wonder how it happened without your knowing about it.

It is then many fathers feel the desolation that comes with wasted opportunities. It is then the parent knows what he has lost by not being a better father. But it is too late — the impression he has made is established and it may rule the attitude of the child throughout his future life.

If this seems a strange approach for us to take on Father's Day I can only suggest that each father analyze his own efforts to be a companion to his children. We know many fine men who are busy in providing a living for the family and who spend many hours in civic work and on the relaxing golf courses and other sports. They are so busy they fail to give of themselves to be better fathers. It seems a good time on this Father's Day to suggest that we all make a pledge that we will be better fathers during the coming year.

WORK CENTERS HELP

Youth job outlook in suburbs dismal

By LARRY LYNCH
Staff Writer

Summer jobs for students in suburban communities are about as scarce as short haircuts this year.

A few jobs are available to be grabbed off, however, by the young person with the right combination of a neat appearance, a way to get around, perseverance, and luck.

Where there are federal programs operating, those young persons whose parents are unemployed are placed first.

In Compton, Downey, Lakewood, Norwalk and Paramount the youth job market is institutionalized.

That means there is an agency serving as a go between for the young person who wants work and the businessman or homeowner who has something he wants done.

The student who uses one of these services will find himself one of many vying for an unusually limited number of openings.

Here is a run-down on the situation in the five communites.

COMPTON and PARAMOUNT — The state office of Human Resources Development in Compton (the agency that used to be the State Employment Office) operates a youth opportunities desk for Compton and Paramount.

Mrs. Lucille Kuns runs the desk. She has 500 students listed in her files and expects anothe 250 applications when school is out.

The number of openings so far "are a little drop in the bucket," she says. She has had less than a hundred openings to fill, and all are now taken.

In her area all of the jobs go to young persons from disadvantaged families. "Ninty per cent of our applicants are in this category. But this year, when the need is greater than it has been, we have only two thirds as many openings," she says.

DONWEY — Mrs. Doris Colby has operated tthe Downey Youth Employment Service for seven years under the auspices of the ctiy.

Operated on a year-round basis, the Downey office takes applications from Downey youth only. Through May Mrs. Colby had placed 386 young persons and had received 950 applications. Last year at that time she had placed 397 of 770 applicants.

When students apply for a job, success depends a good deal "on appearance, and let's face it, those with a means of transporation have a lot better chance of finding something," Mrs. Colby says.

LAKEWOOD — Wayne C. Johnson working out of the Lakewood city offices also places youth year-around. He has mailed return cards to 850 businessmen in Lakewood three times in qucik succession, seeking a listing of summer openings.

"We have gotten 25 responses, which is good compared with previous years," he says, admitting at the same time that this response is far from what is needed.

Coming up is a mailing to all homeowners in the city, seeking part-time domestic work.

"I expect most of our jobs will be in the domestic area this year," Johnson says. "Frankly the prospects are pretty grim unless you are sharp. But a lot depends on what you want to do. If you come in and want to mow lawns, and smoebody has just called in about needing their lawn mowed, then you are in luck.

"What I am saying, I guess, is that the kids are going to have to set their sights a little lower this year than usual."

Johnson doesn't worry if some young persons think certain jobs are beneath them. There is always someone else who will take the assignment, he says.

Last year his office handled about 900 applications and 400 placements. By 300 to 500 active applications on file.

NORWALK — The Norwalk Chamber of Commerce has initiated a youth job service this year for the first time.

So far the chamber has taken 200 applications and, by canvassing local employers has come up with ten positions.

These openings, all filled, included work as a stock boy, dishwasher, clerk typist, waitress-cook, and in sales, delivery, cleaning, and ironing clothes.

There is no local program in Bellflower, which like Artesia, is served out of the Norwalk office of the state Human Resources Development agency. The Long Beach office of the same agency is servicing Hawaiian Gardens; some federal jobs are available for disadvantaged youth of that community (primarily those whose parents are unemployed) through the youth opportunities desk at the Long Beach office.

Knotts open Wayne theater

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Walter and Cordelia Knott, who lifted themselves out of the depression in the 1930s, celebrated their 60th anniversary Saturday night by opening a 2,150-seat theater dedicated to John Wayne.

He in turn premiered his newest film, "Big Jake," the 185th picture he has made in 43 years in the movies.

Gov. Ronald Reagan showed up at Knott's Berry Farm to compliment the Knotts and his old friend "Duke" Wayne, with whom he sometimes played in his Hollywood movie days.

RICHARD BOONE and Maureen O'Hara, Wayne's costars in "Big Jake," were among dozens of other Hollywood celebrities on deck for the celebration.

President Richard Nixon, who knew the Knotts when he first ran for Congress from Whittier, sent a congratulatory telegram, which "the Duke" read from the theater stage.

Knott told the audience that he and his wife decided to name the theater after John Wayne because he is a longtime family friend and "we consider him to be a famous American as well as a mighty good actor."

"THE DUKE'S" newest film is in the classic tradition, which has made him famous and which made him the top Hollywood box office draw for almost 20 years.

Wayne's eight-year-old son, John Ethan Wayne, who makes his acting debut in the film, is kidnaped to Mexico. "Big Jake" follows and shoots it out in the same hacienda courtyard in which Pancho Villa and his men staged a classic battle more than 30 years ago.

The premiere showing of "Big Jake" was a benefit for the Orange county chapters of the Assistance Leagues.

Earlier in the afternoon, singer Glen Campbell and "The Duke" teamed up to film some television shorts in the berry farm's Calico Square.

L.B. education program cut to be partly restored

A $1-million, three-part program partially restoring Long Beach's fiscally-pared educational program has been decided upon by district administrators.

Decisions to beef-up programs drastically cut since 1968 were made within the Board of Education's policy of not increasing school taxes more than 35 cents this year, The Independent, Press-Telegram was told.

Supt. W. Odie Wright already has informed trustees that a 35-cent increase "probably will be necessary" to meet the district's most pressing needs next year. Residents approved a total $1.17 hike, to be spread out over several years, in February's Save Our Schools vote.

The list of partial restorations—using about 10 cents of the 35 cents—calls for:

—A full six-course high school program this fall for every student desiring it;

—Immediate replacement of wornout or used-up instructional equipment and supplies;

—A stepped-up pace in critical maintenance of the district's physical plant.

"These decisions were made on the basis of what we thought the public and staff would want," said Associate Supt. Vernon A. Hinze.

"They were made following discussions with the Teachers Association of Long Beach," he added.

Pay and fringe benefits hikes for teachers and non-certificated employes were not included in this package. And further program improvements, chiefly in junior-high-school-level compensatory education for the disadvantaged, later may be asked.

Salary discussions are continuing in the Certificated (teaching) Employes Council and in a special Board of Education-administration-personnel commission committee formed to review non-teaching pay.

Final board actions are expected within the month.

Included within the $1.17 increase approved by the electorate were 22-cents for Long Beach City College. Preliminary budget estimates, however, indicate that because of less construction and other factors, next year's actual levy wil be the same or slightly less than in 1970-71.

HINZE SAID "it would be desirable to add another half-million-dollars" to the restoration program but that no decision can be made until four presently unknown factors are clarified this summer. These are:

The district's actual assessed valuation, to be determined about Aug. 1 how much financial aid will be forthcoming from Sacramento; status of federal programs, including aid to districts with large numbers of U.S. workers, and the final salary packages.

In addition to junior high compensatory programs, he said, portions of this $500,000 should go to hire more teachers' aides and to buy additional materials and equipment.

Forty-Niner editor wins scholarship

Ernie Torres, sports editor of the Forty-Niner, campus daily newspaper at California State College at Long Beach, has been selected to receive a $500 scholarship.

The selection was made by Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism fraternity.

Torres received the first Ken Inouye Memorial Scholarship. Funds for this were donated by the widow and friends of Inouye, a former United Press International newsman who was a Lockheed-California public relations representative when he was killed in an auto crash in May 1970.

FOR COMMERCIAL BOATS

Automatic fish pole bared

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

The Japanese have invented an automatic fishing pole that takes most of the work out of boating a 40-pound skipjack.

The National Marine Fisheries Service reports the mechanized fishing gear developed last year is proving successful in trials by bait boats.

The U.S. agency reported that with proper chumming, fishing with the automatic gear is highly effective — so effective, in fact, it has concerned the Federation of Japan Tuna Fisheries Cooperative.

The co-op is considering how widespread use of ths mechanized poles would effect the wage scale of commercial fishermen.

The mechanical fisherman developed by the Suzuki Ironworks is reported to produce "amazing results" on small boats previously considered unsuitable for mechanized fishing.

A normal installation consists of four to eight units, but one new 384-ton vessel scheduled for launching in October will be rigged with 16 units.

The automatic poles are said to be able to lift up albacore of 35-45 pounds in the same manner as poling skipjack by hand.

A barbless hook is attached to the end of a line secured to a fiberglass pole. When a fish hits the hook, a sensing device feels the fish "fighting" and jerks the fish out of the water and onto the deck of the boat. When the fish lands on deck the weight on the line is released, triggering a hydraulically operated device to flip the line and hook back into the water.

One hydraulic unit controls four separate poles.

Fishermen aboard the San Pedro-based albacore fleet still fish the "old fashioned" way — by hand.

Computers helping those with breathing disorders

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Ondine, a mythical water nymph, is in deep trouble.

The computers of modern medical science are out to do her in.

Specifically, they're trying to help doctors do something about her tongue.

Not to mention a few other problems which have nothing to do with her.

But first: about Ondine. Legend has it that she punished her mortal husband by depriving him of the ability to breathe automatically. Consequently on falling asleep, he died, being unable to remember to breathe.

OF COURSE there never was an Ondine. Unfortunately there really is an "Ondine's curse" — a disease characterized by a failure of automatic breathing function, especially during sleep. Doctors also call the disorder "primary hypoventilation syndrome."

There are two such patients right now at Harbor General Hospital, Torrance. (They have to be assisted by mechanical respirators at night.) And they, plus many other patients with a variety of breathing disorders, are being studied with the help of a new computer system.

The computer that serves Harbor General's respiratory division is a work horse.

First, it's curricular. It handles the regular business of the hospital's respiratory function laboratory, with a teletypewriter clacking out details of a patient's pulmonary condition before you can catch your breath.

SECOND, it's extracurricular. It also processes all the data fed to it by the hospital's exercise physiology laboratory. It can analyze information on a breath-by-breath basis.

Dr. Karlman Wasserman, chief of the respiratory disease division, says the computer can measure 16 respiratory and cardiovascular functions simultaneously.

Using electronic sensors, a stationary bicycle device and an instrment called a flowmeter (into which a patient breathes), medical investigators in Dr. Wasserman's division are attempting to zero in on the mechanisms of human breathing.

These mechanisms are now poorly understood.

Already there is progress. Dr. Wasserman, who also is an associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, says that research has nullified some of the existing concepts about how man breathes. An investigators are now pursuing new leads, new ideas.

WHEN DOCTORS finally get a true understanding of breathing mechanisms, they will be better able to deal with the problem of shortness of breath — one of the most common symptons reported in a chest or heart clinic.

"No single test can describe a patient's total respiratory function," Dr. Wasserman says. "For an adequate understanding of a patient, all aspects (of breathing) must be tested."

Use of the computer eliminates the possibility of calculation errors by a technician. Also eliminated: the chance of typist erro.

"This is the way medicine will operate in the future," Dr. Wasserman says. "It is only a matter of time."

And it is only a matter of time, it appears, until accelerated research catches up with that breathtaking goddess Ondine.

It's enough to make Ondine curse.

Arsonists to work for your benefit

By CHUCK CHEATHAM
Staff Writer

Some of Long Beach's finest arsonists will ply their trade in this city starting Monday.

And when they have finished, your life and property will be safer.

THE FIRES will be set by firemen in four condemned buildings at 109 and 125 Magnolia Ave. and 515 and 525 W. First St.

The buildings, to be torn down to make way for an expanded and new civic center, range from ancient wooden bungalows to a three story brick and stucco complex.

Fire Chief Tullio J. Rizzo said all of the city's 419 firemen would participate in the exercises.

Not only will various types of fire be started and quickly extinguished but the training sessions will also include inspection and fire prevention preplanning and rescue operations and ventilation.

The training program will be under the direction of Battalion Chief Lee A. Gallagher assisted by Captains Douglas S. Sandeman and Craig R. Halker.

THE TRAINING sessions will continue until Sept. 1, Chief Rizzo said and emphasized the fires would be small and at all times under strict control.

"Valuable experience will be gained from these exercises and will permit us to do our job of fighting fires and saving life and property in an even more efficient manner," Chief Rizzo declared.

Certificates for health graduates

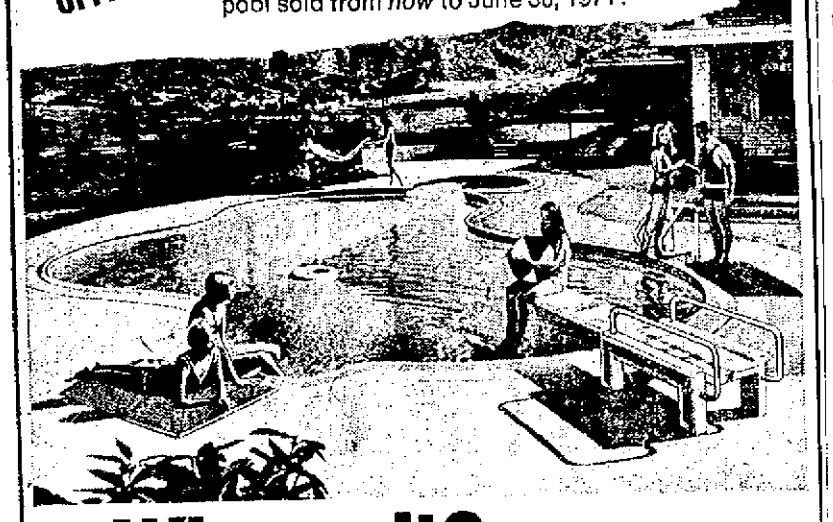

Certificates and pins were awarded this week to 189 graduates of the Long Beach City College nursing and health technologies programs.

Graduates included registered and vocational nurses as well as dental and medical assistants. The ceremoney marked the first graduation at LBCC of inhalation therapists and radiology technicians.

Dr. Wiley D. Garner, president of the college, introduced the graduates, and the pins were presented by Martha O. Drage, the school's Dean of health and technologies.

The above is only a partial description of the terms and provisions of National Casualty Company policy form HM 6417.

Now, when an accident will take every cent you can put your hands on, you are offered this astounding new reader insurance service by

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

No age limits. No physical examination. $27.50 the full year.

You are due for a shock if you have to go to the hospital because of an accident.

The cost will be immense.

Even if you already have insurance, you will need every cent you can put your hands on.

The $100.00 a day hospital room is already here in many places. Hospital costs have doubled in the last five years. They will double again in the next five years.

And they are only part of what you will have to pay.

That is the reason for this policy. It helps you with money when you need all the money help you can get.

A service of your newspaper

It is brought to you by your home-delivered newspaper. And like newspaper-sponsored reader insurance, it is priced far below the usual cost for comparable coverage. This policy costs $27.50 a year. Or $5 for two months. Compare.

1. More than often you will find lesser coverage to be priced at twice as much.
2. To the best of our knowledge, there is no other buy of comparable value available to you today.
3. If you spend a single day in the hospital next year because of an accident you will be returned more than the premium payment in policy benefits.

This policy pays you $33.33 a day for every day you are in the hospital. $1,000.00 a month. And that benefit is paid directly to you, not to the doctor, not to the hospital, in tax-free cash, which you can spend as you wish. And payments are made no matter what other insurance you have or collect.

But that's only the beginning.

When you return home from the hospital you will be paid $500.00 a month for the same length of time you were in the hospital.

In other words, if you were in the hospital for 13 days and were paid $433.29 in hospital benefit, you will be paid another $216.70 in what we call recuperative benefit, money you will need to meet those many expenses which always come with being laid up.

You will be paid this recuperative benefit for the total period even if you return to work. There are no restrictions —payment is for the same length of time you were in the hospital.

When you reach Medicare age all benefits are reduced by one-half. But even then they can be an important money extra to you.

This policy also carries important death provisions, ranging from $2,000.00 to as much as $10,000.00.

$10,000.00 death benefit

The first day you are insured there is a provision for a $4,000.00 payment for accidental death while a fare-paying passenger on an airplane, bus or taxi, or other common carrier, while driving or riding in an automobile or truck, or as a pedestrian. This adds 15% (or $600.00) each year that your policy is in force up to $10,000.00.

Please use the coupon/application now.

It asks only for your name, address and age. There are no age limits, there is no physical examination. Only the application. Please fill it out now and mail to the address shown. Your policy will be returned to you promptly.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Why this large benefit for hospital?
Hospital costs are sky-rocketing. They are several times what they were only a few years ago. The $100.00 a day hospital bill is already here in many places. Your expenses will be high. Even if you have other hospital insurance, you will need money. This policy will pay the $1,000.00 a month benefit directly to you to use as you wish. $1,000.00 a month can be a mighty big cushion. And, after you leave the hospital there's the recuperative benefit ... $500.00 a month for a period of time equal to the time you were in the hospital.

Must I be disabled to collect the recuperative benefit?
No. The recuperative benefit is paid to you for the same length of time as you are paid the hospitalization benefit. It is paid when you leave the hospital ... even if you are then ready to go back to work and do so. The hospitalization benefit is $1,000.00 a month, the recuperative benefit is $500.00 a month. This again is money to help you when you need all the money help you can get.

I already have newspaper reader insurance. Is this the same as that?
Like the policy offered by your newspaper and which many readers already have, this policy is a reader service of your newspaper. However, the premium is larger and the benefits much larger. Designed by National Casualty Company to help you meet today's enormous cost of being hurt. You may add this coverage and keep your reader policy (which includes provisions for X-ray, ambulance, surgical, etc., as well as hospital). You may have both, (and collect from both) or you may have either one.

Is the advertised premium an "introductory" price?
No, this is the price you can expect to pay as long as your policy is in force. It is simply an unusual buy sponsored by your newspaper.

Would I have to be in hospital for a month to be paid?
No, you are paid if you are hospitalized even for a single day. The single day benefit for hospital is $33.33. The single day benefit for recuperative is $16.67.

Can people under Medicare get this insurance?
They not only can but it would be very wise for them to do so. There are no age limits. After Medicare age, the benefits are reduced by one-half but they are still sizable and can be an important money extra since Medicare benefits were not designed to pay all the bills.

There surely must be some restrictions on the type of accident that this policy covers?
The policy applies 24 hours a day, practically anywhere (it is worldwide) at home, work, school, on the highway or in the street. There are reasonable exclusions. It will not apply to motorcycles, accidents in a shaft mine, in riding in or driving or testing any automobile in a race or speed contest, or on a testing ground, in warfare or suicide.

Suppose I have more than one accident a year. Will I be paid?
You will be paid as often as you are hurt in an accident and must be hospitalized, even a dozen times a year. You can never lose this policy because of number or amount of claims you make.

Hurry! Send us this.

Constitution no help for marijuana farmer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — The Minnesota Constitution provides that "any person may sell or peddle the products of the farm or garden occupied and cultivated by him without obtaining a license therefore."

The provision, a judge ruled Friday, does not apply to those who cultivate and peddle marijuana, as an enterprising defendant had suggested in his defense.

EARL WILSON

People not too busy to notice Omar

NEW YORK — "I'm not working any more in the spring and summer, Omar Sharif said.

"It's hard to work while you're thinking of other people swimming and lying on the beaches."

The Egyptian glamor boy was giving me a walking interview on Fifth Avenue and West 57th Street. We wondered how many hastening New Yorkers would recognize him at 1:30 p.m. on a Friday when their thoughts probably were of getting away for the weekend. People are concentrating as they rush to and from offices, and do not look about much. Nevertheless, we had gone but half a block when a girl gasped, "Oh, there's Omar Sharif Could I have your autograph?"

He gave it courteously to the girl who said, "I hope I didn't distrub you."

"Not at all," he smiled. But I suspect he began to wonder whether this walking interview was such a brilliant idea from his standpoint.

He had made a picture, "The Horseman," in Afghanistan, living in tents, with wind machines for air conditioners.

"In this picture we play a game they call the most violent game in the world, and it is. You're on horseback and you are holding a live goat. The other horsemen try to take the goat, from you and that's where it gets violent."

"Did you win?"

"Well, we followed the script," he said — and just then a young male fan leaped at him for an autograph. Autograph fans often don't have anything to write on. That meant, me surrendering some notebook papaer. The autograph fan thought it was such a good idea that he said:

"Could I have another one?"

SHARIF pleasantly signed a second time. This gave me the idea of taking Sharif's picture signing. Unhappily, my camera didn't clock, though I kept trying. By this time, Sharif definitely and undeniably had decided the walking interview as not a brilliant idea. But he was trapped by a lot of crazy people led by the No. 1 Crazy, me.

"I hear you're cutting down on bridge playing to look after your stable of horses," I said as we started on.

"Yes, I have about 10 horses, and we've won three rather big races. I have a new apartment I built in the Bois de Boulogne in Paris and it's close to all the tracks. There's more money in horses than in bridge. Oh, yes, of course —".

Now it was a boy and girl with a camera who wanted his autograph and would I mind taking a picture of them with Omar Sharif? As I did so, with Sharif being outwardly pleasant about it all, I felt I noticed a scowl spreading under his mustache, doubtless refeleting his opinion of the walking interview.

"It's so hot, I wonder if we could find a sidewalk cafe and get a drink," I said.

That meant more walking and more autograph fans including a lady with a dog whose chain got entangled around Sharif's feet. We walked — and walked — and walked — and came to the St. Moritz Cafe de la Paix sidewalk cafe.

And it was closed!

"I'm afraid I have to go to CBS for an interview," Sharif said. I thought he jumped with perhaps undue haste into a taxi and I wondered if he might have wanted to get the hell away from his autograph fans and me.

The walking interview was over. "Good luck to you with your racing stable," I called to him but he seemed not to hear as the taxi shot away.

'The Dutchman'—overpowering dramatic impact

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

A clearly superior display of ensemble acting is evidenced by Candy Cantwell and Tom Moses in Salt and Pepper Workshop's first dramatic presentation, LeRoi Jones' "The Dutchman."

The total dramatic impact is almost overpowering — and credit director Art Reynolds and designer Bob Scofield for much of this.

A small proscenium stage at 2222 Olive Ave. becomes for an hour a dirty, stinking subway train speeding through a sultry August night while black and white protagonists play out their author-ordained roles to a bloody end.

With this kind of talent available, we can only await with eagerness what Salt and Pepper will do in its next upward step.

Playwright Jones deals always with strong racial themes—and "The Dutchman" is no exception. It could be critiqued, I suppose, on many symbolic levels. The girl, Lula, might represent, for instance, one overview of white America as a whole; and Clay, a black bourgeosie, could epitomize his entire, often - oppressed race.

A simpler, more straightforward interpretation, I think, is that she represents a "white racist" syndrome described today by sober sociologists and flaming orators alike. Seemingly without racial prejudice, she underneath it all, is a soul sister to the old Ku Klux Klan.

Jones clearly tells us that her type is commonplace today in America. Whether one accepts or rejects that generalization in no way weakens the precise accuracy of Miss Cantwell's portrayal of a very-real type.

Clay, on the other hand, is a rising member of the black middle-class, complete with neat suit and haircut, attache case and copy of "Life" magazine. Underneath this veneer raw anger remains, awaiting something or someone to strip away the protective coatings of civilization.

And that's what happens during the long subway ride.

Lula sexually teases him, ridicules his manhood, taunts him for being an "Uncle Tom Wooly-head." Clay admirably keeps his cool until an inevitable breaking point.

Stars also score in real estate

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Among the ranch and farmland owners in the West are motion picture and television stars who buy real estate as an investment and/or a place to retire.

One of the largest single land holders in Southern California is Bob Hope who owns thousands of acres of expensive real estate.

His pal, Bing Crosby is not far behind with ranches in Northern California and parcels in the San Francisco area.

Jimmy Stewart has a rambling cattle ranch only two hours from Los Angeles. Randolph Scott, long absent from the screen, has become a millionaire many times over through his real estate negotiations.

In the San Luis Obispo area Frank Sinatra, Lucille Ball, Fred Astaire and Robert Mitchum have extensive holdings. Mitchum runs a horse ranch on his property.

SOME OF THE stars simply buy from 100 to tens of thousands of acres and all them to lie fallow, selling them as prices rise.

Others make a profit on the land or lease it to farmers.

Jim Nabors owns an immense farm in the fertile Coachella Valley south of Palm Springs which produces bountiful cash crops.

Buddy Ebsen is another television star who has turned his video earnings into real estate.

Taxes are deductible. And so far as is known the FCC, networks, agencies and sponsors can't cancel a parcel of ground.

Robert Stack owns acreage in the Sacramento area, including a game preserve and duck club.

Eve Arden and her husband, Brooks West, own farmland an hour's drive from downtown Hollywood. They live on the ranch in preference to inhaling Los Angeles smog.

Jim Arness of Gunsmoke" has more than a thousand acres of prime ranch country one range of mountains beyond the San Fernando Valley. His father ramroads the horses and cattle for him.

JOEL McCREA was one of the first to discover the financial potential of Southern California real estate. His dealings in land dwarf his considerable earnings as an actor over the years.

Back in 1931 McCrea bought 1,600 acres of land in neighboring Ventura County for $12,500. Over the years he has sold off the land for various developments for more than $5 million. He owns additional acreage even more valuable.

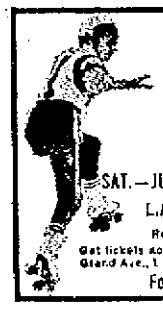

Three-time Oscar Winner Walter Brennen has a sprawling cattle ranch in Oregon run by his son.

Closer to home Brennen lives on a citrus ranch and also raises turkeys with profitable sales.

. . . . YOU SHOULD !!!!

PRICES . . . . . ARE COMPETITIVELY LOWER THAN YOU WILL SEE FOR A LONG TIME. ECONOMISTS EXPECT THEM TO BEGIN RISING AGAIN.

INTEREST RATES . . . . . ARE THE BEST WE HAVE SEEN IN YEARS BUT DON'T EXPECT THEM TO REMAIN LOW THROUGHOUT 1971. AN INCREASE IS EXPECTED.

BUILDING COST . . . . . CONTINUE TO RISE WHICH WILL PUSH PRICES EVEN HIGHER--RIGHT NOW THE SUPPLY IS HOLDING PRICES FIRM.

SELECTION . . . . . THERE'S MORE VALUE TODAY FOR YOUR REAL ESTATE DOLLAR THAN YOU WILL SEE FOR A LONG TIME.

RENT??? . . . . . ONLY IF YOUR STAY IS TEMPORARY AND YOU DON'T NEED TAX SAVINGS--(IT'S LIKE PAYING 100% INTEREST ON VALUE OF PROPERTY YOU OCCUPY AND IT'S NOT TAX DEDUCTABLE).

Simons, 21, leads Nicklaus by two

Combined News Services

ARDMORE, Pa. — Jim Simons, bidding to become the first amateur in 38 years to win golf's most treasured prize, upset the predictions of all the experts — including himself — to shoot a sizzling 5-under-par 65 Saturday and grab a two-stroke lead in the U.S. Open championship with one round to go.

Simons, 21, the runnerup in the British Amateur just two weeks ago, wielded a hot putter to blast out seven birdies and two bogeys in a near-record performance that left him at 207, three under par, after 54 holes.

Tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus, a two-time Open winner, was the only other player to complete the third round with a sub-par score after shooting a 2-under-par 68 for a 209 total.

Before the tournament started, both Simons and Nicklaus said they didn't expect either the young players or the amateurs to have much of a chance over the short, but tricky, east course at Merion Golf Club where, it was agreed, thinking well was a prerequisite to scoring well.

"I can't," Simmons said in response to a question whether an Amateur could win the Open. "But I think Lanny Wadkins would have a chance if he's playing well and gets the breaks."

Said Nicklaus:

"I just don't feel that the young players will do well. It takes experience to win on this type of course. Many of the players who have come on the tour in the last five years haven't experienced a course such as this one."

Wadkins, the U.S. Amateur champion and a teammate of Simons at Wake Forest, was among the leaders for the first round-and-a-half, but he shot his second 75 Saturday and was 11 strokes off Simons' pace, at 218.

The 65 posted by Simons was just one stroke off the course and the Open record, set by Lee Mackey in 1950, when Ben Hogan won the tournament. Tommy Jacobs (1964) and Rives McBee (1966) also shot 64s in the Open.

Bobby Nichols, with a 69 Saturday, and Bob Erickson, the co-leader at the end of the second round, with a 72, were at even-par 210.

Jim Colbert, who was tied with Erickson after 36 holes, shot a 73 Saturday and was at 211, along with Lee Trevino, who had a 69, and George Archer, who shot 70.

Ken Still, Larry Hinson and Bruce Devlin were at 212 while Ray Floyd, with a 67, headed five players at 213 and Arnold Palmer was in a group of five at 214. Palmer had a 73 Saturday.

"I wasn't too nervous today," Simons said. "My experiences in the British Amateur and with the Walker Cup team helped me concentrate. The first couple of days, I was a little nervous but today I settled down."

Simons, who lives in Butler, Pa., had made only two birdies in the first two rounds when he hit 30 of 36 greens in regulation but still shot 71-71—142.

"I felt good because I was hitting the ball well," he said. "I figured it was just a matter of time until the 12-to-14 foot putts started dropping."

They started dropping on the second hole Saturday where Simons made a 12-foot birdie putt. He made another 12-footer for a birdie at No. 6, but his approach shot at No. 8 just 15 inches from the hole and made that for a birdie, then hit a 3-wood nine feet from the pin at the 179-

Fregosi blasts Walsh, Royals

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

KANSAS CITY — Jim Fregosi took the offensive Saturday — both on and off the field.

His targets were Dick Walsh and the Kansas City Royals.

Credit Fregosi with a pair of bulls-eyes.

Prior to lashing a double and three-run homer that helped subdue the Kansas City Royals, 7-4, Fregosi issued a damning indictment of general manager Walsh, flatly accusing the Angel executive of shirking his duty in the Alex Johnson Case.

Fregosi's defendant was Lefty Phillips, the beleaguered manager.

"Lefty has had a tough job and he has not received the backing he should have through all of this," Fregosi declared.

"The manager should run what's going on on the field. I don't think he has gotten what he should have gotten from our general manager, Dick Walsh," Fregosi charged during a radio interview with Kansas City broadcaster Buddy Blattner, the former voice of the Angels.

"When you have a problem you have to get rid of it right away, even if it means sitting on somebody," Fregosi said. "Little things keep building up until they become serious so it's best to nip it in the bud, so to speak."

The chief problem, Fregosi revealed much to the surprise of no one, is Alex Johnson.

"I'm surprised we didn't trade Alex because he's been a problem. I don't think he's right but he seems to think he is."

Following a two-error performance by their left fielder Friday night, the Angel pitching staff called a caucus to discuss the situation.

"I've had enough of him," one was quoted as saying.

Johnson committed another error afield Saturday but he atoned for that with what proved to be a game-winning homer that snapped a 4-4 tie in the sixth inning. Johnson also singled home the first Angel run in the opening round with a bullet single to left following a Fregosi double.

Not surprisingly, the Angel shortstop, after his vocal support for Phillips, politely removed himself as a candidate to become his successor should Phillips be relieved of his job.

"I don't want to manage at this point," Fregosi said. "I want to get my playing days out of the way first and I think I have a few years left."

When asked to diagnose the Angel dilemma, Fregosi said it was a series of "personality conflicts."

"We haven't learned to get along with each other and play together. But I thought they would alleviate the problem."

The Angels temporarily eased their suffering Saturday with a 10-hit attack which featured six extra-base hits. Andy Messersmith, who shed 10 pounds working eight innings in

Alex 'just a good boy,' says father

MIAMI (AP) — Alex Johnson, the Angel with the tarnished halo, is really "one of the best guys in the world . . . quiet . . . just a good boy."

That's what Alex' father thinks of his hard-hitting son, the eye of the sports typhoon that has battered the American League baseball team.

JOHNSON

"This morning I told him to just do his job and keep his mouth shut," Arthur Johnson, father of Alex, told the Miami News in a telephone interview from his home in Detroit.

"I told him there's no future with a pick and a shovel."

Alex, according to his dad, replied that he "can keep quiet so long as people are fair with me. So far, people haven't been fair."

Even Gene Autry, the onetime good-guy movie cowboy who now is chairman of the Angels' board of directors, accused Johnson of being the troublemaker — the only troublemaker — on the disturbed team.

Manager Lefty Phillips said much the same, denying reports that many of the Angels were carrying guns in preparation for a possible clubhouse war.

"I think Commissioner Bowie Kuhn should go in and find the root of this matter before somebody gets hurt," said the elder Johnson, "Alex has always been a peaceful boy — he's not going to carry any weapon. So Alex might be the one who gets hurt . . . that's the way it works, isn't it?"

Johnson said his slugging offspring "was brought up to be very religious and refined . . . and to try to be nice to everybody. He's very devoted to his home and very shy."

ALEX, THE FATHER said, believes he has been mistreated in the Angels' camp.

"Although he was always a mild-mannered boy," said Johnson, "he'd never let anybody take advantage of him."

Sutton fires 1-hitter, now Dodger ace

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Three weeks ago the Dodgers' Don Sutton was worried because his elbow was ailing and so was his won-lost record.

Today he's worried only about the elbow.

Saturday night at Dodger Stadium, Sutton twirled a sparkling one-hit, 4-0 shutout victory over the Houston Astros and the record now is 6-6.

In winning five of his last six starts, Sutton has relied more on fast balls and sliders than curve balls, once his favorite pitch and also the source of the tender elbow that plagued him the first month of the season.

In doing so, he's become the hottest pitcher among the Dodgers' starters as the O'Malleys continue to apply the heat to San Francisco in the National League West. The Dodgers have won seven of their last eight games and 16 of 21 to remain 5½ games back of the Giants in the Western Division.

"When you're in a pennant race — and, believe me, we're in one — you get a little bit more excited every time you walk out there," Sutton said following his masterpiece, the second time he's hurled a one-hitter in the majors.

The last time was two years ago against San Francisco and Sutton says that one was much more polished.

"Let's face it," he said Saturday, "we made the plays tonight. Bill Buckner made a big play, Wes Parker made two REAL big ones and Bobby Valentine did, too. Even Sutton! On the last out of the game."

The only hit the Astros managed came in the sixth when Jimmy Wynn doubled past the diving Rich Allen in leftfield.

"I got my glove on it but that's all," Richie said, a bit disgusted. "It's a shame but it's a game of inches.

"I couldn't see the ball for the lights when it took off."

Sutton said he thought Allen had chance when the ball took off but blamed himself for the hit.

"It was a slider I didn't get down," he said. "If I'd have got it down like I was supposed to, Maury (Wills) makes the play at shortstop and not Richie. But Richie made a heckuva shot at it."

Earlier, Parker preserved the no-hit prospects with a diving grab of Jack Billingham's liner at first base. And Allen made a long running catch of Wynn's fly in the third.

"Sure, I was thinking of

A Royal manager

Bob Lemon keeps game simple

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

KANSAS CITY — Winning has been equated to many things but this week Bob Lemon, the resident genius of the Kansas City dugout, came up with one that may make him an immortal humorist, if not a manager.

"Winning," purred Lemon, "is like having a new bride every night. There is nothing like it."

Bob Lemon is grinning sheepishly these days — much like a new bridegroom, in fact.

His Royals are the talk of the American League and league president Joe Cronin may have to order a saliva test shortly.

"Surprised, no . . . happy, yes," Lemon remarked when asked to explain his feelings about his resurgent athletes.

"I felt at the start of the season that we could play .500 baseball. That would have been an improvement of 16 games," Lemon reasoned.

That would also have been a remarkable achievement. No Kansas City team, even the Athletics, ever attained that level of mediocrity.

Today, the Royals are eight games above the break-even mark and intently pursuing Vida Blue and the Oakland A's.

Long Beach's Lemon professes to enjoy the simple things in life and he has dedicated himself to removing many of the complexities from the sport.

"Baseball had better be a simple game or I won't be around very long," he smiled. "A manager can do only so many things — give a hit and run sign, order a take — little things like that. I've always felt you should just put nine guys on the field and let them play the game. Don't make it a complicated thing."

Lemon's philosophy has been well received where it counts most — by the players themselves.

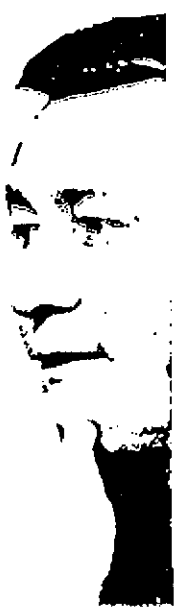

"You can't help but work your tail off for the guy," said third baseman Paul Schaal. "He does not put the slightest pressure on you. He just gives you a ball and a bat and says, 'Go have some fun.'"

It is highly evident that the Royals have been having more than their fair share of enjoyment this season.

"It all boils down to pitching and defense," Lemon explained. "The addition of (Freddy) Patek has been a big help. But we've proven that this is a 25-man game. We've been getting help from everybody.

"The Royals have also been doing it without the assistance of two of their biggest bats, those belonging to Lou Piniella and Bob Oliver. Piniella missed a month

Shipboard romance: pugilists, Queen Mary

How does the thought strike you of having a nationally televised boxing show aboard the Queen Mary?

The possibility is in the back of the minds of Forum Boxing Promotions chiefs (co-promoters George Parnassus and Don Fraser and matchmaker Mickey Davies), who will make their Long Beach debut Saturday night when Rebel Nate Robinson of Wilmington defends his state welterweight title against Miguel Hernandez.

It's a long way from the Auditorium to the Queen Mary, artistically speaking, but Fraser, the longtime boxing publicist who is completing his freshman year as a promoter, likes to think Saturday night's venture will be the launching pad for bigger boxing things in Long Beach.

"This first fight will be a good test for any future plans of ours here," said Fraser, a banty rooster who used to cavort in track and basketball for Bee teams at Manual Arts High School in L.A. about 25 short years ago.

"We'd be satisfied with 1,200-1,500 for our opener. Win Hanssen (the Aud manager) has been extremely co-operative and, if we are successful, he'll have been a big factor."

The Queen Mary idea, admittedly months away, if ever, was spawned by Fraser.

"I woke up one morning and thought it was a great idea," explained Don. "I thought if Long Beach shows interest in boxing, why not a show on the Queen Mary? So I wrote to Dave Tallichet (master lease holder) and he was interested immediately.

"It would be a televised, blacktie affair like Parnassus put on years ago at the Lafayette Hotel when Tallichet was manager there."

THAT BLACK TIE AFFAIR was something, even though the nationally televised 1958 event almost was junked one hour before the first round bell was to sound. Tallichet remembers it only too well.

Don Jordan was to fight Gaspar Ortega, the winner to gain a world lightweight title shot. The Century Club sponsored the attraction, which was featured by a ringside dinner after the main event.

When he arrived in the grand ballroom, Parnassus almost had a stroke. Tallichet, sensing a great public windfall for his hotel, had the words "LAFAYETTE HOTEL" painted glaringly across the ring canvas, a violation of the cardinal rule those days governing televised matches.

The Greek chased the poor hotel manager all around the ballroom, screaming choice expletives in Greek and

Yankees decision Orioles

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Felipe Alou tripled in two runs with two out in the 11th inning off reliever Dick Hall Saturday night to give the New York Yankees a 6-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

After Horace Clarke singled with one out in the 11th, Jerry Kenney sacrificed him to second. Bobby Murcer was then intentionally walked and Alou tripled in both runners.

Gary Waslewski, the fourth Yankee pitcher, went the final inning to save Jack Aker's third victory. Hall took the loss.

Mays' single sparks Giants to third consecutive victory

Combined News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — Willie Mays, whose error let San Diego tie the score, collected his ninth game-winning hit of the season, a tie-breaking sixth-inning single that helped the San Francisco Giants to a 7-4 victory over the Padres Saturday.

The Padres had moved into a 4-4 tie with three unearned runs in the top of the sixth, chasing starter Gaylord Perry, but the Giants bounced back with a tainted run in the bottom of the inning.

With one out, Chris Speier's fly to left was dropped by Leron Lee for a two-base error. Bobby Bonds walked with two away and Mays delivered a run-scoring single to right off reliever Bob Miller (3-2).

The victory was the third in a row for the Giants over the Padres and went to relief pitcher Jerry Johnson (8-2). He took over for Perry with two outs in the sixth inning and the bases loaded and gave up only one hit the rest of the way.

San Francisco scored two runs in the first inning on a double by Willie McCovey, another run on a sacrifice fly by Dick Dietz in the third, and went ahead 4-1 on Ken Henderson's homer in the fifth.

The Padres tied the score with three unearned runs off Perry in the sixth inning. Errors by third baseman Hal Lanier and Mays combined with two singles, two walks and a sacrifice fly accounted for the runs.

DODGERS WIN—

the no-hitter." Sutton said, "but when Wynn got that hit all I could think of then was the shutout." It was Sutton's second whitewash of the season.

The Dodgers, blanked themselves against Billingham through five, erupted in the sixth for four runs on five consecutive hits.

Bill Buckner started it with a single and then scored all the way from first on Willie Davis' double. Willie hiked his average for the night to .359, tops in the National League.

Manager Walter Alston then instructed Allen to get Davis to third—somehow. Richie did, too, by beating out an infield single to Joe Morgan at second.

Wes Parker, with three singles to jump his average to a season-high .290, singled to right and Davis scored with Allen going to second. Jim Lefebvre popped a single to left, scoring Allen and bringing Denny Lemaster out of the bullpen to replace Billingham.

Manny Mota batted for Tom Haller and forced Lefebvre but Parker advanced to third. Valentine also grounded out but Parker was able to score the fourth run of the round.

It was a night for Sutton, though, who has shared in two other shutouts besides the two he's ptiched himself. In his last six games—five of them victories—he allowed but seven earned runs.

"I guess I was a little lucky tonight," he said. "Haller would call for the ball low and away and I'd throw it up and in. But at least they (the Astros) were hitting the ball right at someone.

"The biggest thing, it keeps San Francisco thinking about us. And don't think we're now thinking about what's going on up north."

DODGER OF DAY

DON SUTTON hurled one-hit shutout over Houston, 4-0.

DODGER DOPE: Willie Davis extended his latest hitting streak to 10 games with a first inning single. Willie D. now has hit safely in 39 of 42 games. Davis' .357 batting average led the National League prior to Saturday's games . . . Pitching the concluding game of the services today will be Downing (7-3) for the Dodgers, Larry Dierker (10-3) for the Astros . . . Bobby O'Brien will start Monday night's game against the St. Louis Cardinals in place of Bill Singer who will miss a turn because of his pulled groin muscle. . . . Bobby Darwin, the hottest thing in the spring, joined the Dodgers Saturday night after batting .295 in 61 games at Spokane. With the arrival of Darwin the Dodgers are one under the 25-player limit . . . Bill Grabarkewitz is expected to be activated before long, perhaps today.

Claude Osteen's win Friday night was his eighth. The only lefthander in the National League with more wins is St. Louis' Steve Carlton with 10 . . . The Sportscasters, in a startling upset, stunned the Sports Writers in the annual pre-game "classic" by a 5-4 score. The Sports Writers protested but to no avail. Oliva helps Twins push streak to 6

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tony Oliva tied the score with a ninth-inning home run and then scored the winner on George Mitterwald's two-out bases-loaded single in the 10th to give the Minnesota Twins a 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

After a one-hour rain delay, Rod Carew opened the 10th with a single off Terry Forster, the third Chicago pitcher. Harmon Killebrew popped out and Oliva forced Carew at second, but Mike Andrews' relay to first trying for a double play was wild, allowing Oliva to reach second.

Leo Cardenas was purposely passed and another walk to Rich Reese filled the bases before Mitterwald's single stretched Minnesota's winning streak to six games.

Clendenon ends marathon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donn Clendenon homered with two out in the bottom of the 15th inning Saturday to give the New York Mets a 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies and cut Pittsburgh's lead to 2½ games in the National League East.

Playing before a sellout Helmet Day crowd of 52,171, New York had to come from behind twice to win the game. Clendenon caught a 1-1 pitch and sent it over the 371-foot sign in right field to end the four hour-41 minute marathon, the Mets' longest game of the season.

Danny Frisella, the Mets' fourth pitcher, yielded only four hits in his four innings of relief work to win his third game in four decisions. Billy Wilson, who served up a tying homer. Ken Singleton in the 14th, was tagged with his second loss.

Morton changes style, beats Bucs

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Carl Morton, last year's National League rookie of the year with an 18-11 record, has adopted a new philosophy which he hopes will improve his record this season.

"From now on I'm pitching my game and I'm going to challenge the hitters instead of trying to use finesse," Morton said Saturday after scattering 10 hits in Montreal's 10-1 victory over the Pirates.

Morton, who can't remember ever completing a game in which he yielded 10 hits, said teammate Ron Fairly told him before the game "not to worry about their (the Pirates) hitters, but to just pitch my game."

The red-haired righthander said he made up his mind to "just keep their sluggers in the park and hope that the singles wouldn't beat me." Nine of the 10 Pirate hits were singles and one was a double.

Pepitone, Cubbies continue streaks

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Cub first baseman Joe Pepitone said "a little respect goes a long way towards making a ballplayer's life easier."

Pepitone, who collected four consecutive safeties Saturday to lead Chicago past St. Louis, 7-1, admitted that he had "very little respect while playing in Houston." Pepitone said: "It's made all the difference in the world to play for Leo Durocher and the Chicago front office. It's made me try a little harder and it's been great for me because my life has been a lot happier."

Pepitone now has hit safely in 18 consecutive games while collecting 32 hits in 75 at-bats for a robust .427 batting average over that span. He disclosed that "I'm really not a streak hitter but I never played this way for the Yankees though I love Ralph Houk." He added: "I just made up my mind that I'm not going to try to kill the ball but just stroke it. The ball has just been falling in and I haven't had any trouble."

BOB LEMON: LIKES TO WIN—

with a broken thumb and Oliver has been mired in a season-long slump.

"Paul Schaal, Cookie Rojas and Amos Otis carried us," he said. "Then Patek started to hit and Piniella and Oliver are showing some encouraging signs."

But most of all it has been the pitching, a substance Lemon is well qualified to discuss.

"We've cut down on our walks, given up less home runs and making more double plays because our pitchers have been keeping the ball down," the manager effused.

According to Lemon, the good omen that promised future happiness came during the last five days of spring training when the Royals took four of five games from the St. Louis Cardinals.

"We even beat (Bob) Gibson and he was really firing, getting ready for opening day," Lemon recalled.

"Sure," Lemon freely admits. "I've had to chew some guys out but it's forgotten by the next day. I don't believe a player should have one eye on the game and one on the dugout, wondering what his manager is going to do next."

Lemon, a pillar of modesty, plays down his contribution to the Kansas City success story.

"I don't know how you measure the influence of a manager," he shrugged. "All I do is try to keep 'em loose and happy. It also helps to treat them as men—not little boys.

"I think we're lucky in one respect," he said. "We don't have any superstars—or anyone who thinks he is."

RICH ROBERTS

Like father . . . like son?

"If he's going to become a baseball player, it's important that he sign and get a start now. But I don't want to stake his whole future on professional baseball. He definitely will go to school, too."—Paul Pettit.

Down low in the wire-stories it was noted that ". . . among the players drafted was Mark Pettit, 17, a shortstop from Lomita, Calif., selected on the fifth round by the world champion Baltimore Orioles. Pettit is the son of Paul Pettit, onetime $100,000 'bonus baby' of the Pittsburgh Pirates."

Indulging in a little Father's Day reflection, Paul Pettit ponders the baseball mill that ground him up for awhile and now is fixing to claim his second eldest son.

"I felt a little disappointed that he was drafted so low," Paul says. "There were several shortstops drafted ahead of him. I had it in my heart, I guess, that I wanted him to be as good as the next guy."

Young Mark, star athlete and scholar of Bishop Montgomery High in Torrance, was the 119th player taken, placing him roughly in Class A and his dad in a dilemma. If the Orioles had drafted Mark high, it would appear that they had big plans for him. Fifth-round picks face a struggle to the top.

"I would like to have him sign," Paul says in one breath, "but I'd rather see him get his education out of the way and not have to worry about that phase of his life."

Compounding the problem is Mark's scholastic record. His final report card showed all A's, except for one B.

"If he was not a student, if he was not college quality," Paul says, "if they offered him peanuts he'd be best to sign and, even if he lasted only a year or two, he would find out. Then he could think about going to work."

PAUL'S DECISION was much easier 21 years ago when he emerged from Narbonne High as a big, hard-throwing lefthanded pitcher. The offers were better than peanuts. He first signed an $85,000 service contract with a movie producer, who subsequently sold it to the Pirates, who sweetened it by $15,000 to make Pettit baseball's first six-figure bonus player.

For their 100 grand, the Pirates were to get one victory out of Paul's mighty left arm. Early in his first pro season with the New Orleans Pelicans, a Pirate farm club, his future suddenly dimmed.

"I was throwing a curve ball," he recalls. "On one pitch — boom!' — I felt the elbow snap. I went out and tried to throw the next inning and I knew there was something wrong."

The Pirates sent Paul to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore where a specialist advised him to "go ahead and start throwing and it'll come around."

"Well, I started throwing and the elbow did come around — but my shoulder started bothering me, I think from favoring the elbow. It never did really heal."

PETTIT WON TWO games later that season and by 1952 had worked his way back to a 15-8 mark with the old Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast League. Pittsburgh called him up in '53, where he was 1-2 in 13 relief appearances until the Pirates sent him down to New Orleans.

"I wasn't pitching much, so (manager) Fred Haney wanted me to go out and get more experience and come back and help 'em the following year," Pettit says. "It didn't work out that way. I hurt my arm again."

The Pirates had used up Pettit's recall options, so they sold his contract to the Stars, then managed by Bobby Bragan.

"Bobby thought I had a chance to do something with the bat," Paul says, so he went back to Class C to start all over again as an outfielder-first baseman, had some success, but his career topped out in Triple-A. Even the minors, slowly suffocating as the majors expanded, no longer had room for guys old enough to vote.

"They'd bring the younger kids in for the first half of the year and they wouldn't do the job," Paul says, "so I'd start playing again, but I was regressing instead of progressing."

But Paul had been using his off-seasons wisely, attending school at Harbor College and Cal State Long Beach and steadily — if with agonizing slowness — building up credits toward a Master's degree, later an administrative credential.

"Since I had the education, I figured I'd quit and go into teaching," he says. "I stayed out one complete year . . . then tried to go back.

"I sat on the bench at Seattle for three weeks hoping I'd get a chance to play, but they were just looking for young talent."

And so it is now.

PETTIT, 39, STILL CROPS his hair in a close crewcut, but the sideburns, bisected by his horned-rims, are gray. He has been baseball coach at Lawndale High since leaving a similar post at Jordan three years ago.

There have been five children for Paul and the girl Shirley he married out of Narbonne High. Paul Jr., 19, is a catcher at Loyola U. Mark, 17, is next. Daughter Cynthia, 16, is off preparing to become a nun. Then there are Tim, 14, and little Michael, 4, who, strutting around in a cutdown baseball suit with cap askew, swings a miniature bat and announces, "I'm a home run hitter!"

Michael has plenty of time. Mark faces a decision now. Paul feels the decision would be easier if Mark had been drafted higher, thereby commanding a good bonus.

"I got a little shaky on my stilt a couple of times in the long grind," says Paul. "I almost didn't go on in school. The only reason I was able to was that I had the financial background to do it. So I feel Mark should have some sort of buffer going into baseball, so when he comes back in the off-season he wouldn't have to say, 'gee, I've gotta go make a buck.' "

Paul was lucky to have made the right decisions. He had the money before his arm went bad, then had the bonus and eventually an education to fall back on.

Mark also deserves his shot at baseball, but Paul points out that "he's got a lot to offer society besides baseball. For one thing, he's interested in medicine. To me, being a doctor carries as much prestige as being a professional ballplayer."

Head-to-head for 18 holes today

Jim Simons . . . meet Jack Nicklaus

Combined News Services

ARDMORE, Pa. — "It's hard to imagine myself leading the U.S. Open at this stage," says Jim Simons, a soft speaking introverted type of young man.

Simons, who shot a 5-under-par 65 Saturday to gain the lead after three rounds of the 71st annual U.S. Open, is only concerned that his confidence gets as strong as his golf game. He's self-conscious about his status a an amateur in a field of the world's greatest golfers.

"How much of a problem is it being an amateur and trying to win this?" he was asked.

"I think it's maybe more of a problem for me than a lot of people because I've never had a lot of natural confidence in myself, and I've been slowly building confidence over the past few years. My game has improved, my swing has improved and I think the confidence is gradually building, but it's been slow, and it would be hard for me to imagine I can win the U.S. Open at this stage."

The slim built blond from Butler, Pa., near Pittsburgh, said he didn't know that he was close to tying the Merwin Golf Club course record of 64 set by Lee Mackey in the first round of the U.S. Open in 1950.

Simons, recent runnerup to Steve Melnyk in the British Amateur, is a senior at Wake Forest where he is the No. 2 man on the golf team behind Larry Wadkins. He's studying physical education and plans to delay a shot at the pro golf tour until he completes his education.

Simons will play today's final 18 holes with Jack Nicklaus, who is two strokes behind at 209.

Simons, who had never met Nicklaus until they crossed paths near the press tent, said he didn't know how the pressure would affect him.

"I'll just try to get some sleep tonight, but I don't know if I can," he said.

"Hello, Jim, congratulations," Nicklaus said as they met.

"Thank you, Jack," said Simons.

"How much longer do you have in school?" Nicklaus asked.

"I'm a senior," said Simons — and added later:

"I think he wanted me to stay in school a couple of more years."

Only Nicklaus, who was picked by most to make this his third open title, could stay in sight of the tow-headed, broadshouldered Simons.

Nicklaus had a 68 for 209, one under par and two strokes back of the surprise leader.

"People keep telling me I've got it wrapped up," Nicklaus said. "They say the only man in front of me is a young amateur.

"But I tell them, 'Yeah, but after three rounds of the United States Open he's three under par — and that's two strokes better than I am.'"

Simons, from Butler, Pa., grew up in Arnold Palmer country and has a number of Palmer's mannerisms. But Nicklaus is his idol.

"He's the greatest player in the world," Simons said.

Like Simons, Marty Fleckman was a kid amateur in the 1967 U.S. Open at Baltusrol, N.J. Like Simons, too, he was out in front with only 18 holes to go. Those last 18 were a little rough.

He shot an unbelievable 80 and hardly anyone has heard of Fleckman since.

"It crossed my mind," confessed Simons. "I thought about Fleckman.

"I thought about him yesterday when I saw Lanny was leading. It made me think about how Fleckman was too for awhile, and what then happened to him."

Simons was the second youngest golfer ever to compete in the U.S. Open four years ago.

He's so nervous and feels the need to concentrate so much that he was a little worried about being paired with irrepressible, wise-cracking Lee Trevino Saturday.

"I was a little hesitant about playing with Lee at first because I know how much he talks," confessed the youngster. "But I think he actually helped me. Yes, he talked to me. He told me how he used to fight a hook all the time, how he hit a thousand balls a day and how he practiced 11 hours a day. I said to him, 'I guess you hadda hit 'em pretty quick.' "

Both Simons' parents saw him fashion his slick 32-33 Saturday. Jim's father manufactures deodorants for a living.

The boy himself walks the course like a mountain climber. You see his shoulders first, then his chest and finally his head which is topped off by a rich thatch of blond straw colored hair.

Arnold Palmer also went to Wake Forest a little bit before Simons.

"We're friends," Simons says about Palmer. "That's all. I'm not on one of his scholarships."

U.S. OPEN BRIEFS

Jack says Arnie was just kidding

Combined news services

ARDMORE, Pa. — Jack Nicklaus said Saturday Arnold Palmer was just "needling" him with previous day remarks about slow play in the U.S. Open golf championship, but the blond Ohioan came prepared with a defense just the same.

"It's so ridiculous," Nicklaus said after he finished the third round. I anticipated what was going to be asked, so I brought some ammunition," and he whipped out a piece of paper.

"We're good friends," Palmer said before walking 15 yards to the first tee. "We were just kicking around what happened yesterday."

Being leader not a ticket to fame

ARDMORE, Pa. — The 45-year-old guy approached one of the natlily-attired ladies driving "courtesy cars" to bring contestants in the U.S. Open golf championship from the hotel to the golf course and he asked her for a ride.

The lady looked him up and down and said, "Have you got something to do with the tournament?"

Bob Erickson of Sanford, Fla., told her he was a contestant. He was co-leader in the tournament at the midway point.

Father's advice still the best

ARDMORE, Pa. — Young Ben Crenshaw of Austin, Tex., listened carefully to his father's advice Saturday and then went out and shot a 2-under-par 68 in the third round of the U.S. Open golf championship—a round that proved his dad had things exactly right.

"This Merion course is just like your grandmother," the elder Crenshaw told the 19-year-old student at the University of Texas. "Beautiful, honored, getting on a little in years, and loving. But you do just one thing wrong and she'll whop you."

Crenshaw was going for a 66 when he came down to the final hole. He made one mistake by going into a trap and Merion "whopped" him with a double bogey six.

yard ninth hole and made the putt for birdie and 32 going out.

On the back nine, Simons birdied the 10th hole with a 10-foot putt, birdied the 129-yard 13th when he hit a 9-iron six feet from the hole and made it, and made a 15-footer at the treacherous 430-yard 16th over an abandoned quarry.

He made a six-foot putt to save a par at No. 18 after leaving his approach shot 60 feet below the cup.

He made bogeys at the 12th and 17th holes, each time hitting approach shots into sand traps.

Although Bobby Jones won the Open four times as an amateur, the last amateur to win the title was John Goodman in 1933. The last to carry a lead into the final round was Marty Fleckman, who led Nicklaus by a stroke after three rounds in 1967 but then ballooned to a final-round 80 and lost to Nicklaus by 14.

"That entered my mind," said Simons, who played in the Open for the first time in 1967 as a 17-year-old. "I thought about it yesterday when Wadkins shot a 75 after being near the lead."

Simons, displaying steel nerves on the glass-slick greens of Merion, was four strokes off the pace and tied for 11th place when he started play in the bright, warm sunshine.

In front of him in the chase for the coveted crown were such international professional stars as Nicklaus, Palmer, Devlin, Puerto Rican Chi Chi Rodriguez, Archer, Nichols and former Masters champion Gay Brewer.

Nicklaus was frustrated by at least three long birdie putts that lipped out.

Sudden death playoff sees Sanders win

PHOENIX — Gary Sanders of Buena Park shot a birdie in a sudden death playoff to edge Mike Killian of Florida for the Southwest Amateur golf tournament championship Saturday at the Arizona Country Club.

Sanders, who shot a final round of 69, caught third round leader Killian at 274, 14 under par, and then two-putted on the extra hole.

John Beetham of Cal State Long Beach finished fifth at 277 after a 70 last round.

Other Long Beach-area scores included: Alan Tapapie 284, Rick Simms 288, Mike Nichols 292, Dick Mortenson 295, Tim Gaumer 296, Bob Abbey 296, Bob Winslow 298.

Harvard, Yale win

DUBLIN (UPI) — The combined Harvard and Yale track and field team ended its European tour with a runaway win against Dublin University College Saturday, scoring 123 points against 59 by the Irish athletes.

Moyer scores decision over

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Middleweight Denny Moyer used superior experience to pound out an unanimous 12 round decision Saturday night over Argentina's Jose Chirino.

Moyer was the aggressor in the fight that both camps said was a possible stepping stone to a title fight against Carlos Monzon, the Argentinian who has the middleweight title.

Ask black pros about Player

ARDMORE, Pa. (UPI) — South African star Gary Player, who was heckled in an earlier round about his country's racial policies, played the third round of the U.S. Open golf championship Saturday with an escort of four security men, including two who were armed. There were no incidents.

"This is a heck of a way to have to play," Player commented once to an official, but otherwise said nothing about the escort which he had not requested.

Player shot a 2-over-par 72 in the third round.

Player comes from South Africa which practices the apartheid policy. Player doesn't practice it, but that doesn't seem to matter.

Maybe the feeling toward Player would be different if it really became known what the Black golfers on the tour feel about him.

There were four in this U.S. Open and here's what they had to say about Player:

Charlie Sifford: "You couldn't ask for a finer man than Gary Player. He's helped me so many times I've stopped counting."

Pete Brown: "They shouldn't take it out on him. He's too nice a guy. I don't think they're blaming him; they're just using him."

George Johnson: "I've never found him anything but nice. I'm sure if I ever asked him he'd help me."

Nat Starks: "He looks like a mighty decent human being to me."

49ers second to USC in 440 relay

UCLA best track team; Liquori 3:57.6

Combined news services

SEATTLE — Villanova's great miler Marty Liquori and Brigham Young University's tremendous intermediate hurdler Ralph Mann each won a third consecutive title Saturday in the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. track and field championships.

Liquori's time of 3 minutes, 57.6 seconds was one of five meet records set in the final day of competition at the University of Washington Stadium before a crowd of 12,650.

He clipped one-tenth of a second off the mark he set in winning the 1969 title.

While Liquori and Mann were the individual stars, UCLA with its depth came on in the closing events to win the team title for the first time in five years with 52 points, 11 more than cross-city rival Southern California.

Oregon was third with 33, BYU fourth with 35, Kansas fifth with 27 and Texas-El Paso 26.

Other records fell to Oregon's Steve Prefontaine with 13:20.1 in the three-mile, Reynaldo Brown of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo with a 7-3 high jump, to Sid Sink of Bowling Green, Ohio, who ran the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:30.9.

The 440 relay didn't produce a meet record, but it did turn into a satisfying experience for Cal State Long Beach (40.0) which finished second to USC. (39.5).

Troy's Willie Deckard was the difference in the race, pulling away to a comfortable win after the 49er's Clarence Palmer and Dan Moore nearly juggled their handoff.

Until then, Curtis Biggers, Ernest London and Palmer had been even with Lance Babb, Edsel Garrison and Leon Brown.

"We knew we had to go all out to have a chance," said 49er coach Jack Rose, "but Moore didn't hear a voice command over a public address announcement to go and had to look back just a second, enough to slow down our final exchange.

"All in all, though, it was a great effort. John Rambo's high jump win seven years ago was a great thrill, but this was a little different because of the team effort involved."

The same 49er foursome had finished fifth a year ago in the finals at Des Moines, Iowa.

The fifth meet record came in the triple jump and strangely enough was set by an athlete who finished third in the event — Denny Rogers of UCLA's team champions with a jump of 53 feet, 7½ inches, since the first two place jumps were wind-aided.

Mann, a Carson High graduate, pulled away in the final strides to win the 440 hurdles title in 49.6, well off his world, American and collegiate mark of 48.8, but good enough in a strong wind to hold off Melvin Bassett, the NCAA College Division champ from North Carolina Central, and Big 8 champ Jim Bolding of Oklahoma State.

Liquori, though, was the man who captured the cheers as he worked his way from sixth place with about 600 yards to go and came on in one of his patented finishes to win by 10 yards over Bob Wheeler of Duke, who helped set the pace before giving ground.

It wasn't easy for Liquori Saturday.

He drifted back to seventh place as the field of 12 got underway. The first lap was run in 60.7 seconds and for the half, with Liquori in sixth place, the time was 2:02.6.

During the third lap of the mile, Liquori circled the field to get out of a box but still was well back in fourth place.

"With all that wind," Liquori explained later, "I decided to start my move with 300 yards to go and with the wind at my back."

That's exactly what he did and it paid off in victory.

Liquori, who will compete at Eugene, Ore., next week in the National AAU championships and probably against Jim Ryun, said he figured right from the start he would have to go under four minutes to win but that he was not all that interested in time as he was in just winning.

"Winning is the big thing and the only thing that counts," he said. "Sure, records are nice but they aren't everything."

Sink of Bowling Green became a two-time NCAA champ when he sprinted in the final 400 meters to win the 3,000 meter steeplechase in 8:30.9 — second fastest time for the event ever by an American.

George Young has the best — 8:30.6 — which he turned in six years ago. Sink, however, set a collegiate mark, beating the old time of 8:32.2 turned in by Jeromee Liebenberg of Western Michigan earlier this year.

Other winners Saturday were: discus — Mike Lousisana, Brigham Young, 194-10; 880 — Mark Winzenried, Wisconsin, 1:48.8; 220 — Larry Black, North Carolina Central, 20.5; javelin — Cary Feldman, Washington, 295-0; and pole vault — Dave Roberts, Rice, 17-6½.

Matson hopes for berth in Russian meet

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — World shotput king Randy Matson admits it has been a disappointing season for him but he still feels he can master the steel ball in time to compete in the U.S.-Russian meet next month.

This summer's meet is scheduled July 2-3 in Berkeley, Calif. The top two finishers in the National AAU championships, scheduled next weekend in Eugene, Ore., qualify for the U.S. team.

MATSON

"I'm disappointed I haven't thrown farther than I have this year," said Matson, 25, a native of the Texas panhandle. "I've got my weight and strength up. During the next two weeks I'm going to work on weights and run a lot. I need to improve my overall condition." Matson lives in Amarillo with his wife and two children. He is executive secretary for the West Texas State University Buffalo club and administrative assistant to the school's athletic director.

As a student at Texas A&M University in 1967 Matson set the shotput world record with a toss of 71 feet, 5½ inches, April 22, during a quadrangular meet in College Station.

"My best outdoor throw this year has been 68-8 at the Texas Relays in Austin," Matson said. "Last week I threw 68-1¾ in the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet at Wichita, Kan., and the next night after a cross-country flight I threw 65-8 at Portland."

Matson said he believed one of his problems was throwing too much this year.

Dill top athlete at Golden West

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Detroit, Mich., speedster Marshall Dill captured both sprints to wrap up the outstanding performer award Saturday night in the 12th annual Golden West Invitational prep track meet at Sacramento State College.

Dill, running into head winds in both events, took the 100 yard dash in 9.6 and the 220 in 21.0. Both times, the wind against him was six miles an hour.

Ken McBride of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., added half an inch to the national high school triple jump record with a 52-6¾ effort. He upset former record holder Dave Tucker of Fresno, who wound up fourth.

Tony Krzyzosiak of Garden Grove, tied the meet in the 440, clocking 46.8. Tim Kight of Worthington, Ohio, equalled the meet standard in the 330 intermediate hurdles with a 37.1 performance.

Dave Merrick of New Lenox, Ill., came close to a record in the two mile run, running 8:54.9, nine-tenths of a second off the meet record.

Millikan's Rory Kotinek finished fifth in the high jump at 6-8, the same height awarded to winner Dwight Stones of Glendale. The first five placers all went 6-8.

All-star clash on TV

When in ABA country play basketball as ABA does

Channel 13, noon

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — No matter what the billing and regardless of the presence of some of the greats of the National Basketball Assn., today's Martin Luther King Jr., benefit game here is an American Basketball Assn. show.

The game, to be nationally televised with former NBA player and coach Bill Russell doing color commentary, is being played for the third year as part of Black Expo '71 "a total effort by the black community."

Hoyt Diamond, one of the coordinators of the game said, "since the game is being played in ABA country, ABA rules will be used exclusively. That means a red, white and blue ball, a 30-second clock and the three-point basket."

This will give NBA stars such as Dave Bing of Detroit, Elvin Hayes of San Diego and Connie Hawkins of Phoenix a look at some of the rules which possibly might be incorporated by their league if an ABA-NBA merger is completed.

Eighteen of the players on the mixed-league squads are from the ABA and eight from the NBA.

BUCKS, CHAPS 1ST RIVALS TO CLASH

DALLAS (UPI) — The Texas Chaparrals will meet the National Basketball Assn. Milwaukee Bucks Sept. 21 in the first exhibition game ever played between NBA and ABA teams.

Texas coach Tom Nissalke was an assistant to Milwaukee's Larry Costello before he was hired away by the Chaps.

Six Indiana Pacers, playing on their home floor at the Indiana State Fairgrounds Coliseum, will lead the East Squad. They are Mel Daniels, the ABA's Most Valuable Player for 1971; Roger Brown; Bob Netolicky; Freddie Lewis; Billy Keller and Warren Armstrong.

They will be joined on the East team by NBA stars Earl Monroe of Baltimore, Walt Frazier of New York and Walt Bellamy and Walt Hazzard of the Atlanta Hawks; and ABA stars Cincy Powell of Kentucky, John Brisker of Pittsburgh, Charlie Scott of Virginia and Rick Barry of New York, a former NBA all-star.

The West will be led by Hawkins, Bing, Hayes and Cazzie Russell of the San Francisco Warriors and by former NBA players Zelmo Beaty of Utah and Joe Caldwell of Carolina.

MULLANEY CONSIDERS SEVERAL POSITIONS

Joe Mullaney, former coach of the Lakers, says he has not made a decision about a new job but is considering several offers.

Mullaney said he has discussed basketball coaching jobs with the Utah Stars and the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Assn. and with some unnamed colleges.

"I haven't made a decision yet," he said. "I've been in Utah and Louisville and to a couple of colleges. The announcement will be made through the group I sign with."

The Lakers fired Mullaney on June 3 as coach but offered him a job as scout. He decided that he wanted to stay in coaching.

Jennings says AAU control of track near end

A long time foe of the Amateur Athletic Union says the AAU won't have control over American track and field athletes much longer.

Tom Jennings, president and coach of the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, says the AAU is outmoded, filled with red tape and old men.

"I've been fighting them on their own ground for a long time and winning but I'm tired of being shoved around," Jennings says. "Track and field is not the domain of the AAU; it's the domain of the athletes who don't earn a cent."

Jennings is a member of the executive committee for track and field of the United States Track and Field Federation, an organization founded by the NCAA. The AAU and NCAA have been at odds for years over control of amateur track and field.

"The USTFF is made up of men interested in track rather than men trying to promote trips overseas for themselves," Jennings says. "By 1973, the AAU is going to find it's in trouble. The USTFF is gaining stature."

The AAU is the international spokesman for American track and field. Athletes wishing to compete against other countries must get AAU travel permits. Records set by athletes must get AAU approval before they can be certified as official by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

"All I know is that the AAU has harassed and bullied my athletes for years," Jennings says. "The end is coming to that era."

JENNINGS SAYS AAU officials threatened his Pacific Coast Club athletes with ineligibility if they competed in the USTFF championships at Wichita, Kan., two weeks ago. He said he got around that by making sure all those he took to the championships were fulltime students.

"When Gen. MacArthur was asked to solve the AAU-NCAA feud, a resolution was drawn up that says no athlete who is a fulltime student can be hurt by competing anyplace in the world. Well, all I did was to enroll all my athletes who weren't already in some school."

Jennings said three of his athletes were enrolled in a local junior college.

"It cost me $2.50 for each guy. Terry Musika is entered as a fulltime summer school student of music appreciation. It's obviously a phony, but the AAU can't touch them now."

JENNINGS SAYS THE USTFF is growing and by 1973 "they'll have the support of most of the nation's amateur track guys. Then the USTFF will earn international recognition as the spokesman for the athletes and we won't have to pussyfoot around."

"The harassment?" Jennings laughed. "I thrive on it. They suspended my old Long Beach 49er Track Club in 1967 because of some dumb residency registration requirement. Then the rule was changed. All I did was reorganize the club and change the name."

Jennings says backlash will wipe the AAU out "the year after the Olympics. I don't think the athletes will do anything before then because they dont want to jeopardize their status. They might not get to go to Munich. But after the Olympics, I think you'll see an end to this stupid war."

Jennings was warned earlier this year that he cannot take a team to Europe this summer without AAU approval.

"Well, I'm taking 11 men over there to compete. I'm paying for the trip entirely out of Pacific Coast Club funds. The only thing the AAU can do is put pressure on the Europeans to not compete against us. We'll just have to see what happens."

Truckers claim twin wins, tie for WSC lead

Ed Klecker and John Henderson held visiting Hawthorne to five hits in a doubleheader Saturday night at Mayfair Park as the V.B. Morgan Truckers beat the Hustlers twice, 2-1 and 2-0.

The twin victories improved the Truckers' Pacific Coast Softball League-leading record to 14-2 and also enabled the Truckers to move into a tie with the Long Beach Nitehawks, who lead the Western Softball Congress. Saturday's games counted in both leagues.

The Truckers are now 12-5 in the WSC, the Hawks 13-5.

Stan Smith gets lift

Billie Jean not at her best

LONDON (UPI) — Stan Smith of Pasadena, looking for a lift before Wimbledon, got it Saturday by winning the London Grass Courts Tennis championship with an 8-6, 6-3 victory over John Newcombe of Australia.

Mrs. Margaret Court of Australia used a controlled all around game to beat Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, for the women's crown.

Mrs. Court and Newcombe will be the defending champions at Wimbledon.

"Now I've got it," Smith said. "This is about as big a boost as I could have before the start of Wimbledon."

Smith, winning $960, needed 45 minutes to win the first set, a serve and volley affair. Newcombe served three double faults in the 14th game, saved one set point with an ace, but then netted a backhand volley. Smith then won the set with a brilliant service return.

Smith dominated the second set, taking 3-1 lead and never letting Newcombe, who is seeded second at Wimbledon behind Australia's Rod Laver, get back in the match.

The match between Mrs. Court and Mrs. King was between a pair of old rivals who are the 1-2 seeds, respectively, at Wimbledon.

Mrs. Court won the match when Mrs. King had trouble with her forehand and service.

Tom Okker and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., defeated Smith and Erik Van Dillen, San Mateo, Calif. 8-6, 4-6, 10-8, in the final of the men's doubles.

Mrs. King and Rosemary Casals, San Francisco, defeated Mary Ann Curtis, St. Louis and Valerie Ziegenfuss, San Diego, Calif., 6-2, 8-6.

HOLLINGWORTH—

Spanish at harassed Tallichet. Commissioner Clayton Frye was summoned, and after some deliberation, Frye permitted the fight to be held. But it was a close call!

SATURDAY NIGHT'S CARD, switched from Santa Monica Auditorium because of a schedule conflict, is important to any boxing future Long Beach might command and to Fraser, who is fully cognizant of the large population in Long Beach and its surrounding territory.

"There are some great boxing draws in and around Long Beach," pointed out the little rooster. "Mando Ramos would be THE guy we'd like to get in there. I understand he's back living in Long Beach and I know he's training again.

"Jerry Quarry is a possibility and his brother, Mike, too. Rodolfo Gonzales is another natural in Long Beach. We wanted him on our opening card, but there was a schedule conflict with him. Joey Orbillo of Wilmington is back in training, too.

"We'll have two Long Beach kids on the Saturday night card too — Irish Terry Sater, who's managed by Jake Shugrue, and David Diaz, who's a stablemate of Rodolfo's and also in Ralph Galbraith's hands."

DOES FRASER'S GROUP envision success in Long Beach in the wake of many boxing failures here?

"That remains to be seen," replied Fraser. "But our group is well financed, we've proven successful, and we've got great promotional know-how, which I don't think the other groups had.

"Then, the syndication of our taped TV shows has been a tremendous success and was an important factor in getting over our weekly shows. The people see our shows on TV and they want to come out to watch in person."

The channel 5 Saturday night programs are indeed bigtime operations. Thirty-three stations are on the KTLA hookup, which extends from Hawaii to Boston, with such cities as Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Houston, Portland, Denver, Kansas City, Omaha, and Spokane in-between.

Thus, this Saturday night's production will give Long Beach a tremendous national exposure, no small item as the Convention Bureau will tell you.

"WHAT ABOUT the prices?" Fraser was asked. Wouldn't the range — from $3.50 to $6.50 — seem to be a little stiff for this first-time operation?

"If we thought so, we wouldn't have scaled it that way," answered Fraser. "It's the same prices we established when we started at Valley Garden Arena and which we have at Santa Monica. If we get a fight of more importance in Long Beach, the prices will remain the same. We won't raise them — except, naturally, for a project like on the Queen Mary.

"In 22 years of publicizing and promoting boxing, I've found people get irritated if we keep changing prices.

"But what we'd really like to do is to anchor permanently. Santa Monica has a limited capacity 2,500), but we had to go there fast — and we're not unhappy there — because Bob Hope's group sold the Valley Arena and we thought we could keep some of that trade by switching to Santa Monica.

"Long Beach Auditorium has 3,300 capacity and, if we got a really big thing together, we could go to Long Beach Arena which can hold 13,000 for boxing.

"We have a good thing, we know, and if we thought we'd be supported in Long Beach, we'd certainly entertain the idea of having a heckuva lot of cards there."

IN SPITE OF RECENT FAILURES, Long Beach had some bright boxing spots.

A bantamweight title bout was staged here May 26, 1943 when Manuel Ortiz decisioned Joe Robleto to retain his championship.

Paranssus brought some good men to train here for his L.A. bouts — champions Hogan (Kid) Bassey and Pajarito (Little Bird) Moreno, legendary Carmen Basilio and heavyweight contender Zora Folley.

Then the bout for the dinner jacket trade at the Lafayette.

Anyway, if the Queen Mary boxing dream becomes a reality, Dave Tallichet has promised not to hire a painter for the evening.

Cornell nips Washington in IRC final

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Lightly - regarded Cornell stunned defending champion University of Washington Saturday by narrowly beating the Huskies in the featured varsity eight race at the 69th annual Intercollegiate Rowing Assn. championship regatta.

The Big Red, which had not won a national or regional title since 1963, led all the way along the 2,000-meter course on nearby Onondaga Lake and finished less than one-quarter length ahead of Washington in a time of 6 minutes, 6 seconds.

Washington, which had been heavily favored on the basis of its undefeated record in the West this spring, was clocked in 6:06.8. Pennsylvania was third in 6:10.5.

Cornell's varsity eight, stroked by junior David Wetherill of Downingtown, Pa., won only one race during the regular season, failing even to qualify for the finals of the Eastern sprints.

Besides receiving the varsity Challenge Cup for its eight-oared victory, Cornell was awarded the Ten Eyck Memorial Trophy for the best over-all showing among the 26 crews.

Winds of 10 mph created choppy lake conditions at the outset but diminished as the afternoon wore on.

The varsity four crown went to Navy, a three-second winner over MIT, 7:00.9.

Penn's freshman crews scored championship victories in both the yearling eights and fours.

In other title races, Navy took the junior varsity eight crown and California won in the varsity pairs, an event being run here for the first time.

Varsity Pairs — 1. California 7:46.2; 2. Kansas State, 7:46.6; 3. Northeastern, 8:00.9; 4. Dartmouth, 8:09.7; 5. MIT (A), 8:12.2; 6. MIT (B), 8:25.9.

Junior Varsity Eights — 1. Navy, 6:17.2; 2. Northeastern, 6:17.6; 3. Washington, 6:21.5; 4. Wisconsin, 6:21.7; 5. Brown, 6:23.2; 6. Syracuse, 6:27.0; 7. Cornell, 6:27.2.

WIMBLEDON SITE OF TENNIS 'WAR'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The players begin their bitter two-week battle Monday at Wimbledon, striving to attain the July 3 men's title match on center court.

While the players are in action, the big men of the game, the sometimes portly, sometimes greying businessmen and just lovers of the "game," will be fighting among themselves to determine what Wimbledon 1972 will look like, and what tennis itself will look like a year from now.

The issue is control of the game, which is now sharply divided between the old-line international federations and the contract professionals under the aegis of Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis organization.

He suggests that next year the big three tournaments count in points, at least, as an inducement to WCT players to participate.

While Wimbledon could get by without the names for a time, it is highly questionable that U.S. fans would storm Forest Hills without the lure of Hunt's 32 stars in the field.

Football season opens!

Burns may skip first all-star game

Combined news services

LUBBOCK, Tex. — Football season opens Saturday night with the 11th annual Coaches' All-America game, but several may be missing from the scene.

The absentees will include Cal State Long Beach's tailback, Leon Burns, a first-round draft choice of the San Diego Chargers.

Burns and the Chargers still have not come to terms and the 6-foot-2, 228-pound running back has chosen to bypass the game rather than risk injury that would jeopardize his career.

If Burns and the Chargers reach an agreement early this week, the two-time all-American has expressed an interest in playing in the contest.

Same old Allen deals in 'Skins

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Allen gained a reputation with the Rams as a wheeler-dealer who traded draft choices for proven veterans. It hasn't diminished in his five months with the Washington Redskins.

When Allen was chosen head coach and general manager of the Redskins, he faced problems similar to the ones that confronted him with the Rams in the late 1960s.

ALLEN

For the most part, he had to make defensive repairs. The Redskins finished the 1970 season last in the 13-team National Conference in rushing defense and 12th in total defense.

To convert a loser into a winner in California, Allen brought in the following in trades: linebackers Maxie Baughan and Myron Pottios, safetyman Richie Petitbon and cornerback Kermit Alexander. He also talked linebacker Jack Pardee out of retirement.

And as his his way, Allen had only two of his first 10 draft choices remaining in his first year with the Rams, who improved from a record of 4 victories and 10 losses to 8-6.

In the ensuing four years, the Rams had two first-place and two second-place finishes in their division.

Many observers believed Allen's game as a trader would present a problem in Washington: no one would stand in line to make a deal with him.

His first deal, however, was with his old club, the Rams. That brought him Baughan, Pottios, Pardee, offensive lineman John Wilbur and defensive tackle Diron Talbert for draft choices and a reserve player.

SINCE HE took over the Redskins, Allen has acquired 18 players — 15 by trade and three free agents — and four draft choices while trading away five players and 20 draft choices.

He has added five defensive linemen — Talbert, Verlon Biggs, Ron McDole, Jimmie Jones and free agent Dave Cahill; four linebackers, Pardee, Pottios, Baughan and free agent Frank Richter, and defensive back-kick returner Speedy Duncan.

Newcombers on offense are quarterbacks Bill Kilmer and Sam Wyche, runners Jeff Jordan and Tom Mason, receiver Boyd Dowler and linemen Wilbur, Mike Taylor and free agent Errol Linden.

The departed Redskins are linebackers Marlin McKeever and Tom Roussell, defensive end Leo Carroll, runner Henry Dyer and receiver Flea Roberts.

After he made his most recent deal — the acquisition of Biggs from the New York Jets, Allen indicated he is still not trough.

"I'd like to have a few more like this one," he said referirng to Biggs. "We're not finished. Anytime we can get a good football player at the right price, we'll take him."

It is significant that through Allen's politicking, the National Football League recently extended its interconference trading deadline from April 15 to July 31.

Allen's last six deals, all with AFL teams, would not have been possible under the traditional deadline.

The 49-year-old Allen made clear his intentions at his first news conference in Washington. He has enunciated at every opportunity since.

"The future is now," he says. "I plan to win in 1971. I have never believed in long-range programs of six, seven or eight years."

Fight sidelines Fosse one week

Racial first for South Africa

RAY FOSSE
'I'll remember'

Black and white athletes from South Africa competed against each other for the first time ever Saturday.

With track athletes from Malawi and Rhodesia also taking part, the meet fell within the new South African definition of "international," and qualified for mixed competition.

The 16 South Africans attended as individuals, not as a national team, in Salisbury, Rhodesia, because of their expulsion last year from the International Amateur Athletics Federation.

a week with a hand injury suffered in a free-for-all Friday night against the Detroit Tigers, made no effort to hide his bitter feelings Saturday.

Fosse suffered a spike wound of the right hand that required five stitches when he was kicked by Tiger pitcher Bill Denehy.

"Denehy will be coming in to score on me some time and I'm going to remember him," said Fosse.

VETERAN Australian tennis player Bob Howe didn't qualify for the Wimbledon tennis championships, but got lucky and is able to replace a player who withdrew.

"How lucky can you get?" said Howe until finding out he must face Rod Laver.

"IT WAS the most difficult decision of my life," said Cleveland baseball player Ken Harrelson Saturday after he told manager Alvin Dark he was retiring from baseball at the end of the season to join the professional golf tour.

"If somebody will back him for three to five years, I think he can make it," said Dark.

FANS will get a chance to get an inside look at what goes on in a major league dugout prior to Monday night's TV game-of-the-week on NBC.

The show was shot during a recent Detroit-Washington game where Tiger manager Billy Martin was wired for sound.

"The next guy who agrees with an umpire," shouts Martin at one point, "is fined $100."

A 46-year-old member of the 1968 U.S. Olympic fencing team, Uriah Jones, has become the first black to win the national foil championship.

Allison's Dodge up for sale, but after Golden State 400

By ALLEN WOLFE

RIVERSIDE — Bobby Allison has a car for sale — and it boasts some unique optional equipment.

His rakish maroon and yellow 1970 Dodge Charger is powered by a 427-cubic inch engine featuring a four-speed stick shift, heat-activated fire extinguisher, roll bar cage and instrumentation including tachometer and oil pressure. It averages a little over four miles to the gallon.

It also happens to be the car Allison qualified on the pole position for today's $85,000 Golden State 400 Grand National stock car race at Riverside International Raceway. A turnout of 35,000 is expected to see the green flag drop for the start at 1 p.m.

The race, last year known as the Falstaff 400, is one of only two NASCAR races run on a road course. All told, 40 drivers will answer the starting bell and will duel over Riverside's demanding 2.62-mile, nine-turn layout.

"You can buy it (the car) after the race for $12,000 — as is," laughs Bobby, currently the hottest driver in NASCAR racing with three consecutive victories. "Or, we can set up the car and have it race ready for another $2,000."

The car appears to be a steal for the money — particularly after Allison's qualifying performance Friday.

The Hueytown, Ala., veteran, winner of the World 600 at Charlotte, the Motor State 400 at Irish Hills, Mich., and the Mason-Dixon 300 at Dover, Del., during the last six weeks as the No. 1 chauffeur for the famous Holman-Moody racing team, powered to an impressive 107.315 mph clocking to capture the pole.

Richard Petty, winner of seven of the 23 NASCAR races run this season, flanks Allison on the outside of the front row at 105.739 mph in his Petty-blue 1971 Plymouth Road Runner.

Allison is at a loss to explain his new-found fortune the past six weeks.

"Racing produces crazy situations," he laughs. "Sometimes you have long winning and losing streaks. I guess I'm just in the middle of a hot streak. I hope it continues.

"Of course, John (Holman) and Ralph (Moody) run one of the best teams in racing and I was fortunate to sign with them. They do an outstanding job of preparing a car. I've been winning because of it."

Allison has been driving a Holman-Moody-owned Mercury, but brought his own Dodge Charger to Riverside hoping for two objectives — winning the Golden State 400 and selling the car afterward.

"That sure would be nice," he says. "It'd put some money in my pocket and I wouldn't have to trailer the car back to Hueytown."

Proctor fights flu to win race

RIVERSIDE — Clem Proctor won the California 100 for Sportsman stock cars Saturday at Riverside International Raceway — but he had more to contend with than the other drivers.

Proctor, fighting the lingering effects of stomach flu, gunned his familiar red, white and blue 1963 Thunderbird to a comfortable nine-second victory over Gene Riniker of Riverside, handling a 1964 Oldsmobile.

A Paramount night club owner, Proctor dominated the race he called "a 100-mile trophy dash." His race strategy was simple — qualify on the pole, run as hard as you can to build up a lead and hope you hold it. He did just that.

Proctor took the pole at 105.138 mph—a full 3 mph faster than second-seeded Jim Insolo of Mission Hills — and won going away.

His margin at the end could have bordered on the ridiculous had it not been for a mix-up with a track official following a yellow flag incident.

Proctor, 43, stretched out a 10-second lead over Insole after only four laps, but then had to slow the pace when the yellow flag was displayed for Johnny Anderson's stalled car in turn nine.

On lap eight, a flag marshall riding in the pace car on the back straightaway accidentally slipped and involuntarily gave the cars the green flag. Before Proctor acknowledged it, Insolo and Riniker had passed him.

Proctor admitted he looked for a substitute driver two hours prior to the race, but decided to race himself despite his illness.

"Some people call it Montazuma's Revenge," cracked the 21-year racing veteran. "I sure had a bad case of it last night. I woke up three times and took a pint of Pepto-Bismol. I'm feeling a lot better now."

Ickx may be man to beat Stewart today

ZANDVOORT, The Netherlands (UPI) — Belgian Ferrari driver Jacky Ickx clocked the fastest lap in two days of trials for today's Grand Prix of Holland Formula One world championships race.

His margin over Tyrrell-Ford's Jackie Stewart of Scotland made experts forecast the Belgian, who is runnerup in the world standings, will close in on the Scotsman who is at the top of the table.

After three races, Stewart has 24 points from two victories and a second place. Ickx has 10 points from one second and one third.

During the trials, Ickx clocked the fastest lap in 1:17.42 and Stewart's 1:17.64 was the third best time, after Mexican BRM driver Pedro Rodriguez who clocked 1:17.46. The Mexican is in eighth position on the world table with three points.

Ferrari driver Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., who holds third place in the world standings with nine points, clocked 1:18.85 for a seventh place in the grid.

Starting with Zandvoort, Stewart is expected to face a tougher challenge in races to be held on less tortuous and considerably faster circuits which might favor the 12-cylinder Ferraris.

ANGELS

93-degree heat, struggled to his sixth victory with a gritty performance.

He was presented with a 4-0 lead after two innings but yielded a two-run homer to former Angel Ed Kirkpatrick in the third and surrendered the tying two runs in the fourth when the Royals assaulted him for three singles and a double.

Johnson's homer, a 400-foot shot to his opposite field — right — severed the deadlock permanently in the sixth.

The Ax also made a fine leaping catch at the base of the left field fence to take an extra-base hit away from Chuck Harrison, which came on the heels of Kirkpatrick's homer.

ANGEL OF DAY

ALEX JOHNSON homered, singled and drove in two runs as Angels flipped Royals, 7-4.

Still, Phillips yanked Johnson for defensive purposes in the eighth and replaced him with a limping Roger Repoz who is suffering from a bruised foot and who candidly maintains, "I can hardly walk."

Insurance came in the eighth when the Angels nicked Ted Abernathy for two runs on doubles by Jim Spencer and Jeff Torborg and singles by John Stephenson and Sandy Alomar.

Insurance for Jim Fregosi may be harder to obtain, especially if Dick Walsh is selling the policy.

ANGEL ANGLES: The Royals are expecting a capacity crowd of 35,000 for today's doubleheader, which is also Cap Day . . . Tom Murphy and Clyde Wright are ticketed to start for the Angels against Bruce Dal Canton and Al Fitzmorris . . . Ken Berry, suffering from a jammed left index finger, knuckle and thumb, returns to Anaheim today for treatment by Dr. Jules Rasinski. Berry may be out of action a week or more . . . Jim Maloney, who pulled a muscle in his rib cage Friday night, will remain with the team but it is not known when he'll be ready.

The Angels literally knocked KC starter Mike Hedlund out of the box . . . Sandy Alomar slammed a line drive off Hedlund's right kneecap in the second inning and he had to go to the pits for repairs. The Royals do not think Hedlund will miss a turn . . . Jeff Torborg upped his average from .061 to .103 with two doubles in four trips. He also added an RBI. "Nice to see you guys again," he addressed reporters. Torborg confessed he had "no idea of what I was doing at the plate for the first two months of the season but I'm beginning to feel like I did in the spring. It always takes a couple of games." Torborg, who is not used to being on base, fell down rounding third in the ninth inning and couldn't score on John Stephenson's single. "I didn't even touch the bag," he said cheepishly. "I flew right over it." Torborg has caught three games in succession now. His record with the Dodgers was 12.

Gioia, Fenoglio throw 1-hitter

Craig Gioia and Steve Fenoglio combined on a one-hitter while 27 Rockets handed San Pedro its first loss, 6-1, to highlight Saturday's Harbor League American Legion action.

Gioia and Fenoglio were too much for Peterson to overcome as Shua took an easy decision by breaking the game open with four runs in the sixth inning.

Jim Motz pitched and batted the Rockets past San Pedro, 6-5. In other games Lakewood beat Carson, 5-2, and Alamitos Bay downed the Flyers, 4-2.

Motz went 3-for-4, scored two runs and brought home the winning run on Steve Rowe's sacrifice fly in the eighth. The Rockets and San Pedro are now 3-1 in league play.

John Arce's two-run pinch-hit home run with his team trailing 2-1 and Doug Slettvett's 13-strikeout performance paced Lakewood. Bob Hill and winning pitcher Greg Sanossian had two apiece to pace Alamitos Bay.

Reliever John Engelke's two-run single in the fourth inning broke a 2-2 tie and Royse Insurance went on to defeat the Harbor Lions 7-3 in the nightcap. Engelke, who pitched shutout ball for five innings got the win and was aided by Bob Cameron's three singles and walk to lead the 14-hit barrage.

Bruins win team crown

UCLA freshman, Connors, wins NCAA tennis title

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Jim Connors of UCLA, using a tremendous serve and consistent placement, captured the 87th NCAA singles championship over Roscoe Tanner of Stanford Saturday.

Connors, the first freshman to win the title, handed the Stanford sophomore a 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 loss in humid 90-degree heat.

The Bruins star, an 18-year-old Belleville, Ill., native, handed Tanner his second defeat in the NCAA finals in two consecutive years.

Connors, the top-ranking U.S. juniors player and second seed in the NCAA championship, lost his service only once in 19 games while winning his eighth match of the week.

Tanner, a member of the U.S. Junior Davis Cup team, lost his service three times and on each occasion it was a crucial setback. Tanner had seven double faults compared with only four for Connors.

Except for loss of service, Tanner and Connors traded point for point in the evenly contested title match until the decisive fourth set when Connors pulled ahead 5-3. Tanner never regained an edge.

"His serve was the best I've ever seen," Tanner said. "I was never able to put any pressure on him."

Connors, a lefthander like Tanner, agreed.

"I kept the pressure on him with returns," said Connors, who was heading for Wimbledon Saturday night. "I had the feeling throughout the match that I had a slight advantage."

UCLA's Jeff Borowiak and Haroon Rahim captured the doubles' title with a straight-set victory over Trinity's Dick Stockton and Bob McKinley. The Bruin twosome won 7-6, 7-6.

UCLA, which clinched the team championship in the quarterfinals, had 35 points as the results of Connors' singles win and the Bruins' doubles victory. Trinity, Texas, was second with 27.

11 Long Beach golfers bid

60th State amateur on tap

PEBBLE BEACH (Special) — Eleven Long Beach golfers, including former champion John Richardson, will be among 200 players attempting to qualify for the 60th annual California Amateur Golf Championship.

Pebble Beach and Cypress Point will be the courses over which the state's finest golfers will try to qualify Monday and Tuesday for the match play tournament that gets under way Wednesday.

One year ago the Long Beach contingent won only two qualifying spots as it took a score of 157 or better to make the field of 64.

Besides Richardson, the 1961 champion, other Long Beach golfers are Mike Fedderly, Willard Bryan, Tony Ferrara, Vern Brickey, Bill Kesler, Fred Good, Richard Dick, Gary Ballantyne, Len Young and John McMonegal.

From the Long Beach area are Larry Watts, Bellflower; Mark Pfeil, Palos Verdes; Marc Wankier, Santa Ana; Jim Gonzales, Anaheim Les Klabunde, Stanton Roger Russell, Santa Ana; Dick Clover, La Mirada; Bill Fernandez and Bob Winslow, Downey; and Don Baker, Torrance.

The next low 80 shooters after the first 64 will have an opportunity to compete in one of five flights, 16 players each, at Spyglass Hill and Pebble Beach.

Former champions competing are Richardson, Eli Bariteau (1940, 1958) Verne Callison (1959, 1965), Ed Monaghan (1940), Mat Palacio (1936), Ernie Piper (1941, 1944).

Sixteen Long Beach golfers will compete in the handicap flights at Carmel Valley and Del Monte. The 16 and their handcaps are: Ray Bertotti (6), Richard Vescio (6), George Lombino (7), Jed Donahoe (7), Chuck Beatty (8), Gene Hurst (8), Jack Wolter (8), Ed Brainard (9), T.R. Foth (12), Glenn Mu ls (13), Elsworth Smith (15), Marshall Smith (14), Fred Bucher (13), George Boyar (11), John Castelvecchi (10) and Al Davison (11).

Former champions seek L.B. tee title

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Two women who have won half the titles in the last 18 years head the field for the 44th annual Long Beach City Women's Golf Championship that gets under way Monday at Skylinks.

Harriet Glanville, the golfing schoolteacher from Paramount, has won the event six times while Mrs. Edward (Jane) Becker, a Long Beach resident who plays out of Candlewood CC in Whittier, is a three-time champion.

The last time Mrs. Becker played in this tournament was 1967 when she lost to Mrs. Mildred Stanley on the 18th hole at Skylinks, 2 up. She has won many titles elsewhere since then, however.

"I'd love to win again in Long Beach," said the Poly High graduate who is playing to a 6-handicap, about two higher than she has played to in the past.

Miss Glanville, a losing finalist last year, is hitting the ball longer than she ever has, and she recently carded a sparkling 2-under-par 72 (for women) at Skylinks.

Defending champion Laura Baugh is bypassing the tournament to compete in the U.S. Women's Open. So is Mary Elizabeth Shea, another strong player.

Twenty-seven ladies with handicaps of 10 or less will vie for 16 spots in Monday's one-day qualifying. Match play is Tuesday through Friday.

Wadkins seeks NCAA golf crown

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A field of 217 of the nation's best collegiate golfers will tee off this week in the 74th annual NCAA Golf Championships, to be played at the Tucson National Country Club.

The first round of the tournament is Wednesday, with practice rounds Monday and Tuesday.

Wake Forest boasts the individual golfer with the most impressive record. He's Lanny Wadkins, who finished second in last year's competition. Wadkins was the 1970 U.S. Amateur champion, a member of the World Cup team, and a member of the U.S. Walker Cup team. This year, he won two intercollegiate tournaments.

Cal State Long Beach, participating in its first NCAA championship, has entered a five-man team of John Beetham, Ken Kribel, Steve Cook, Mike Reehl and Pete Nadell.

Also representing the PCAA will be Cal State Los Angeles with a team led by Rich Sims and Long Beach resident Dick Mortenson.

Lakes attractive on central coast

(This is another of a series of stories about lakes visited in the May trip while using a Vista Liner Camper loaned to us by Phil Hardy of Santa Maria, western distributor for the Utah company.)

San Luis Obispo County might have felt cheated when San Antonio and Nacimiento Lakes were formed inasmuch as the latter was in that county, but administered then and now by Monterey County as a part of its irrigation program.

Tent door zipper problems often occur because the tent is staked out too tightly. Be sure there is no tension on the door section of the tent.

However, what San Luis Obispo County lost in that deal was forgotten in the opening of Lopez Lake, just seven miles out of Arroyo Grande, which is south of Pismo Beach. The county's Department of Parks and Beaches really went all-out to make Lopez one of the beauty spots of the central California coast.

Named for an early Californian, Senor Lopez, the lake covers an area of 4,300 acres, with 22 miles of shoreline and 200 acres of camping, trailering and picnicking facilities. It is situated in a canyon rich in Indian and early Spanish lore, has beautiful and well-kept restrooms and even a museum of natural history, with stuffed birds and animals that are native to the area.

Heavily wooded with oaks and other large trees, the lake area is a delight for hikers, horseback riders and photographers. Unlike some other lakes along the coast and very much unlike some of Los Angeles County's "closed ponds," swimming and water-skiing are allowed, but the park officials try to keep the skiers out of the fishermen's coves.

TROUT FISHING—YES, TROUT—is superb at Lopez along with warm-water species, such as channel catfish, largemouth bass, bluegill and crappie. Lopez is only about 200 miles from downtown Long Beach, but has become known so slowly that few persons try it.

The reason was simple: Lopez was one of those "instant" lakes; it filled so quickly after the dam was constructed that nobody in the south knew it was there. However, a lake accommodating hundreds of campers — it has 364 units, some with complete hookups — now is being "discovered" rapidly by the fishermen, skiers and even sailors.

Today, for instance, the state championships for the Hobie Cats (both 14s and 16s) are being held at Lopez.

It didn't take the fishermen long to "find" Lopez, once its fishing reports were published in newspapers here. The Department of Fish and Game discovered that Lopez will support trout the year 'round and started plants there.

Native trout came from somewhere because a report came from Lopez just last week Mrs. Evelyn Atwood, in charge of the Lopez Lake and Recreational Area office, reported that Jane Beamsley, Lompoc, had topped all anglers by catching a limit of three trout, the largest of which weighed 9¼ pounds.

A PERSON CAN'T SKIP LIGHTLY over San Luis Obispo County's recreational facilities without mentioning Santa Margarita Lake, about eight miles out of the town by the same name. When 101 became a fast freeway, everybody almost forgot there was such a town as Santa Margarita, but the fishermen didn't forget the lake.

The latest report from Santa Margarita showed such fishing facts as these: Mary Knaeble, Burbank, big string of bluegill and a 1½-pound crappie; Troy Cross, Stratford, 8½-pound catfish, and Bud Martin, San Luis Obispo, 30 crappie.

Unlike Lopez, no body contact with water is allowed at Santa Margarita because it is a domestic water supply reservoir for direct household use. For that reason, no overnight camping is allowed at Santa Margarita. There is a large privately operated campground within a short distance from the lake entrance.

For more information about either Lopez or Santa Margarita, send for brochures to the Department of Parks and Beaches, 1009 Monterey St., San Luis Obispo 93401.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Jim Wilkes, of Paradise Lodge, 15 miles north of Bishop on lower Rock Creek, sends word that Louis Kirby, 4125 Mendez St., Long Beach, has had a most successful fishing adventure at his place, topping his catches right in front of the cabins with a 15-inch rainbow.

American Trap Shooting champions and near-champs are pow-powing at clay pigeons this weekend at Winchester West in preparation for the ATA California championships, starting at Kingsburg Tuesday.

Almost 700 shooters took part in last year's state shoot and 400,000 clay targets were thrown. Bob Davidson and Bill Hunter, publicists for the California Golden State Trapshooters Assn., Inc., are expecting an increase of from 25 to 35 percent in the number of shooters at Kingsburg this year.

Charlie Davis, a manufacturer's representative for several companies and, in my book a most successful angler, says that he and a friend fished Lake Henshaw with Eddie Pope's new Fishback lures, caught and released more than 100 bass, but kept 10 fish that weighed 29 pounds. Nice going, Charlie!

Friday night at Anaheim

State's top prep ballplayers meet

California, which annually produces more top caliber high school baseball players than any other state, will showcase much of the 1971 talent Friday night in the third California Police Activites League (Cal-PAL) sponsored North-South game at Anaheim Stadium.

Co-coach of the 16-man South team is Lakewood High's John Herbold who will share duties with Augie Lambert of L.A. Wilson.

The South team, which begins workouts Monday, will have a tuneup game Tuesday night at Blair Field against the Coast League Connie Mack All-Stars.

Herbold is high on the team even before seeing them together: "Everyone was all-something or another and, even though we lost a lot of players who have signed, it should be a good group."

Two of the best are L.A. City player-of-the year Anthony Davis from San Fernando, only player ever to be honored as MVP in two sports. Davis will attend USC this fall on a football scholarship.

The other is outfielder Terry Whitfield from little Palo Verde High in Blythe, the New York Yankees' No. 1 pick in the recent major league draft.

Davis batted .488 this season while stealing 23 bases in 16 games. Whitfield, a 6-2, 190 pounder, batted .470.

Bill Bolden (Santa Ana Valley) plus Rick Bethke (Bellflower) and Jim Umbarger of L.A. Grant are the South pitchers.

The South roster also includes Lakewood shortstop Jerry Pitts. Los Alamitos catcher Terry Stupy and Garden Grove first baseman Steve Jones. The North team will arrive Thursday.

Bill Powell and Paul Mantellino will manage the Connie Mack Stars comprised of players from Hawaiian Gardens, Great-Western Cardinals, Harbor Lions, Mary Star, Norwalk, Royse Insurance Johnson Sawdust and the Long Beach Colts.

Hollypark stages Cinderella, Niagara gets roses for role

That favorite children's story, Cinderella, was enacted at Hollywood Park again Saturday, but this time it had a completely new cast of characters.

Cinderella was disguised as a 3-year-old colt named Niagara, whose owners Merrill Albert of Los Angeles and J. Randall Stoke of Arcadia purchased him for $15,000 before his first race this winter at Santa Anita.

Niagara ran the race of his life to hang a "nose decision" on Crimson Clem in one of the most exciting runnings of the 26th Cinema Handicap. A half-length behind Crimson Clem came the 8-5 favorite, Triple Bend, who finished just a neck in front of Dr. Knighton.

Fernando Toro, riding the son of Bold Lad for the first time, wheeled him to the extreme outside at the head of the stretch. Niagara caught Crimson Clem inside the sixteenth pole, got about a head in front, and then barely held on as Crimson Clem rallied again right at the wire.

Albert and Stoke earned $40,400 from the gross purse of $67,400 and Niagara paid $17 to those in the crowd of 40,040 who backed him. His time for a mile and one-eighth on the grass was 1:48 1/5.

Niagara is the first horse ever owned by Stoke and the second by Albert, both of whom are lawyers and were classmates at UC Berkeley. They bought him from William Haggin Perry on the advice of trainer Tom Pratt, who scored his first-ever stakes win in Southern California.

"I thought at the start that it was Golden Gate all over again. He fell on his nose at the break up there last week (in the Pacifica Stakes) and he was banged around pretty good at the start." said Pratt.

Toro credited some pre-race advice by Pratt for Niagara getting into the winner's circle. "The trainer told me before the race that this horse will pull himself up when he gets to the lead. I really kept after him all the way to the wire, and that other horse probably was in front a few jumps past the finish."

Alvaro Pineda, who rode Crimson Clem, thought he also was in front at the finish. "I thought I won it, but it didn't turn out that way. I had no where to go on the turn and had to send him through a pretty tight hole. I like my chances next time."

UPON COMPLETION of an investigation conducted by the Hollywood Park Board of Stewards, trainer M. E. (Buster) Millerick was suspended for 15 days under California horse racing board rule No. 1873, known as the trainer's responsibility rule.

The investigation stemmed from a report of the Truesdail Laboratory that the urine test of the horse Vitenpost, winner of the 6th race June 12 at Hollywood Park, showed positive to the drug methamphetaime.

Millerick, who was relieved of the duties of training his public stable earlier in the week ,will begin his suspension on today, through Sunday, July 4. During that period he will be denied the privilege of the grounds.

"The results of our investigation show no evidence that Buster Millerick is personally responsible for the positive, but under rule No. 1873 he is responsible for the horses under his care and we therefore have issued a ruling," said a board of Stewards spokesman.

MALLOY NEGOTIATES NEW POCONO COURSE

MT. POCONO, Pa. (UPI) — Racing teams for nine drivers arrived Saturday at Pocono International Raceway on the first day at practice to prepare for the Schaefer 500 on July 3.

The only driver who actually negotiated the track in this Eastern Pennsylvania resort community was Jim Malloy, who went five laps in his Norris Industries Eagle. He termed the raceway a "challenging course."

Among those entered were Al Unser, this year's Indy winner, his brother Bobby, Mario Andretti, A. J. Foyt and Roger McCluskey.

Al Unser and some of those who competed at Indianapolis will be competing today in the nearby Nazareth 100 dirt track race. Andretti is a hometown favorite.

Second start of meeting

13,424 watch Kaweah Bar win first at Los Alamitos

Coming on strong in the final 75 yards, Kaweah Bar overtook Whataway To Go to win the $10,000 Barbra B. Saturday night at Los Alamitos.

The victory was the five-year-old Palomino's initial triumph of 1971, this being his second start. He was fourth in the $10,000 Shue Fly a week earlier at 350 yards.

Kaweah Bar broke with the pack in good shape, but after a couple hundred yards, it appeared that Whataway To Go was going to beat him to the wire. However, with the final surge, he managed to gain the lead and win by a half-length. Another three-quarters of a length back for third was Royal Doulton.

The winning time of the race was 20.1 seconds for 400 yards, despite Kaweah Bar carrying top weight of 127. Whataway To Go was next high weight with 121.

The crowd of 13,424 sent Kaweah Bar off as the 9-10 favorite, and he paid $3.80, $2.60 and $2.40. Whataway To Go returned $2.80 and $2.60 with the show price on Royal Doulton $3.20.

Deceit foils fans, loses triple crown

Combined News Serivces

Our Cheri Amour, the longest shot in the race, decisively won $131,625 in the 55th running of the Coaching Club American Oaks Saturday at Belmont Park as Deceit failed dismally in her bid to win the New York Racing Assn. Triple Crown for 3-year-old fillies.

Edward P. Taylor's Deceit, winner of the Acorn and Mother Goose, the first two legs of the Triple, finishing seventh in a field of eight.

Our Cheri Amour, Helen Vizzi's $1,800-yearling purchase, took the lead leaving the back stretch and won by four lengths over Mrs. Louisa d'A Carpenter's Graffitti and paid a winning mutual of $30.20.

The winner ran the 1½ miles in a stakes record of 2:29 4-5. It was only the third time in 55 runnings the Oaks was contested at 1½ miles.

Calumet Farm's Son Ange, a 9-1 shot, won the $113,400 Grand Prix at Arlington Park Saturday while heavily favored Jim French came in fourth.

Son Ange, packing only 114 pounds and ridden by Charles Baltazar, scored the two-length victory over Mr. Pow Wow while Staunch Avenger was third, a half-length behind.

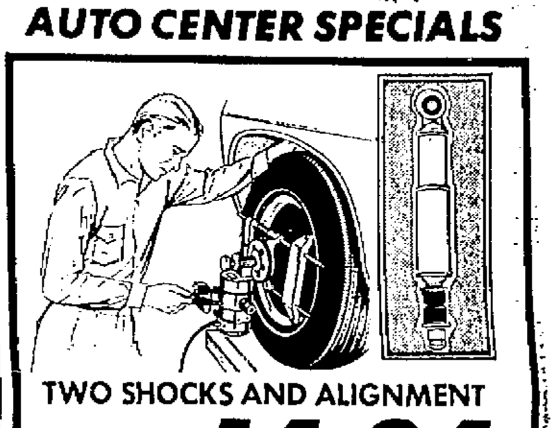

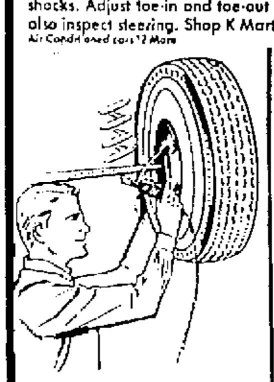

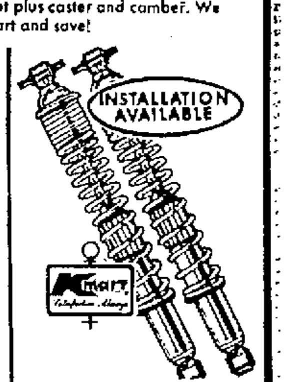

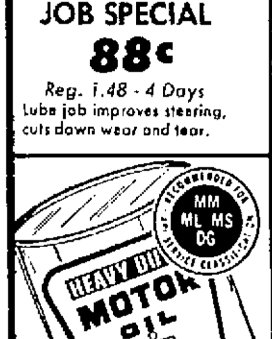

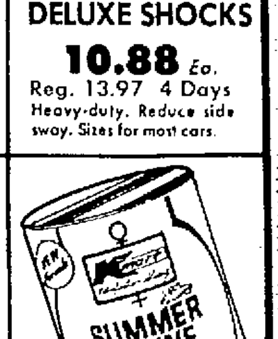

Native Royalty, a 3-to-1 favorite, responded to jockey Ronnie Campbell's urging at the three-quarter pole and won the 23rd running of the $100,000-added Michigan Mile at the Detroit Race Course by 1½ lengths Saturday.

The four-year-old colt moved through traffic at the stretch turn to outrace Royal Harmony to the wire in the richest race in Michigan history and the fourth richest in the nation.

Twist The Axe thundered home to take the $50,000 added Ohio Derby by a nose over fast-closing Spotted Kid Saturday at Thistledown Raceway.

Pre-race favorite, Calumet Farm's Eastern Fleet, finished third, 5½ lengths behind Spotted Kid.

NIAGARA was unhurried at the start, took a position clear on the outside, responded when settled into the upper stretch and rallied steadily to catch the leaders in the late stages and won gamely from CRIMSON CLEM while coming to the finish. CRIMSON CLEM, without early speed, caught his full stride at the half, maneuvered his way up from between horses, offered his best bid inside the sixteenth pole to get a slim lead over TRIPLE BEND and gave way grudgingly in the closing strides. TRIPLE BEND was sent up at the start to find a favorable striking position near the pacemakers on the outside, rallied near the furlong pole while using the middle of the track to take the lead from PETES RULER and slackened almost in the shadow of the wire. DR. KNIGHTON broke in stride to be close up early, loomed a threat in mid-stretch and hung while having room between horses. PETES RULER broke alertly to set the early pace, saved ground and weakened in the final furlong. BATTLE COLORS lacked early speed, took up when intimidated early on the backstretch, closed some ground near the furlong pole and hung while clear in the late stages. PRIMATO saved as much ground as possible and tired. HIGH AND MIGHTY was hustled back and took up at the start, checked while leaving the club house turn, rallied from along the rail but could make little impact. RESTLESS RUNNER drifted out on the final turn. STRIKE OUT forced the early pace and gave way. MIDGET MAN shortened stride early.

In these days of rising hospital costs, you need the extra cash security provided by CNA/210.

Hospital costs have increased over 80% in the last 5 years. And with the high cost of medical care, they're expected to increase even more the next 5 years. Unfortunately, health insurance rarely pays it all. So, the uninsured portion has to come out of your pocket. Medical bills added to the higher cost of household needs can really cause you financial problems. That's why you need the low-cost protection of CNA/210.

$210 is paid directly to you for every week you spend in the hospital. And CNA/210 pays up to two full years. Money you can depend on, no matter what happens.

Think about it! Your present hospital insurance probably doesn't cover the entire cost of things like a private room, x-rays, doctor bills, drugs, whole blood, private nurse, ambulance service, etc. You may have to use your savings to make up the difference.

Why not enroll now in CNA/210 so that you'll have that extra cash when it's needed?

A low-cost solution to high-cost hospitalization from one of the leading insurance companies.

The reasons Continental Casualty Company can offer this low-cost insurance coverage for you and your family are:

1. A 3-day waiting period that acts much like the familiar automobile insurance deductible. Your basic hospital insurance can cover much of this three-day expense. What you need is protection against the really big expenses of a longer stay—four days or more. That's what this plan provides.

2. Savings, which we effect by enrolling a great many people at one time through newspaper advertisements such as this, can be passed on to you. Our costs for processing can be kept to a minimum and this keeps the premium cost at the lowest possible level.

3. Continental Casualty's experience (over 70 years) in health insurance, with experts who design up-to-date insurance protection at minimum rates.

This low-cost insurance protection that pays you tax-free cash can help keep you on your feet, while you're on your back, with money that's yours to spend any way you wish.

CNA/210 pays in addition to all other insurance coverage.

Continental Casualty's cash payment plan should not take the place of other insurance coverage. It provides cash in addition to your present coverage. That's what makes CNA/210 so valuable to you and your family.

Sickness and accidents can strike without warning. That's why you should enroll now.

Don't say it can't happen to you. While you may be in good shape today, both physically and financially, tomorrow, you or any member of your family could be hospitalized for weeks or even months. That's why it's smart to prepare for tomorrow now. Remember, there's no guarantee your health will always be good. With Continental Casualty's low-cost tax-free cash plan, you'll know that if the worst happens, your family's welfare can be protected. $210 per week cash could mean the difference between keeping your bills current and going into debt.

These plans protect you and your family.

Sickness or injury is bad enough, without the added burden of knowing that your family is left without the financial security they've been used to for so many years. With the cost of living so high and still rising, it's a struggle to pay your regular bills at home, let alone hospital expenses not covered by insurance. That's why Continental Casualty offers CNA/210, a low-cost, tax-free cash plan of $210 per week ($30 per day) in addition to any other insurance benefits you might collect. Can you afford to pass up this special offer?

Low premiums remain the same—even as you go up in age.

Once you have enrolled in the CNA/210 plan, say at age 30, your premium will remain in the same age bracket classification, regardless of how long you keep your policy.

Your policy can't be cancelled because of your claims.

Your CNA/210 policy cannot be cancelled nor the rates changed because of your claims, or for any other reason, unless all policies with this same form number in your state are cancelled or changed.

If you are 65 or older, or when you reach 65, your benefits will be reduced by 50%.

What happens if your wife or children become hospitalized?

When you have the Family Plan or Husband-Wife Plan, and your wife is hospitalized, you receive $140 per week for every week she spends in the hospital up to two full years. It can put extra money in the house. Money that can keep you from digging into your savings for extra medical care, a babysitter to take care of the children, a maid to help with the house, or flowers and magazines to help brighten your wife's stay in the hospital.

When you have the Family Plan, and your child or children are hospitalized, you will receive $70 per week tax-free cash for each child as long as they're in the hospital, up to two full years. Since children often need special care, this money could provide them with extras you couldn't otherwise afford.

All of your dependent children are covered between the ages of 3 months through 18 years.

CNA/210 covers pre-existing medical conditions.

Pre-existing conditions are defined as those for which you have received medical treatment or advice within the 12 months prior to the effective date of your policy.

Unlike many policies of this type, CNA/210 covers you for these conditions 12 months after the last treatment or advice, or 24 months after the effective date of your policy, whichever is sooner.

Of course all other conditions are covered immediately.

Helps you remain independent when you reach 65.

Most people over 65 worry about becoming a burden to loved ones. Since it takes your body longer to recover from sickness or injury, you could easily be hospitalized for weeks or even months. Even though Medicare is good, it doesn't cover everything. That's why Continental Casualty is also including people over 65 in this offer. For a low monthly premium, you can receive $105 per week tax-free cash while hospitalized. Now people over 65 can be sure of their independence.

How can Continental Casualty offer such low-cost insurance?

Continental Casualty Company has been in the insurance business since the 1890's. Our vast experience in health insurance, a three-day elimination period before hospital benefits begin, and our desire to offer the best possible health insurance coverage makes CNA/210 possible.

Continental Casualty, with over 13 million policyholders, pays nearly $1 million per day in claims in all departments, and is licensed in all 50 states.

Continental Casualty Company is a member of CNA Financial Corporation, Chicago, Illinois. CNA has assets of over 3 billion dollars, and is one of the nation's largest and most respected companies.

There's a CNA/210 Plan for everybody.

The Family Plan covers husband, wife, and children with one low monthly premium. Future children are also covered (after age 3 months) at no rate increase. This plan also includes maternity benefits.

EXAMPLE: You're between the ages of 18 and 44 with two children. Your Family Plan premium is only $8.75 monthly. Over the years, you have more children. Each child is automatically covered after age 3 months at no increase in premium.

Once you're enrolled, each time you're hospitalized you receive $210 cash per week ($30 a day) tax-free. If your wife is hospitalized, you receive $140 per week ($20 a day). If your children are hospitalized, you receive $70 per week ($10 a day) for each hospitalized child.

If you're married with no children—or don't want them covered—choose the Husband-Wife Plan. Each time you're hospitalized you receive $210 cash per week ($30 a day). If your wife is hospitalized, you receive $140 per week ($20 a day). This plan also includes maternity benefits.

If you're a one parent family (man or woman), choose the Single Parent Family Plan. Each time you're hospitalized, you receive $210 cash per week ($30 a day). If your children are hospitalized, you receive $70 per week ($10 a day) for each hospitalized child.

If you're single, or married and just want to insure yourself, choose the Individual Adult Plan. Each time you're hospitalized, you receive $210 cash per week ($30 a day).

It's easy to enroll in Continental Casualty's CNA/210 cash plan.

1. Fill out the simple application below.
2. Make sure you check the box next to your desired plan.
3. Check the rate chart according to your age and the plan you want.

5. Mail the application along with the first month's premium to Continental Casualty Company, Box 1127, Chicago, Ill. 60690.

Enrollment is guaranteed even if you or any member of your family is currently sick. But only if your application is postmarked before 12 midnight, Wednesday, June 30th. Enroll now!

Guaranteed satisfaction—your money back if policy returned within 10 days. You are risking nothing, and you're covered while you make up your mind.

Acceptance guaranteed if you enroll now.

Two of these CNA/210 cash plans include maternity benefits.

If you have the Family Plan or Husband-Wife Plan, each time your wife enters the hospital for pregnancy, these plans pay you $140 a week, beginning with the fourth day in the hospital for up to 4 weeks. Pregnancy must commence after the effective date of your policy.

All benefit payments start after the third day of continuous hospitalization and continue up to two full years if necessary. Plans that cover maternity pay up to 4 weeks for each pregnancy.

WAVING GOOD-BYE to daddy as he leaves for work are Jimmie and Billy, with mommy, Gracia Foster.

Thoughts of a police wife

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

Gracia Fosler waves goodbye to her husband as he roars out of the driveway on his motorcycle. She then says a silent prayer for his safe return.

Not that she fears for his safety on the bike, but she fears for his life on the job.

Ron Foster is 27 and has been a policeman for six years. He followed in his father's footsteps.

Mrs. Foster knew she would be a policeman's wife when they married 5½ years ago. She has no regrets and wouldn't ask her husband to trade jobs. He's happy in what he's doing.

For safety sake, however, she would rather he did something else. "Naturally I worry about him," she said in reply to the question oft-asked of police wives.

"I DON'T LIVE in a constant state of worry. You keep the Lord in mind that your husband will come home safely. I worried a lot when we were first married and waited up for him. Now, I've resolved to sleep.

"I think the wives who live in continual fear don't make good police wives. They usually complain — literally nag the men. That makes it hard. Do you know policemen have the highest divorce rate of any career?"

Reflecting on this situation, Mrs. Foster added, "The high divorce rate is a serious problem. It comes about when a wife can't accept her husband's job. She has to accept him for what he is and realize he's dealing with the bad element of life. This has to affect his emotional state of mind. Sometimes he brings his job home, and a wife has to be able to cope and to offer understanding.

"A police wife also has to accept odd days off and strange hours. We've never lived an 8 to 5 life."

To counter this, she tries to make home special for her husband. "I try to make it a happy, cheerful place."

The Fosters met in church and religion plays an important part in their lives. "We always turn to God for guidance and direction." They have two sons, Jimmie, 2½, and Billy, 1½, with another expected in October. "We're thinking pink."

IT'S IMPORTANT FOR police wives to be trusting, she pointed out. "We have to know about his job and realize what he goes through each day. We should always take his side."

Failure to do this contributes to the high divorce rate in her opinion. A man who's already married decides to become a policeman and his wife just doesn't accept it.

"A wife can't hide it if she doesn't want her husband to be a policeman. Now the department has started to realize the important role a wife plays in the policeman's job. If a married man wants to join the force, the wife is interviewed, too, to find out her feelings about it," explained the soft-spoken 24-year-old who was primed for her job by her mother-in-law.

Policemen and police wives feel a kinship to other law enforcement personnel, which manifests itself whenever there's a shooting.

"YOU MIGHT BE walking through a room with news

Fathers delivered from mysteries of childbirth

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

When 7-pound, 13-ounce Julie Anne Graham made her debut to society two weeks ago, both mother and father were present to cheer her on.

"It was more like a graduation," proud parent Ken Graham explained. "We'd worked and planned and hoped for so long and suddenly she was there.

"I felt an almost instantaneous closeness to the new baby. 'She's mine,' I kept thinking, 'she's really mine.'"

Mrs. Graham described her feelings as "exuberant" following the birth of their first child. "I was wide awake and alert and fully able to enjoy the excitement of the birth."

According to Mrs. Marjorie Coghill, a registered nurse who has talked with countless couples over the past three years while training them in the husband-coached childbirth method, "The presence of the father in the delivery room brings out the best in new parents. They're over-joyed at the fact that this is something they created together and now they're realizing together.

"The training, usually required if the father wishes to be in the delivery room, keeps them close during the pregnancy. Then, later, because the husband has taken an active role during labor and delivery, his identification with the child comes sooner than it does for the man who has waited helplessly for it all to be over."

A SIMILAR OPINION was expressed by Dr. Carl Natter, the attending physician at the Graham birth and a long-time proponent of husband-coached childbirth.

"It's tremendous. Not only is it better for the baby because, in most cases, less medication is needed, but it's better for the father, who is often left out in the cold.

"Too many times childbirth is viewed as some kind of a hush-hush affair between the mother and her doctor. The father feels ignored. It's no wonder that many fathers have a difficult time adjusting when the new child is first brought home."

The Lamaze or husband-coached childbirth method was introduced in this country a number of years ago, but it has only been recently that it has been widely accepted.

"Much of this interest comes from the new generation of parents, young people in their twenties who want to be totally involved in every project and who want to be involved together.

"We get older parents, too, some of whom have five or six other children at home. Many of the fathers go through the training because they've heard it makes labor easier for their wives or because, after all this time, they've never seen a baby born.

"Others simply take the attitude 'I started this whole thing and now I'm going to see it through.'"

MRS. COGHILL received her childbirth teacher training at the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles in 1968 and is presently in the process of being accredited by the American Society for Psycho-Prophylaxis in Obstetrics.

"My first class, which I taught in 1968, attracted three couples. Now I'm seeing at least 40 couples a week and the sessions are booked until November. I think that's a pretty good indication of how popular the method has become."

A-list comes to town to sail, play, dine

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

NOMINATION for the best party of the year goes to Neil and Dolores Davis who hosted a reception for Assemblyman Jim Hayes aboard their barquentine (look that up in your F and W) Regina Maris berthed at Ports o' Call.

It is an every day occurrence when couples plan a surprise party for someone's birthday or anniversary but this was my first experience of a host and hostess surprising all their guests. We were chatting with Bill and Katherine Smith when Bill announced that he thought the ship was moving (when one has been at a cocktail party for a number of hours this feeling often results), however, the ship WAS moving and we were taken on a surprise cocktail cruise and even more surprises were yet to come.

Judge Ross Bigelow was running the ship all by himself. Some of us were looking around for life jackets but Millie assured us that he had a certificate that said he knew how to steer a sailing vessel of 140-plus feet.

It was a fascinating sight to see the crew in spotless starched whites begin to set the sails. I wondered why, in such a polished group, one of the young men was allowed to go without shoes until I saw this same crew member climbing monkey style in the rigging nearly 115 feet above deck.

All the while the crew was working a bright green parrot shouted encouragement from his perch amidships.

Among those sipping cocktails served by volunteer bartender, George Marx, were party co-chairman Ollie and Marguerite Speraw, Jim's Long Beach secretary Donna Hulin and her husband Michael, Naida Hansen, Peter and Nan Drake, Tom and Judy Romeyn, Elmer Decker, Dick and Bunny Kussman, and Maude McNeil.

Midway through the cruise, Claudia Hayes' brother, Clyde Lynch, decided to get a look at the view from the rigging and when his wife, Jacque, saw him, she nearly fainted.

Other climbers followed suit. Party co-chairman Dr. Walt Havekorst, resplendent in purple pants and shirt, while Barbara worried; Dave Tollichet in bright yellow sweater (his children thought it was "neat). Capt. Raymond Wallace joined the group as did Walt Nestler and Frank Sullivan. Claudia's mother, Imogene Dunn, looked on in horror as her husband, Ray, joined the climbers aloft.

Everyone came down safely and to my knowledge no one was even seasick.

One unexpected guest was Joseph Galea. He was dining at the restaurant and looked out to see the Regina Maris which is registered in the country of Malta. Since Mr. Galea is the honorary vice-consul of Malta he came aboard to join the fun.

Others in the gala crowd included Bill and Elaine Winston who arrived just in time for the cruise — they were late because they had just sailed back from Catalina. Marian Kendrick had to leave before we set sail, she is convalescing from surgery and a cruise in a wheel chair didn't seem to be in order. She and son, David, drove down from Burbank to say hello and view the unusual ship.

From Sacramento came Jim's capitol secretary, Sandy Hunt, with her husband, Alan. Bob and Betty Schmidt and Jim Vogts.

Others were Claudia's sister, Carol Quintana, with husband, Joe, brother, Creighton, with Kathi Crawford, Jack and Vickie Stanaland, Tom and Kathy Stanaland, Pancine Lanar and Margaret Arico.

All too soon the voyage ended and we were back at the dock.

And when we left the committee thanked US for coming and gave us a surprise gift. Signed and numbered prints of a sketch of the Regina Maris done by artist Ed Miracle.

A perfect ending for a perfect evening.

AND A SENATOR . . .

When Sen. Robert W. Packwood and his charming wife, Georgi, came to town they were given the red carpet treatment by the newly-organized President's Associates at Cal State, Long Beach.

The Oregon senator made his first visit to our town to address the graduating class at State. Besides a private tour of the Queen and a luncheon on the college campus, the couple was treated to a gourmet breakfast including eggs benedict high atop the International Towers.

President's Associates is patterned after similar groups on many university campuses throughout the country. Individuals and corporations join together to form a booster group for the president and in effect they become an "In" group with such privileges as having breakfast with a visiting senator, among others.

Sidelight on the gourmet breakfast: it was catered by the college staff who transported linen, china, crystal, et al to say nothing of the food to the penthouse of the Towers. Doug Richie, Lynn Frazier, John Foster and chef Bob Hawver were behind the scenes.

Guests included Associates Chairman Hugh and Pat Carter, Richard and Bunny Kussman, Florence Johnson, John and Barbara Rodgers (John is Alum president), Aaron Schultz, Jim Kresl, Edward Lovell, the Horns, CSLB President Steve and Nini, with daughter, Marsha, Dennis and Marilyn Murray and Don and Sandy Gill.

A SPORTSMAN and a Duke . . .

Frank and Pat McCabe, new tennis pros at El Dorado and Oakwood in Seal Beach, had a very posh guest list for the invitational to inaugurate the Oakwood courts.

Tommy Prothro, Rams coach, came by to watch the play and sample one of 150 box lunches personally prepared by Pat.

The John Waynes were there — Pilar playing excellent tennis and the Duke deep in a game of chess.

Former Davis Cup winner Horst Ritter and his petite partner, Juanita Zwaska, were the victors in the matches.

Watchers included Harold Guiver, Ray and Jean Smith, Fred and Roseanne DeGraw, and Eric Laddey watching Virginia.

Others taking to the courts ware Joyce Dale, Carol Senske, Carol Helmers, Carol Sukman, Dick and Melva Miller, Ken and Jean Frost and Tom and Coralee Crail.

DOROTHY Heard stepped off a plane from a visit to her hometown of Jackson, Mich., in time to hostess a table of friends at the second annual luncheon of Citizens for Law Enforcement at THE Ballroom of the Beverly Wilshire.

Sharing the table were Gladdes Neff, Terry Jurgensen, Fran Nason, Margaret Womack, Bernice Powers, Doris Brown and Janice Cole.

First person they saw when they entered was Pat Brennan who was reception hostess. Pat is pretty and charming but the real star of the day was that handsome man who heads the Impossible Mission Force, actor Peter Graves, who served as emcee.

Other recipients of CVO honors were Genevieve van Dugterin, 8,000 hours, Orrin Winter and Frank and Evelyn Forker with an excess of 5,000 hours each.

Another 29 volunteers were named for their outstanding service to the community. Receiving recognition for 3,000 hours-plus were Lou Burns, Florence Thomas, Sally Chapin, Florence Thomas, Madeline Frazer, Frank Holland, W. R. Harper and Julia Tobin and for 2,000 hours plus were Velta Allen, Irene Dair, Anne Matlin and Pearle Farrington.

Keynote speaker at the affair was Mrs. Frederick Wise Jr., who noted, "Life becomes increasingly complex; it must be a truism, however, that each of us benefits by that magic thread of kindness extended voluntarily from one person to another."

NUPTIAL NOTES:

How to report a wedding story

Planning a wedding can be a happy time, but it also can be a hectic one.

The Independent, Press-Telegram Life/style Section has a special printed form available for brides-to-be, which, when completed, gives us the necessary information for publication of your wedding story.

However, due to space limitations and an increasing number of brides, it has been necessary to shorten the form and include fewer details about the wedding. This form also provides a special offer to newlyweds of a one-month free subscription to either newspaper.

Instructions are printed at the top of the form, but to help future brides plan their schedule it is well to emphasize that these forms MUST be returned to the Life/style Section at least one week PRIOR to the wedding. Those received after the ceremony will NOT be printed.

Pictures will still be used, but must be turned in at the same time as the form. They should be of the bride alone, 5x7 or 8x10 in size, black and white glossy finish and taken by a professional photographer. Snapshots and Polaroids are unacceptable.

Pictures, which are not returnable, will be used only once—with the engagement OR wedding write-up.

We cannot reserve space or promise publication, but every effort is made to use the stories as space permits.

There is no charge for picture or story.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Cookie recipe a family favorite

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

Flying high or on terrafirma, he's consistent! And you can always be sure his sense of humor is showing.

Officially, today's Chef of the Week, Gordon Hayter, is general manager, Long Beach Employees Association.

He says, "This is a position I have held for nearly three years — a position which is giving me the opportunity to work with the people in the city I love so much."

Born in Claredon, Tex., his family fetched him to Long Beach before he was 2 years old. He's a product of local schools — Willard Elementary, Jefferson Junior and Wilson High Schools. He also holds a diploma from Long Beach City College.

About this time, World War II, came along and Hayter became a dive bomber pilot in the South Pacific. After flying nearly 100 combat missions and serving with the Guerrillas in the Philippines, he was honored with three Distinguished Flying Crosses, nine Air Medals and two Bronze Stars. What's more, he was flying our own Long Beach built Douglas "Dauntless". He presently is a Marine Corps Reserve Lt. colonel, retired.

Hayter returned to Long Beach on V-J Day, and married his wife, Betty Lou.

HE THEN enrolled at USC and received his teaching credential. After teaching 8th grade at Los Alamitos Elementary School (before Rossmoor was ever dreamed of) he began working for Reynolds Metal Co.

During his 14 years with them, Hayter traveled all over the United States, including seven months special assignment in the Philippines.

Hayter resigned from Reynolds to become a partner in a contracting and manufacturing business. He remained there six years before taking his present position.

He has served as president of East Long Beach Kiwanis Club, as a Camp Fire and Boy Scout Council member and as youth director of First Congregational Church.

This led to his receiving a PTA honorary life membership and being selected by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of its 1957 "Man of the Year" nominees. He presently serves with the March of Dimes and Chamber of Commerce.

HE AND HIS WIFE have two children, Andy, a senior at Cal State Long Beach, and Wendy, who will graduate this month from Long Beach City College.

They also have an "adopted" son, AFS Student Gian Negretti, now home in his native Italy. He lived with them while attending Wilson High last year.

With the Hayter family, school attendance is traditional. Both Andy and Wendy attended Wilson High as their parents AND aunts AND uncles AND cousins before them.

Betty Lou says of Gordon, "He's a gem, I'm pretty lucky. He's such a character — real great to have around."

He claims: "My interest in cooking comes by way of my Mother, a cook of renown and a prize winning candy maker. This was furthered by my taking a boy's cooking class at Jefferson (with much friendly kidding by my friends), also helping my brothers serve thousands of Texans, year after year, at the Texas State Society Picnics. Now, I have the complete freedom of my own kitchen at home."

He loves everything from Dagwood sandwiches to Mexican food — but for dessert, he likes plain everyday homemade ice cream and Old Fashioned Sugar Cookies.

This Sugar Cookie recipe comes from his great grandmother in-law.

OLD FASHIONED SUGAR COOKIES

(These are soft and cake-like)

½ cup shortening (Crisco preferred)
1 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon fresh ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup of soured milk (natural, NOT commercial)

Add baking soda to sour milk, let stand. Cream shortening, sugar, egg together. Add flour, baking powder, salt, nutmeg and mix. Fold in sour milk and baking soda mixture. Add vanilla.

Using teaspoon, spoon small amounts of mixture onto baking sheet, leaving ample space.

Take teaspoon and place additional graulated sugare over top of uncooked dough, pressing slightly. Bake for 12 minutes in pree-heated 400 degrees oven. Don't overcook — cookies will spread out as they cook and are best when not too brown.

The Aces on bridge

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:

My wife and I held the following North-South cards in a social game of bridge. How should we have bid to the small slam?

East-West vulnerable

♠ Q 10 8 6 2
♦ K Q 10 9 3

WEST
♠ J 9
♥ Q 8 4 3

EAST
♥ A K 10 6
♣ K Q J 10 9 5 4

SOUTH
♠ A K 7 5 4 3
♦ A J 8

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	3 ♣	3 ♠	4 ♣
4 ♠	5 ♣	Pass	Pass
5 ♠	6 ♣	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

We beat them two tricks for 500, but I'm unhappy.

Preempted,
U.S. Army, Japan

Answer. The North-South cards are difficult to judge, particularly after the preemptive bidding.

Strangely enough, the course of the bidding might have helped you if North had interpreted South's pass to six clubs as a forcing pass saying, "I am not worried about clubs and if you can bid six spades, do so. Otherwise double them." North, with good trumps, a key singleton heart and a useful diamond suit, may have then bid six spades.

Even the most experienced pairs would have had difficulty bidding this slam, so you have no reason to be unhappy. After all, you had only one-half the high-card points and the bidding started at the three level.

Dear Mr. Corn:

We missed a cold game and are involved in another hassle. Can you settle the issue, please?

On the following bidding, is South's three-heart bid forcing? We play the Stayman Convention.

North	East	South	West
1 NT	2 ♠	3 ♥	Pass

North held: 6/20
♠ K J 9
♥ A 9 7
♣ A J 3

Made the Partial,
Poplarville, Miss.

Answer: The Aces play the three-heart bid as forcing North should bid three no-trump or four hearts, with our preference going to the hearts.

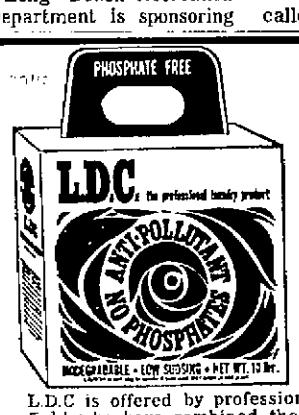

Dear Mr. Corn:

Is a delayed cue bid forcing to game? Does it show less points than an immediate cue bid?

Wondering,
Ft. Worth, Tex.

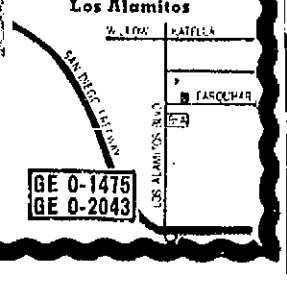

Answer. A delayed cue bid is often used as a general catch-all forcing bid when a bidder is faced with a situation in which no reasonable alternative presents itself. The subject is much too complex to summarize here.

The delayed cue bid does not promise the powerhouse shown by an immediate cue bid.

HUSBAND-COACHED CHILDBIRTH

Now dad's getting into the act

six weeks during the final months of the pregnancy.

"We show enough films of childbirths so that the couple is well-acquainted with labor and delivery room procedures and is fully comfortable with the idea of childbirth.

"I also go over the physiological and psychological aspects of pregnancy, labor and delivery, nonconforming labors and the use of medication."

In addition to the films and lectures, couples are instructed in a variety of exercises and breathing patterns which will not only aid the mother during childbirth but will make her pregnancy and postpregnancy recovery easier.

"Husband-coached childbirth is not natural childbirth," Mrs. Coghill emphasized. "Much of what is taught, in fact, is not natural at all.

"The breathing patterns, for example, are not natural. Neither is relaxing when you're in pain. Nor is taking the mother's mind off the pain, whether it be by using the sensations of sight, touch or sound.

"And we never, never tell a woman not to accept medication. We consider drugs a valuable tool. If a woman can't make it without medication, she certainly shouldn't feel she's failed."

Another misconception, Mrs. Coghill believes, is that the husband must be in the delivery room if husband-coached childbirth is to be effective.

"Because some men are squeemish about being in the delivery room and because so many hospitals do not yet allow husbands to be present during delivery (currently, Community Hospital is the only one in Long Beach which extends such privileges to the husband), we try not to place too much emphasis on this phase.

"I call the delivery room experience the frosting on the cake. It's nice, but not necessary."

THE HUSBAND'S most important role is during labor, Mrs. Coghill said. Parents who have taken the Lamaze training agree.

Explained Mickey Hartling, a father of two with another on the way, "With our first child we went in cold. The doctor only tells the mother so much and what limited informatino I had I'd picked up on my own.

"It was a frustrating experience. Here my wife was in a great deal of pain and all I could do was sit there and study for mid-term finals."

The second delivery was much easier for both mother and father. "Sarah Jane had heard about the Lamaze training from a friend and I thought that anything that filled me in on what was happening would be invaluable. As it turned out, it really was.

"Though I wanted to be in the delivery room and wasn't able to because of hospital regulations, I was still very much into the experience. Throughout the delivery I stood outside the door, hoping to catch anything that was going on in there and wishing I could be there, too.

"An unusual thing happened with this baby. With the first one I had been very much concerned with its sex. But with the second one, although I still wanted a boy, I got so involved in the whole thing that it didn't dawn on me that the baby had a sex until somebody told me five minutes later."

INITIALLY less enthusiastic, but none-the-less willing to participate in the birth of his child is Don Phillips, who explained, "I feel that if there's anything I can do to make labor and delivery easier for my wife I want to do it.

"I'll admit I was reluctant at first — especially about being in the delivery room. But now I realize that the delivery room isn't the worst part at all and my misconceptions about what goes on in there have been dispelled.

"It's also invigorating to find out what's going on during the pregnancy. With my other children, childbirth was sort of a mystical thing. Now I'm starting to comprehend the process and what happens to the woman during pregnancy is beginning to have some logic for me."

According to Mrs. Coghill, the closeness the couple experiences because they must practice the exercises and breathing techniques together is a sidebenefit of the training.

"It holds them together during what can be a very difficult time and it prepares them for parenthood long before the child actually arrives."

Police wife learns tolerance

on television and not pay too much attention until something is said about police killing or shooting. It immediately takes your attention.

"I don't think there's any policeman on any department in any city that's killed that you don't feel some kind of tie. It leaves a scar. You have to think, 'there but for the grace of God go I'."

Her husband has had three close calls during his duty with the police department—all within six weeks time.

First he was thrown through a plate glass window and had to have stitches. "He came home late. I went to church in the morning without disturbing him. Someone came up to me and asked how Ron was. I hurried home and discovered the bandages. From then on, we had a firm understanding. If he was injured, I was to be notified."

In another incident, he suffered a broken hand and while on black and white patrol was caught in a minor riot and cut off from calling for help. He was kicked in the face and back. Mrs. Foster breathes a sigh of relief in recounting the accidents, admitting her husband was lucky. "You always wonder, 'will the next time be worse'?"

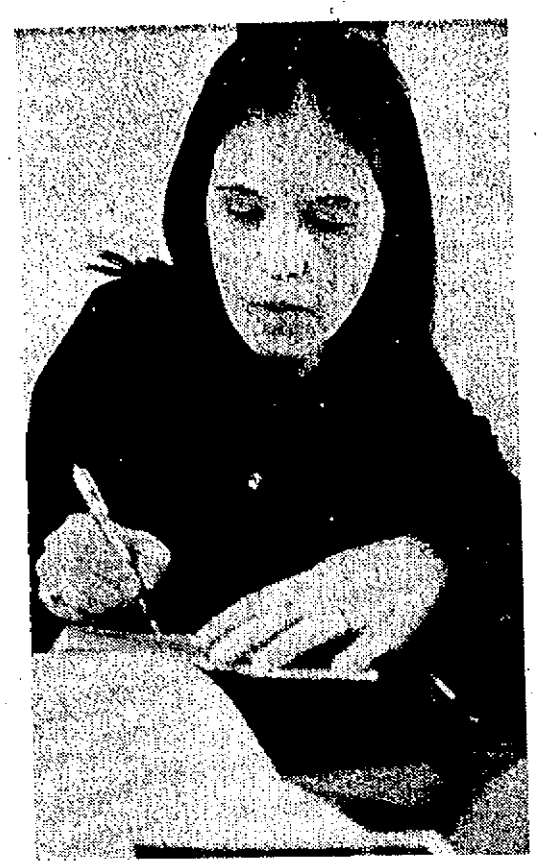

"He risks his life to make arrests and never gets a pat on the back, only criticism. I don't know how he does it, but I'm proud of him. I'm never ashamed to say my husband's a policeman, but I don't advertise the fact when I'm alone. It's not worth it for the insults it brings."

WINCING WHEN asked her reaction to the police being called pigs, she commented, "it's offensive naturally. I think when they call police pigs they also are calling the families pigs. I feel the reflection on the family as well as the husband. I don't think people begin to realize the job a policeman has.

"The hardest thing to contend with is the verbal abuse. Physical abuse they're taught to meet and handle, but verbal abuse they have to take. You or I could turn around and say something back, but they can't. They would be in jeopardy of losing their job if they did."

Her husband always carries a gun when he's off duty. "He's on call 24 hours a day and is prepared for action if needed. It's a nice feeling of protection because he knows how to use the gun. I've seen him shoot. It's too bad, though, that he must carry a gun."

Being a policeman's family means being disappointed and having to change plans. "You have to be prepared to face these things. Your social life is unpredictable. You make plans and have to cancel out if he gets a call. Most of our friends are other police couples. Otherwise, you're constantly on the defensive to explain your job. People are always ready to tell you about their latest tickets or encounters with the police. Few people seem to like the police until they need them."

GRACIA FOSTER adds another clipping to scrapbook she keeps detailing her husband's police career.

School helps wives accept, understand police work

By ROBERT E. SWEET
UPI Staff Writer

SEATTLE, Wash. — Divorce isn't a crime, but police wives here are combatting it as if it was just that.

When a recent survey of Seattle police indicated that almost two-thirds of the officers were divorced during the first three years of service, the police department stepped in to try to cure the marital malaise.

The department sponsored an experimental program to teach wives what their police husbands do on the job and what they can do to become better police wives.

Sixteen women participated in the initial 10-week course this spring. None of them is divorced, or on the brink of divorce, and each raves about the classes.

The wives received instruction one day each week at such places as the police academy, police headquarters, in courtrooms and even on the firing range.

After each training session, the women would discuss common problems and how they could combat them.

"I THINK A lot of problems come from the wife not knowing what to expect when she marries a cop," said Melodie Moffet, one of the wives.

"She thinks it's going to be a five-day-a-week bed of roses and finds out the hours are crazy and he lives his job 24 hours a day.

"The danger is hard for a wife to take, too," she said. "You have to be able to put it out of your mind, not dwell on what might happen to him. If you did you'd go nuts."

Karen Duval was about one-third of the way through the course when her husband, who had been on the force for six months, was involved in a shooting incident.

Richard Duval and his partner shot to death a black man who had fired a sawed-off shotgun at Duval, but missed. The incident has become part of a controversy between inner-city blacks and the police department over police shootings. An inquest on the case is pending.

Mrs. Duval said the wives' training course was invaluable in helping to keep their marriage together.

"One of the early lessons especially helped. A sergeant told us that if we were going to sit around biting our nails, it would drive us out of our minds.

"He said we have to be casual about things other wives aren't. If I had not been prepared emotionally for the shooting, I think finding out my husband almost had his head shot off would have driven me up the walls.

"EVERY DAY HE leaves the house I know he has a chance of never returning. I have to understand this and then take a fatalist's view and go about my daily life normally."

One of the more valuable portions of the course, she said, was learning how to use a gun.

The police instructor told the women he usually only teaches wives "either how to load the gun but not how to shoot it, or how to shoot the gun but not load it." He consented to show them how to do both — but only with blanks.

As well as introducing the wives to the criminal-justice system and delving into problems peculiar to police wives, the classes give helpful hints for happy marriages.

"The classes stressed not sending him off to work while you're still having a fight," said Eloise Steimel, another of the wives. "When you're in a bad mood that can be hard to avoid.

"HE'S UNDER A lot of pressure on duty and really has to unwind when he gets off. It's tough, because sometimes I can be grouchy and he expects me to be in a warm, loving mood, ready to listen."

Mrs. Moffet said the police wife "often resents her husband's job and how much he cares about it. She has to play second fiddle and she doesn't like it. Everyone should work at their marriage and maybe a policeman's wife just has to work a little harder."

Added Mrs. Steimel, "I think the classes helped all of us cope with our adjustments. There will be a few divorces anyway, but maybe fewer now."

The course has been considered so successful by the Seattle Police Department the city is hoping to extend it to wives of men in all sections of the criminal-justice system.

DEAR ABBY

She wants hubby 'trapped'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Is it true that if a person is in a deep sleep, if you speak to him quietly, and ask questions, he will answer truthfully?

Also is it true that if a person is sound asleep he could have something "drilled" into his head so that on the following day he would carry out the suggestions that were put into his head? I am not trying to do anything illegal or dangerous, but there are a few questions I would like my husband to answer, and he could too easily lie in his waking hours, and this other method would sure set my mind at ease. — NO NAME, PLS.

DEAR NO NAME: You are probably referring to questioning one who is in a "hypnotic state." Or trying to plant suggestions in the subliminal or unconscious mind of one who is sleeping. These techniques require great skill and I don't recommend them for your purpose — if indeed you could successfully pull them off, which is extremely doubtful.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a girl I'll call Irene. We have nothing in common except that our husbands were best buddies in the service. Irene has made it a habit to come over uninvited, around dinnertime with her two kids who are both on the bottle. Last time she came, we had eaten early, but she stayed and stayed, saying every few minutes that she really should be getting home to fix dinner for herself and her children as her husband was eating downtown. I finally fed them about 8 p.m. just to get rid of them.

Irene smokes constantly, and always my cigarets because she doesn't want her husband to know she smokes. She doesn't discipline her children so I have to watch them every minute. She asks me for clothes that are too small for me because she knows I've gained some weight. She isn't poor, Abby. Just nervy.

Before leaving she fills her babies' bottles with my milk. And she doesn't care if she takes the last drop.

My husband insists that I be nice to her because of his friendship with her husband, but I am at the end of my rope. What should I do about Irene? — HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Your problem isn't Irene. It's your husband. He has no right to insist that you be "nice" to a presumptuous, nervy woman merely because her husband is his friend. Tell hubby that you'll be nice to Irene when it's a foursome, but you plan to discourage her frequent drop-in dinnertime visits. Then do it.

DEAR ABBY: I have two questions for you: Is it proper for a girl to ask a guy what she should wear when he asks her for a date?

Also, do you think it is okay for a girl to tell her date she thinks he looks neat? Or isn't it cool for a girl to compliment a guy on the way he looks? I am 15—ELLEN

DEAR ELLEN: It's not only "proper" — it's sensible for a girl to find out how to dress for a date. Ask him what the "plans" are. A girl wouldn't dress the same for a dance as she would for a movie or a hockey game.

And yes, it's "cool" to compliment a guy on the way he looks. Guys have vanity, too.

Disney on Parade--

Staff photo by KENT HENDERSON

AS HE WATCHES Disney production, Michel Grilikhes has one constant question, "Does it work?"—work, that is in terms of audience reaction. Above, Pinocchio is torn between blandishments of Gideon and Foulfellow and virtuous advice of Jiminy Cricket.

THE BEGUILING GIRL (far right) wears an elaborate French costume, one among those representing 21 countries in the "Small World" of "Disney on Parade."

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

It will be theater with a bang for the Fourth of July weekend in Long Beach.

Two capacity-audience grabbers will play back to back, or face to face, or side by side, or any way you want to name it. On Tuesday, June 29, "Disney on Parade" opens a 10-performance run through July 4 in Long Beach Arena.

"Hair" is booked in the Municipal Auditorium Convention Hall July 1 through 4.

But Michael M. Grilikhes, executive producer for "Disney on Parade," anticipates no problem. In Long Beach to oversee preliminaries for his spectacular musical, he said, "Basically, there's no conflict at all. The adult audience that enjoys one show will enjoy the other just as much. Both are entertainment."

There is a difference, the lithe, brown-haired producer agrees. "Disney on Parade is designed to provide entertainment on all levels —for kids, teen-agers and adults. But this isn't the first time we've played a city with 'Hair.' We did it in Cincinnati. The only other time, in Pittsburgh, the casts even shared the same hotel."

A DIFFERENCE of another kind is in the costuming. In "Hair," performers sometimes wear only their hair. In "Disney" many of the actors wear character masks, as well as costumes. "One chap left the cast of 'Hello, Dolly!' to join our show. He was a great dancer and came across brilliantly in rehearsals. But when we did a dress rehearsal and he put on his costume, he was stunned — he suddenly realized that with his mask, his own face would never show."

People who haven't seen the musical often ask, "Just what IS 'Disney on Parade' — some sort of ad for Disneyland?"

No, it's not.

It's a full-scale, elaborately staged, highly professional musical with top experts of NBC and Walt Disney Productions making sure the Disney tradition is preserved.

"Our severest critics are the Disney people themselves. We dare not deviate from the characterizations that have been so carefully created," Grilikhes smiled.

About three years ago, the producer explained, Thomas W. Sarnoff of NBC Enterprises and Card Walker of Walt Disney Productions formed a partnership — Nawal Productions.

"SARNOFF had been thinking a lot about 'Where can a family go for entertainment?' He came up with the idea of a musical extravaganza with Disney characters. Walker thought it was a great project. They decided that, with arenas springing up all over the country, they'd design a show for that kind of setting, just as the spectacles of ancient Greece were staged."

The first "Disney on Parade," featuring Alice in Wonderland, opened last year, is still touring, will go to Australia in August and to Europe in July, 1972. The current show, with a big Snow White number, opened in December, 1970, and will tour this country through December, 1971. A third show is in progress.

"In entertainment, you must have identification and involvement. Almost everyone identifies with Disney characters. Many parents say they just go to take the kids, but they come away grinning even more happily than their children.

"YOU CAN NEVER look down at an audience; you must never patronize. From the first moment, you must hold them and never let go — that momentum must never drop.

"There's a sure test for a number. How many parents take their kids to the bathroom or to buy ice-cream cones? If too many of them are taking the kids out, something's wrong with the number.

"We know we've got to add an ooh-ah — something that will make people sit on the edges of their chairs and say, 'Ooh, ah!' The viewer has to feel floor vibrations that come right up into his body, that affect his pulse and his blood pressure.

"Entertainment is something that makes people react emotionally to what they see and hear. Maybe it's not always pleasant, but it satisfies a need. The most successful entertainment has the greatest common denominator — romance, danger, suspense or adventure taken perhaps a little farther than people will go in real life. Comedy is a true situation raised to a ridiculous level.

"IN THIS SHOW, in the Fantasia number with hippos and aligators and elephants dancing, we're doing a tongue-in-cheek spoof of ballet, we're teasing formal ballet — and ballet-lovers love it."

The extravaganza closes with a "Small World" number.

"Actually, we're saying just about what Hair is, but we don't say you have to tear down everything you have before you can make improvements.

"The first time we did the Small World number, the audience began to leave their seats during the finale and I thought 'We've got to do something about this — they're leaving for the parking lot too early.'

"But they were moving toward the stage and to the performers — they just wanted to reach out and touch the actors as though to say, 'We believe we've all got to live in the same world, too.'

"Now we know that's going to happen at almost every performance. It's a spontaneous reaction, a feeling of 'We're all in this together!' "

IN THE RUSSIAN DANCE portion of the Fantasia production number, flowers explode into action and dance to a frenzied conclusion. The flowers are joined by Sugar Plum Fairies, alligators, hippos and ostriches. There are 12 numbers in this all-new, 2½ hour live stage musical.

El Dorado seeks 'touchable' art

When the staff of the new El Dorado Branch Library, 2900 Studebaker Road, began thinking of acquiring a work of art for permanent display, El Dorado Woman's Club was quick to volunteer assistance.

"Somehow," said librarian Doris Albeck, "the idea evolved that we wanted a piece of sculpture rather than a painting."

Good ideas are contagious. Long Beach Art Association soon joined the project. The result: a sculpture show and contest with prizes of $100, $50 and $25 plus a $200 purchase award. Exhibition dates at the library will be Oct. 2 through 30.

There is no limit on the number of entries but a fee of $2.50 each will be assessed. All work must be originally conceived and executed — nothing may be done under a teacher's supervision. Weight limit? Not more than 150 pounds. All pieces that are not free-standing and all those of brittle materials must have a protective supporting base.

Entries must be delivered to Long Beach Art Association Gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd., on Wednesday, Sept. 29 from 1 to 7 p.m.

From the total, Cecil V. Comara of the Comara Gallery, Los Angeles, will select 35 sculptures to be exhibited at the library. Long Beach Art Association will provide money for the three top prizes.

The $200 purchase award will be donated by El Dorado Woman's Club and the winner need not — but may — be one of the three top prize winners. To be eligible for this award, the work must be "durable and touchable."

The purchase selection will be made by city librarian Frances Henselman; Thomas J. Morrison of the Palmer W. Power and Thomas J. Morrison architectural firm which designed El Dorado Branch; and Miss Albeck and her staff.

Members of the El Dorado Woman's committee who are cooperating with the Art Association in planning the show are Mrs. Lowell Ashley, chairman; Mmes. Edward Gaede, Art Griep, Vernon Rood, William Walker and Donald Shutt.

Awards will be made at a tea for the artists Oct. 3 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the library.

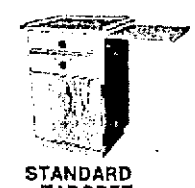

For additional information, contact the library or Jean Looman, chairman of juried exhibits for Long Beach Art Association, who may be reached at the LBAA Gallery.

EUGENIO, artist from Sicily, has 14 paintings on display at Edgewater Hyatt House, Seal Beach. They will hang through June.

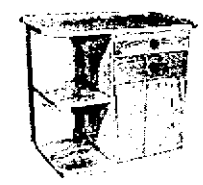

At California State College, Long Beach, the student art show in Galleries A and B will close June 30. Hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, closed Sundays.

Margaret Lee of CSLB is one of students from eight Southern California colleges exhibiting in "Design West '71" at California Museum of Science and Industry, Exposition Park, Los Angeles. Work is described by museum spokesmen as "ranging from the bizarre to the beautiful." The show will continue through July 18.

The Ritz epitomizes elegance in living

By PAT McDONNELL

When a woman makes a return visit to the Ritz of Paris she's sure to find her favorite flowers in her suite.

Waiting discreetly nearby are two servants who can be summoned by the push of a button in the bath to bring a hot towel or magnum of champagne.

From the window—from the window of every room in the hotel, in fact — is a view of gardens that would pass muster at Versailles.

But these features merely make the Ritz one of Europe's grand hotels.

What makes it perhaps the greatest hotel in the world is a feature no other hotel can duplicate.

That feature is Charles Ritz.

As a child he was dandled on the royal knee of the Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia when he stayed in the hotel's Imperial Suite. One of Charles' earliest recollections is of giant cossacks who guarded the 17-feet tall doors of the imposing suite later occupied by Herman Goering during World War II.

The Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame and the Louvre are landmarks of Paris — and so is the Ritz which embodies the elegance and traditions that distinguish the city of lights from all other capitals.

If the Ritz is an institution, so is Charles whose father created the hotel in 1898. The dapper, impeccably dressed, crew-cut Charles looks 15 years younger than his 80 years — he thinks 30 years younger.

"I lived too many years in the States not to value the need for change," he said. "That's why we've been undergoing a major remodeling for the past two years. If we didn't keep up with new trends, the Ritz would be out of business in 10 years."

THE INVASION of American tourists aboard jumbo jets may have altered the style of lesser hotels, but when Charles speaks of progress it's a subtle change in colors and synthetic fabrics which in no way have diminished the hotel's grandeur or personalized service.

(This point was stressed by an Air France spokesman who noted the Ritz takes pride in maintaining the "best floor service in the world" and the most select clientele.)

"Americans account for more than 70 per cent of the guests and they prefer light, airy rooms," said Charles. "That's why we've done away with French grays, spinach greens and dark woods for pastel hues — particularly pink, which compliments any woman's complexion."

From its earliest days when Sarah Bernhardt, the Goulds and the Guggenheims, registered at the Ritz to the spectacular '20s when F. Scott Fitzgerald, Marcel Proust and the Prince of Wales were its habitues — the service has remained the same.

All arrivals are asked if arrangements are as anticipated, and the housekeeper calls soon after to see if addltional furniture is desired. Final greeting is a personal visit from the manager.

The complex of three buildings covers an acre of choice real estate in Paris — two-fifths of it is gardens — and its upkeep is maintained by 120 electricians, painters, carpenters, seamstresses and gardeners.

Jet age guests no longer waltz in the ballroom which has been remodeled into a hall for cocktail parties and receptions. But one room remains the same — the Ritz Bar which columnist Art Buchwald termed "the oldest and most famous drinking institution in Paris."

NOR HAS time changed the famous Ritz kitchen where gleaming copper utensils preferred by French chefs are suspended over gas ranges that have replaced the original wood-burning models.

"Some of these pots are as old as I am," Ritz said, adding that separate chefs cook for the restaurant and staff canteen. "If you want to keep your staff, you must feed it well. We do.

"My eyes are worse than radar," he confessed. "It's a personal anethema to see a picture at crooked angles or a waiter hiding a cigarette in his palm."

Except for the period he lived in the United States from 1916 to 1927, Charles has lived in the hotel, explaining:

"If I didn't live here, I couldn't feel the pulse of the establishment. My personal tastes are modest and I occupy a small room."

However, since the death of the Ritz' long-standing resident, Coco Chanel, Charles has moved into the suite occupied by the dress designer from 1936 until last January.

"She was a remarkable woman, a disciplined perfectionist who never varied from her formula once she hit upon the classic Chanel lines. Even at age 87, she insisted upon being called Mademoiselle. She rarely left the Ritz until 11 a.m. when she crossed the Rue Cambon to her salon where she worked until 11 p.m. each night.

"She always enjoyed an audience and the last time I saw her in the corridor, I said: 'Mademoiselle Coco, over the years I've not been able to resist developing a love for you. May I give you a little kiss?'"

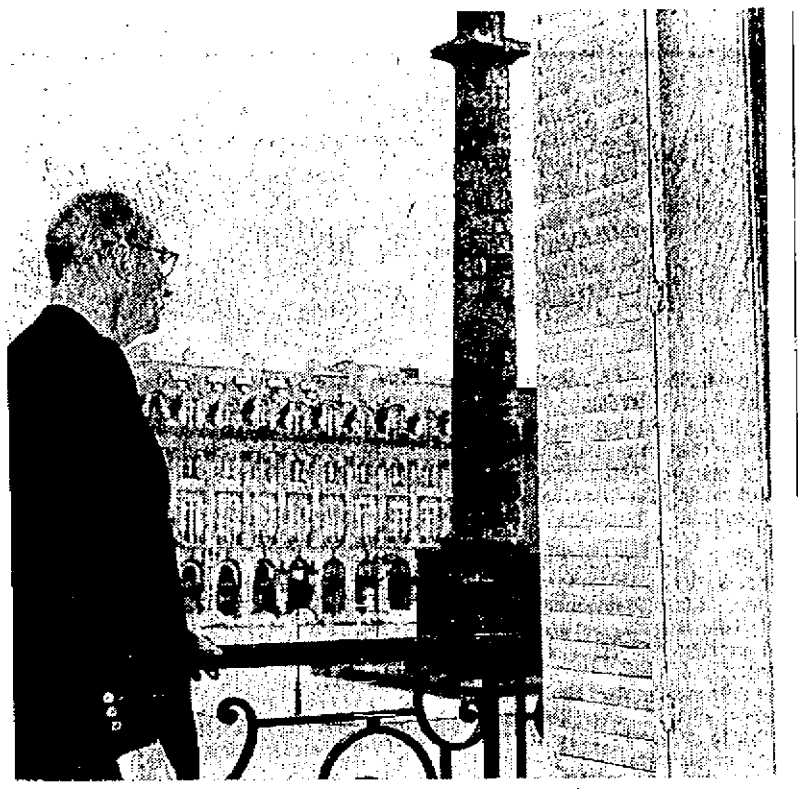

Two days later, Mlle. Chanel summoned her maid for the final time.

HARKING BACK to the Nazi occupation, Charles said;

"We played the game the proper way and Goering's staff was very decent. There was always the danger that the Resistance might set off a bomb, particularly since any German aviator who received the Iron Cross was also given three days at the Ritz."

No doubt the Shah of Iran and Barbara Hutton have received the ultimate in Ritz service . . . but the same applies to four-footed guests who are provided beds and velvet cushions embroidered with the inscription: "I'm Ritzy."

Indeed they are, for when Air France books passengers int the hotels, rates for a single room range from $31 to $37 a day. Double rooms start at $92. Add to this a 15 per cent service charge. And if you want to follow the footsteps of the Grand Duke Nicholas — the Imperial Suite is yours for $156 a day.

CHARLES RITZ views the historic Place Vendome from the Imperial Suite of the Ritz Hotel in Paris. The pillar was raised to honor a victory of Napoleon; the square is lined with townhouses of the early 19th Century, including the one in which Chopin lived his final years.

Cruise to Mexico with a Princess.

There's little luxury left in life to compare with a Princess Cruise. The Princess Italia is the most lavish cruise ship ever based in Los Angeles. It's a one-class ship—all First. You'll enjoy the beauty of the colorful coastline of Mexico through the floor-to-ceiling windows in the Grand Salon.

Ports of call

The Princess Italia goes to sea from Los Angeles for an 11 day cruise August 27, and January 31. For a 10 day cruise, September 7 and 17. On each cruise, you spend a full day in Puerto Vallarta, once the hideaway of the very rich; and a day in charming Mazatlan. The 11 day cruise gives you two days in glittering Acapulco; the other cruises, one day.

Our 14 day cruises, sailing December 15 and 29, January 14, and February 11 also give you a day in Manzanillo and one in Zihuatanejo.

Attentive service

The superb service on the Princess Italia reflects the training of our Italian chefs, waiters and maitre d' in the finest hotels in Europe. Attentive cabin stewards provide room service at any hour of the day or night.

Ah, the food

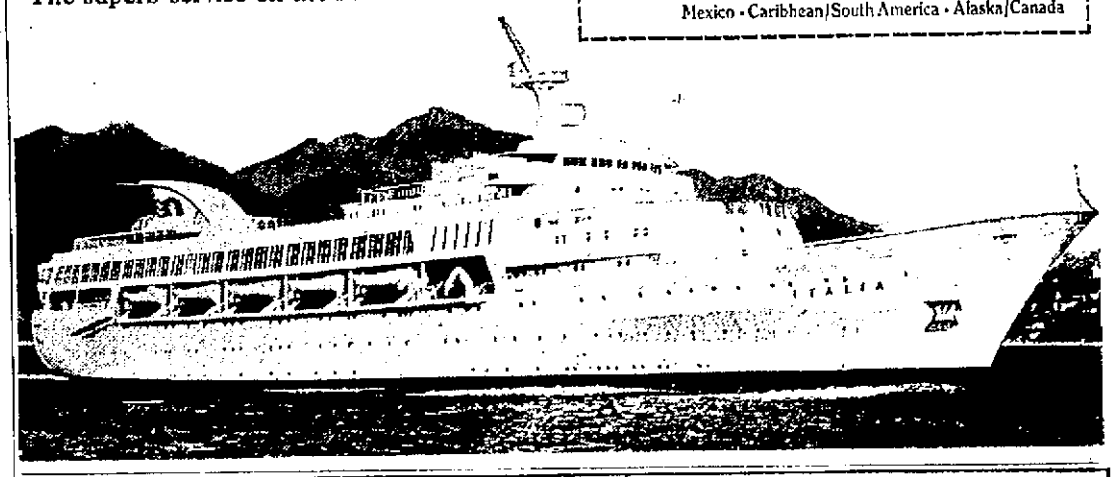

Continental gourmet specialties make every meal a delight. How about Shishkebab a la Greque, for lunch? Veal Medallions Villa D'este followed by Crepes Suzette, for dinner. And you order your wine from a cellar of over ten thousand bottles.

The gala social calendar offers you just as much, or as little, as you want to do. And in every place you visit, you stay in the same ocean-going resort hotel with no packing or unpacking.

Educational tours slated

Would you like to photograph a volcanic eruption at 500 feet? Unearth a piece of pottery which was abandoned in the Late Stone Age? Make contact with a hill people in Ethiopia who have not been seen by outsiders in this century?

Educational Expeditions International (EEI), a new non-profit educational organization, is offering these opportunities for unlimited adventure.

EEI, in affiliation with the Smithsonian Institution, is inviting interested non-specialists to join prominent scientists on field research expeditions in volcanology, geology, astronomy and archaeology in Central and South America and Africa.

No special qualifications are necessary. Expedition team members are invited to undertake strenuous field work and undergo the discomforts of bivouac living and extremes of climate in return for the stimulation and personal satisfaction that comes from meaningful accomplishment.

Participating scientists, who will instruct, supervise, and offer daily guidance to team members, are prominent men who have had extensive experience conducting field research in their areas of specialization.

They will see to it that their teams of not more than 25 men and women work in a unified, constructive manner toward solving the expeditions' research objectives.

EEI IS A non-commercial, non-profit organization. Charges to participants cover airfare, accommodations, meals, logistic support, and organization and management support and begin at $985.

In the four months since their "Get your hands dirty!" advertisements first began to appear in major magazines and newspapers, EEI has received more than 2,000 inquiries. They come from Ph.D.s and housewives, used car salesmen and retired lawyers.

A 14-year-old restaurant worker sent in $100 with his application for participation in a 1973 solar eclipse expedition to North Africa. Said he, "I will spend the next two and a half years saving up for what I know will be the greatest experience of my life."

There have been inquiries from India, Ghana, Mexico, Sweden, Turkey, Chile, and even one from a student at Moscow University.

A NINE-DAY field survey and study of an active volcanic eruption in Costa Rica, led by Dr. William Melson, begins on July 3. Dr. Melson is curator, Division of Petrology and Volcanology, of the Smithsonian Institution.

The Ethiopian Rift Valley will be the locale of a sixteen-day geological field survey, mapping and exploration expedition led by Dr. Paul Mohr from July 12 through 27. Dr. Mohr is a geologist with the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass.

A Late Stone Age site in Zambia will occupy another expedition team. The site is called Mbangombe, and its excavation will be supervised by Dr. David Phillipson of the Zambia Commission for the Preservation of Natural and Historical Monuments. This expedition runs from Aug. 12 to 31.

For further information about summer 1971 expeditions, write directly to Educational Expeditions International, P.O. Box 127-R, Belmont, Mass. 02178.

Man and His World opens for summer in Montreal

"Man and His World," Montreal's successor to Expo 67, is open for its fourth summer-long season with several new attractions on tap — including a million dollar entertainment program featuring international stars.

For the first time, admission to the Man and His World grounds — on two man-made islands in the St. Lawrence River — will be free. Most pavilions will charge admission, but no ticket will be more than $1.

Attractions for the 1971 season, which will run through Sept. 6, include the return of the U.S. exhibition to the celebrated "bubble" — R. Buckminster Fuller's massive geodesic dome — which served as the U.S. pavilion at Expo 67 and which later was given to the City of Montreal.

The U.S. Travel Service and the Discover America Travel Organization will sponsor a show featuring American folk-art performers and a display of U.S. culture arranged by the Smithsonian Institution.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA, whose pavilion and unique audio-visual shows were outstanding hits of Expo 67, is returning with a film specially produced for North American audiences, and Iran's new presentation will celebrate the nation's 25th centennial.

The Soviet Union, already a fixture at Man and His World, has cemented its role by signing a three-year contract. The Russians are using the former Swiss pavilion for daily performances by singers and dancers and for a wide-ranging exhibit of space hardware, handicrafts, and children's art.

La Ronde, the exhibition's 135-acre amusement and entertainment center, will again offer rides, games of skill, international shopping, bars, pubs and discotheques.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

Unique hotel system

travel

By STAN DELAPLANE

Shannon, Ireland

Farmhouse accommodations — bed and breakfast for the two of you, $3 to $5 — is the biggest thing in Ireland today.

They've recruited farmhouses all over the country. And all the farmer's wives have become innkeepers. Some of them are elegant manor houses. Almost castles.

The tourist people told me: "You go to the tourist office — or phone them — in any large town. Tell them what you want: Farmhouse rooms for the family; ponies for the children; bikes.

"WE'VE A COMPUTER system we flash it on. You'll have a reservation in 60 seconds. We absolutely gurarantee you can arrive in Ireland without reservations, tour the country and never spend a night without a comfortable room."

Farmhouse touring is so popular, the highway people have added it to the roadsigns. Among the arrows pointing to towns, you find an arrow pointing to "Farmhouse Accommodations."

There's a book of listings. Pick it up at the tourist office when you get off at Shannon. But let them compute it ahead your first day.

" . . . to buy Irish sweaters and skirts?"

The freeport as you leave Shannon is a shopping experience. It's grown into a great store, and I flew here on a sentimental journey.

I stopped here 20 years ago, and the stock was a dozen Petersen pipes — that's all. Now the planes stop off, and you have 45 minutes to shop a department store.

THE SPINOFF of Shannon's amazing duty-free shopping is their mail order business. They send 85,000 mail orders to the U.S. each year. Catalogue ordered. Toys, jewel pins, Irish sweaters, Waterford glass. About 400 items.

These do NOT come to you duty-free. What you buy passing through the airport and CARRY home is not charged duty — up to $100 worth. ANYTHING shipped, you pay duty to the mailman on delivery. But the mail order prices are competitive.

Irish quality is good — many things you can't buy in the U.S. Complete catalogue is 50 cents air mail. Two-page catalogue of most popular items is free. Write Shannon Free Airport, Ireland. Mail Orders.

HOW I BEAT the jet lag: I was sitting around wonderful Dromoland Castle here — it's now one of the world's GREAT hotels — and I said: "I KNOW I'm on the time zone change, and I'll wake up at 2:30 in the morning." So they said: "We put up picnic lunches with a Thermos of coffee. We'll fix one for you."

I woke at 2:30 as scheduled — (it takes me two days to get over the time change) — and got up and had my coffee and picnic lunch.

Live like a poet in England

Here's your chance to live like Wordsworth for a day.

Rydal Mount, William Wordsworth's home in the Lake District of England for 37 years, can now be rented. It was first open to the public in 1970 to mark the 200th anniversary of the poet's death.

NOV. 1 to March 1 it can accommodate six people for $96 a week, cook-housekeeper provided. In summer, two double bedrooms, three single rooms and two sitting rooms are reserved for visitors at $65 a week for full board.

It is located in one of the most magnificent parts of the English Lake District about 270 miles northwest of London between Ambleside and Grasmere.

Tipping is tabu in Tahiti

By MARIE MATTSON

PAPEETE, Tahiti — Tipping here is tabu. People don't lock doors. You never see jackets or ties. What look like mail boxes in front of houses are for twice daily delivery of freshly-baked French bread.

Tahiti, one of the most romantic spots in the South Seas, has now put out the welcome mat.

Most people visit just four of French Polynesia's 132 islands. Tahiti, point of entry, has the only de luxe hotels — Maeva Beach, headquarters for water sports, and Tahara's Inter-Continental, on a hill overlooking the bay.

Ten minutes away by air is Moorea, site of Club Mediterranee and the American-owned Bali Hai Hotel. Raiatea, popular with scuba divers and fishermen, has another Bali Hai Hotel and is an hour's flight from Tahiti. Thirty minutes further west lies Bora Bora, with its huge lagoon, considered most beautiful of all the islands.

Wardrobe should be cool and casual year around daytime temperatures are in the 80's, dropping to about 70 degrees at night. From April through October sees the finest weather, with rains from November through March.

If you'll need new clothes here, buy Tahitian fashions in Papeete. The long purutu dress is especially attractive, costs $20. Good-looking men's shirts with hand-blocked Polynesian designs run from $8.50 to $11, the long-sleeves styles being worn for dress.

WITH THE exception of clothes, bring about everything else you'll require — selections are limited and prices high, especially on outer islands. This includes film, sunscreening lotion, and insect repellent. French-made sunglasses, however, are attractive and inexpensive. Buy gifts in the duty-free airport shop when you're ready to leave Tahiti.

A bargain airline tour fare lets you jet from California to Tahiti for $430 round trip (regular economy fare is $794). Two weeks at Club Med, including air transportation, costs $680: three weeks, $805. Similar packages are available for other hotels.

A $795 package includes air fare, hotels and a week's inter-island cruise aboard the Pacific Star. For details on these and other tours, consult a travel agent.

AT WIT'S END

Families rated 'X'

By ERMA BOMBECK

A mother of 12 children has asked me to say something in the defense of women who had large families when it was considered fashionable.

She said she was accosted in the supermarket the other day as she tried to guide her three baskets of milk and cereal through the check-out line by an irate woman who said, "You and the Cuyahoga River ought to be ashamed of yourselves!"

As recently as 1950, B.P. (Before Pill) having many children was considered a symbol of love, happiness and even patriotism. Americans clutched to their hearts entire families: Life With Father (which set theater records) Cheaper By The Dozen (the story of the Gilbreths) and Sound of Music (the Von Trapp Family). Who would have suspected that today the movies would be rated GP and the families rated X.

I know at least 15 families with eight children or more. I talked with a few of them to find out if public reaction had changed since ecology became a household word.

"Very definitely," said a former schoolmate of mine. "Our family is stared at and counted individually everywhere we go. Someday I'm going to turn to one of them and say, 'Cheer up. We planned on 24.' "

One of my Jewish friends says her favorite reaction is when people chance upon her brood, scrutinize them closely and finally say, "You don't look Catholic."

I have another fertile friend who, if she lived in Canada where they pay you to have children, would be the counterpart of Howard Hughes. "I quit sweating it long ago," she said. "I could care less what people think. My kids are a joy and a menace depending on what day of the week it is. I figure I have the quota of some crazy broad who is giving up children for liberation."

"It's a little late to recycle them," said a neighbor of mine. "At a meeting the other night a speaker said if we are to exist in this country we should only replace ourselves. Next thing I knew everyone in the room was staring at me. I just shrugged and said, 'So it takes six people to do the laundry I do in a day.' "

I am not saying ecology is a fad. It's a very real problem destined to be with us for a long time. I am only saying do not judge one another by the size of their family.

The mother with eight children may be just as concerned with environment as you.

And the mother with a single child may not be a believer in ecology at all . . . only convenient headaches.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

(See Page 4)

"THE WRIGHT BROTHERS," story of the brothers, Orville and Wilbur, during the months immediately preceding and including their first flight, is aired on Ch. 28, at 8:30 p.m., Thursday.

THEY ALL HATE LISA

But they love Eileen

EILEEN FULTON

By JOE O'SULLIVAN
United Press International

"I'm about to wreck my happy home," Eileen Fulton said, not looking the least bit contrite about all the grief and woe she knows will be the result of her actions. "I'm getting out of some trouble and getting into more trouble. But I'm not going to tell you too much."

It seems ironic that a Methodist minister's daughter would be so successful acting that way. When Eileen was growing up in North Carolina she was so proper that other little girls used to call her "Miss Priss Margaret."

Now, people hate her for her lying, scheming ways. She gets threatening letters. Strangers have slapped her face.

EILEEN, if you haven't guessed, is the soap opera queen who does all that lying and scheming as "Lisa Hughes" on television's "As the World Turns."

The name plate on the door of her New York City apartment reads McLarty/Fulton. Eileen changed her name early in her acting career because "nobody seemed to be able to remember Margaret McLarty."

On the day of our visit Eileen wore yellow linen hot pants and a long skirt of the same material. Open skirt buttons framed blue stockings, nice legs. She had on a navy blue jersey blouse. Her yellow linen jacket and a big floppy-brimmed blue straw hat were on a nearby chair.

The clothes Eileen wears on "World" are her own. When she first joined the show in 1960, she wore $7.50 dresses. She soon decided good — but not "extravagant" — clothes were a necessary investment in her business, and now buys lots of them.

WHAT DOES she see as her role in life?

"My life has a double path — actress and singer. Actually, it's one."

Eileen has "always known" the theater was what she wanted and nothing else would ever be right for her. She came to New York in 1956, lived in a $7.50-a-week room, studied dramatics, worked as a photographer's model, sold hats, lived on grits and potted meat sandwiches.

After acting in stock, she made Off-Broadway, won a small part in a comedy that failed on Broadway. She auditioned, in the same week, for a featured role in a movie and for the Lisa job, and won both. The movie was forgettable, but, by 1965, Eileen was making $50,000 a year as "Lisa."

In 1965, Eileen left "World" to make a nightclub tour. While protests poured into the television network, she discovered that many in her club audiences were coming "to hate 'Lisa' and love Eileen." After a year, she returned to her "World" role, but with a contract that allows her to do plays, movies and nightclub work.

"Appealing . . . arresting," Variety has termed a couple of records that Ei-

Burning Reality Into

Hawaii Five-O

By WILLIAM HELTON
Associated Press

The next time you see Steve McGarrett of "Hawaii Five-0" charging down the stairs of a Honolulu bowling alley or running after a suspect down a Chinatown alley, enjoy the scene. Chances are it is one of the most expensive on television.

It is part of what star Jack Lord calls "burning reality into the screen." And almost everyone on location here where the show is in its fourth season and consistently ranked in the top five agrees that "Five-0"'s efforts to shoot outside the studio is a big reason for its success.

There are no rubber rocks and papier-mache trees. Instead, there are real hospitals, real crime laboratories, genuine multi-million-dollar estates and seaworthy yachts that belong to real live people.

"IT IS A LOT of trouble," said Lord. "But it is worth every bit of it. When you go to a morgue, a real morgue, and you can smell the formaldehyde, the scene takes on a certain reality. There is even a pungeant odor of death."

Paul Stanley, one of "Five-0" 's most successful directors, agrees: "You can't kid the public any more. They are too sophisticated. They won't buy backdrops. You've got to go outside."

And outside "Hawaii Five-0" goes — through teeming Chinatown alleys, into lavishly decorated homes in Honolulu's Kahala area, even into Gov. John A. Burns' private office.

Five-0 has set off explo-

STAGE'S HIS FIRST LOVE

Man of many enthusiasms

JOSEPH CAMPANELLA . . . Stays in 'Bold Ones'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Associated Press

Joesph Campanella, soon to start his thrid season playing a trial attorney in the "Lawyer" segment of NBC's "The Bold Ones," believes devoutly in political activism for actors. It opened up for him what has become a profitable sideline: narrating actuality programs for television.

A few years back, Campanella was working steadily in New York-produced soap operas and, in his spare time, as a Democrat volunteer in John V. Lindsay's first campaign for mayor. He was tapped to be the sales voice in radio and television commercial spots for the candidate.

As a result, David Wolper's organization hired him to narrate a series of specials, including the quadrennial "Making of the President" and the annual National Geographic series.

HIS PRIME-TIME television career was harder to get into high gear, but it also was the result of chance. An important studio executive was looking for an actor for a certain role, and his wife recalled seeing a likely candidate in a daytime serial — "a man named 'Roy' Campanella."

"There have been occasions when it was suggested that I change my name," Joe said.

"But Campanella has worked all right for me, and it sure worked all right for Roy."

Joseph Campanella spent several seasons commuting from his native Manhattan base to Hollywood to work in films and television.

HE HAS been involved for the past two seasons in an idyllic existence for an actor - - eight segments of "The Bold Ones" a year — perhaps three months' work — and the rest of the time free to perform in other series and in films.

While he has, for an actor, a secure situation, the stage remains his first true love. He came to acting after thinking seriously about engineering as a profession, and was such a good athlete that he tried out for the former New York Giants. He abandoned professional baseball when he learned he might be farmed out to a minor league team for apprenticeship.

"I think something important is happening to the theater," he said, "and it is happening far away from Broadway, which is all to the good. There are so many young people interested in the theater: I was impressed by that when I spent some time with university students in Florida recently.

"I think those kids should have a chance to try the theater, and I think that they will be getting it. The only way it will survive is to have it decentralized. Broadway is not carrying the total burden: it can't. It has to emerge from all over the country — and the revitalization has to come from the kids. And they are doing, rather quietly, some very interesting things."

TV NOTEBOOK

Deaf people tune in with the listening world when the afternoon news is aired weekdays on television station WJTV, Jackson, Miss.

The split-screen broadcast shows newscaster Frank Jennings reading a resume of the day's events, and an expert in sign language who goes before a second camera to translate simultaneously for the deaf.

The station and the Mississippi School for the Deaf in Jackson started the experiment last fall as part of a morning newscast three days a week, then moved it March 1 to the 5 p.m. news program five days a week.

About 3,000 deaf persons in a 80-mile radius of the station's signal watch the program, said Dr. Robert S. Brown, director of the Mississippi School for the Deaf.

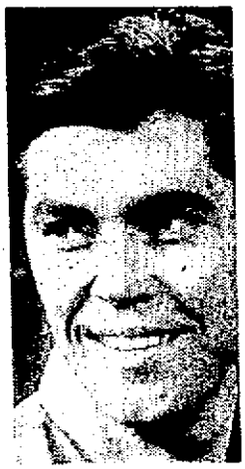

THE VARIETY show, network television's single most popular form during the 1970-71 season, goes on the endangered species list in the 1971-72 season.

Out of about 15 programs in the category during the past fall and winter, only four have survived for another year.

One theory is that big, brassy variety shows, costing $200,000 or more per program, are victims of the economic pinch because they are good for only one or two repeat broadcasts. There are those — largely older viewers — who believe that variety has been guitared to death: all those long-haired guys in suede jackets and fringe strummin' and preachin' about peace and love. Others insist that there have been so many hours of comedy with music or music with comedy that one show looked pretty much like the next one, particularly since the guest stars were making a circuit around them.

Carol Burnett, Glen Campbell, Dean Martin and Flip Wilson have escaped the wholesale axing, but the casualty list is long, ranging from Ed Sullivan and Lawrence Welk to Johnny Cash, Tom Jones and Andy Williams.

BILL BURRUD'S "Animal World," popular nature series which roams the world photographing exotic wildlife in its native habitat, moves into prime time July 11 on the CBS Television Network. The series, now presented at 5:30-6 p.m. Sundays, will take over the 7:30-8 p.m. time period. Selected episodes of the animated cartoon series, "Where's Huddles?" will take over the Sunday afternoon time slot.

DENNIS COLE

ROD TAYLOR

Taking on the Champ

By United Press International

Australia's Rod Taylor returns to a weekly television series next season filled with Aussie confidence that his show will be a hit despite fearful odds.

CBS is throwing Taylor and Dennis Cole opposite the top-rated "Flip Wilson Show."

"So we're going up against Flip," Taylor said with a casual wave of his hand. "He's sitting on the top of the heap, isn't he?

"Well, I like the idea of taking on the champ. And I think I can whip him."

AN ex-amateur fighter in Sydney, Taylor is a bareat with his fists, which is just as well. The title of his new adventure series is "Bearcats."

He and Cole play a pair of fun-loving soldiers of fortune in the southwest just before the outbreak of World War I. They bounce around the chaparral and cacti in — what else — a Stuz Bearcat.

If the format sounds familiar — "Maverick," "Alias Smith And Jones," et al — it also rings a bell with the Australian. An alarm bell.

"We have to laugh at ourselves in this series or people will laugh at us in a nasty way," he said.

"The series must be authentic in every way, costumes, automobiles, speech, mannerisms and stories. The character I play has just returned from the Philippines during the Spanish-American War. He meets the Dennis Cole character and they decide to troubleshoot for a blank check."

AMONG the adventures will be rum-running, smuggling Chinese into the United States and Mexican border incident.

"We can't have this look like a western," said Taylor whose nose has been broken in more brawls than he cares to remember.

"This isn't cowboys and Indians at all. I want it to be a real swinging show. The characters have to be humorous, tough and exciting."

Taylor managed to squeeze those characteristics into his first series, "Hong Kong" which left the air a decade ago.

"After that series I went into motion pictures," Taylor said. "So I suppose I could qualify as a movie star who is going into television. Personally I'm happy to be invited back to television.

"Jimmy Stewart, Tony Curtis, Glenn Ford, Shirley MacLaine and all the rest are entering television, too. If they fail, the whole system will change.

"The guys who run television will figure home viewers won't tune in just to see a movie star. So they'll be looking for new faces who won't cost them a bundle."

Almost as an afterthought Taylor said, "I hope they don't mind seeing me again."

'HAWAII FIVE-O'

Realism in locations

sions on the fawny slopes of Diamond Head crater, shot brawls in some of the town's classiest night clubs.

"We go anywhere the script dictates," said production manager Bernie Oseransky who estimates that about three-fourths of "Hawaii Five-0" scenes are shot outside.

"It helps to get as many landmarks in as possible. A lot of people have been here, and when you tell them you are in Hawaii, you had better be in Hawaii."

SOMETIMES THE script dictates going to another island, such as Maui, where the show called "Paniolo" — Hawaiian for cowboy — was filmed.

The script called for McGarrett to chase a criminal on a horse, and Maui — known as the valley Isle — provided the perfect backdrop.

The company spent $6,000 in marine insurance alone to float 13 vehicles — including camera trucks, Jack Lord's dressing van and a huge generator which was almost lost overboard.

"It was like crossing the English Channel," said one executive.

Such crossings are expensive in other ways, too. Everyone who comes to Hawaii to work on the show is considered on location and entitled to $700 a month in additional pay. Also, if the company goes to another island or to the other side of Oahu, actors and crew receive additional compensation.

All this adds up, and Oseransky estimates it costs $210,000 to $225,000 to produce the average "Five-0" show. This usually includes about eight days of shooting.

However, an effort is made to keep down "Five-0"'s expenses.

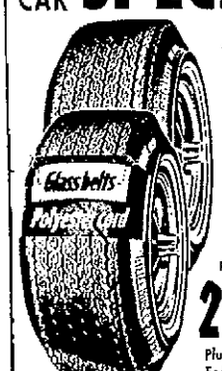

But so popular is the "Five-0" crew here the company seldom pays to use an authentic location site. The night clubs and hotels recognize it as good advertising, the wealthy would be offended by the offer of pay, and the local people are flattered.

SUSAN SAINT JAMES guest stars in repeat "McCloud" episode, 10 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 4.

SPECIAL

ALCOHOLISM: Out of the Shadows (7), 8:30 p.m. — Frank Reynolds takes a new look at the nation's number one health problem — and at Rochester, N.Y., which has adopted a progressive attitude in reaching alcoholics early. With two persons for every city block in the nation suffering from this disease, hour looks in on GM tests for results of alcohol in driving, at a group therapy session for alcoholics, and at now-sober alcoholics — including Sen. Harold E. Hughes (D-Iowa) — who come out of the shadows to face the camera with their emotion-filled stories.

They all love Eileen

leen made recently. An album is to be issued on her birthday (Sept. 13). Someday, Eileen would like to do a Broadway musical.

"LISA" is "Lisa." What is Eileen like? Does she smoke, drink, chase men?

Eileen said she doesn't smoke because it might her her voice. She drinks very little because she doesn't like it.

Does she chase men, she was asked again.

"I chase one — him!" Eileen laughed and pointed to Danny Fortunato, head of the record company producing her discs.

Is it what might be termed a meaningful relationship? Is marriage in sight?

"Now . . ." the voice was pure, syrupy North Carolina. "I'm not gonna tell you. . . ."

Eileen was married once but is divorced.

WHAT IS the most important thing in life?

"To be happy."

What is "happy?"

"To have something to do and enjoy . . . and achieve something beautiful that gives you peace of mind and happiness . . . and someone to share it with, or it's not worth anything."

Growing up, Eileen helped raise her brothers, Jimmy and Charles. "That's why I have no desire to have children now. I've already had mine."

Her father is retired now. While he was active in the ministry, the McLartys never had a home of their own, but lived in a series of houses provided by various congregations. Eileen has bought a home for her parents at Black Mountain, about 10 miles from Asheville, N.C. it also will be a place she can escape to. Escape? Will she stop acting someday?

"The day I stop will be the day I die."

"As the World Turns" is sponsored by a soap company. What kind of soap does Eileen Fulton use?

There's a laugh and a pause. "I'm not gonna tell you that either," Eileen Fulton said.

NBC ACTION Playhouse (4), 7:30 p.m. — Premiere. With Flip Wilson off for the summer, NBC brings back a dozen repeats from the old Bob Hope anthology series. Tonight's hour, seen originally in 1965, stars Oscar/Emmy-winner George C. His second-in-command wants to sink the enemy on sight, but the captain refuses to fire torpedoes even when an enemy plane strafes the deck and kills a crewman.

Sonorous voices tell youngsters like it should be

TV announcers teach speech classes

Associated Press

Few of us talk like broadcasting announcers, practitioners of the rich, pear-shaped tones meticulously devoid of regional accents.

Viewers and listeners rarely see their faces and infrequently pay attention to announcers' names, but they remain a vital link in the communication chain between the station and the public. The three major networks, each operating a radio as well as television interconnection, maintain staffs of a score or more announcers in their New York headquarters.

NBC, for one, has an announcing staff of 21, many of whom are now involved in a pilot project: They are teaching a group of 15 high school age boys and girls from inter-city homes how to communicate better with people who live outside slum and deprived neighborhoods.

THE three-month, biweekly evening course was conceived by Mel Brandt, a veteran NBC announcer.

Brandt, although as anonymous as most announcers, is heard by millions each day. It is his voice, on tape, that says: "The following program is brought to you in living color on NBC." He is also the off-camera voice that starts and winds up each episode of the daily soap opera, "The Doctors," and sells a florists' delivery service, a life insurance company, a denture cleanser and the joys of paying income taxes — for the federal government.

ANNOUNCER MEL BRANDT . . . with students

A Brooklyn boy who somehow avoided the borough's tattle-tale speech patterns, Brandt is convinced that many city kids, growing up in areas where local jargon and slang dominate speech, suffer a definite handicap.

NBC contributed a studio for the two-a-week classes. The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists chipped in for carfare and refreshments. Colleagues on the announcing staff volunteered to help. The city Board of Education gave its blessing.

MOST OF the class comes from Harlem, with a scattering from the Bronx. All attended the first session with obvious suspicion and hostility, Brandt said.

"We talked with them, asked them what they would like to do later, explained that we were not trying to correct clinical speech problems, like lisping or stuttering, but trying to help them communicate better, even among themselves."

Rita, from Harlem, finally felt secure enough to appeal to Brandt for help in eliminating what she called "talking country" — neighborhood slang for the jargon of the street.

Kurt, from a Bronx slum, used "you know" after every couple of words. They all peppered their speech with "man," and they all spoke much too fast.

Frank's problem was an inability to pronounce the word "ask," — it came out "axe."

ONCE there was a rapport between students and teachers, the sessions loosened up considerably. Brandt and associates were able to ask the youngsters what they wanted to do later in life. One boy said he wanted to be a lawyer, giving Brandt an opportunity to demonstrate what a handicap poor speech could be.

"Some day you might have to go to the suburbs and address a jury," Brandt told him. "If you dropped in 'man' every few words, you might very easily build antagonism for both yourself and your client. You must be realistic, you must think before you speak and you must speak slowly."

Partly because there was not time during the evening sessions, the teachers didn't even try to police up the grammar of the students — "That's too much for an introductory course."

"BUT THE remarkable thing is that we found as time went on that these kids don't really like the way they speak — they kept telling us they wanted to 'talk straight,' " Brandt continued.

"All we really have been able to do is expose them to basic verbal communication skills. What we'd like to do now is expand in the future — more students and, perhaps even have daytime classes — to teach them about the dynamics and mechanics of speech."

CRITICS' CORNER

JUSTICE IN AMERICA, aired June 15, Ch. 2.

"Justice in America," CBS' three-part series on the nation's current concern about law, order and legal rights, concluded Tuesday night by looking at crime and the courts.

No subject so huge and complex can be examined closely in 60 minutes. The program said an estimated 10 million serious crimes were committed last year although only about half were reported and fewer than one-tenth of those reached the courtroom. The program handled the subject in just about the only possible way: by concentrating on conditions in one city — Denver — and applying facts, opinions and theories to the rest of the country.

It was a distressingly familiar story — at least half of the serious criminal offenders are 18 or younger and involved in everything from shoplifting to armed robbery; nervous and angered citizens demand stricter law enforcement; courts are reluctant to send young first offenders to correctional institutions; courts and probation department are overburdened.

While most of the program was a recital of the dilemma, there were some constructive suggestions. One Denver judge holds great hope for a system of volunteer probation officers, unpaid business and professional men and housewives, each with a single youthful offender upon whom to concentrate. Among the 5,000 who have reported the x,000 volunteers, the rate of recidivism has been cut in half. For the rest, remedies outlined in the program included more efficient courts, beefed up police and probation departments, better control of drugs and addiction and, of course, more money.

The program seemed to be primarily concerned with the problems of the offenders, and almost totally ignored the problems of victims and potential victims.

SEARCH FOR THE LOVE GODDESS, aired June 13, Ch. 2; PERE GORIOT, premiere, aired June 13, Ch. 28.

"Smithsonian Adventure," CBS' newest actuality series made in collaboration with the Smithsonian Institution, romped off to an unusual and attention holding start. It was an account of American archeologist Iris Love's determined hunt for the lost statue of Aphrodite, carved more than 2,000 years ago by the Greek sculptor Praxiteles and the first female nude statue ever created.

The hour unreeled like a detective story, based on Miss Love's clues — a finger, a fragment of marble drapery, a fingerless hand, a statue base lifted from her excavation at Knidos, Turkey, where the original Aphrodite was last seen 1,500 years ago.

Miss love's assertion that the head of the statue is now in the British museum was debated by Miss Love and a froiner museum department head, Prof. Bernard Ashmole, who illustrated his opposition to the theory.

Unlike a detective story, there was no satidfactory wrapup. But it was fascinating television, particularly scenes taken at the dig in Knidos. Former astronaut Walter Schirra is the series narrator and needs more experience to read scripts easily and fluently.

VIEWERS enchanted with public broadcasting's "Forsyte Saga" will be easily hooked on "Masterpiece Theater's" new serial, "Pere Goriot." The first of four episodes, based on Balzac's novel, is set in 19th century Paris and the first 60 minutes set up as many plot lines as the premiere of a new soap opera.

The story is built around a third-rate lodging house. Goriot is an impoverished old man who receives young and beautiful women in his garret room. Two other lodgers are a young woman and her former nurse, both trying to get a rich old man to recognize the girl as his daughter and, thus, his heir.

Most of the first episode concerned a young, poor law student, Eugene, anxious to get into high society and make good contacts.

It was vastly entertaining with good acting by the British cast.

1235 LONG BEACH BOULEVARD • LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA 90813

After 46 years of serving our friends in the Long Beach area, conditions beyond my control force me to close my store.

Since the death of my husband last year, I have tried to operate the business to the best of my knowledge, in order to sustain my three children and myself, however conditions prevent me from continuing Siris Furniture.

I have instructed my store manager to slash all prices beyond belief, so that my many friends in the Long Beach area can take advantage of the "once in a lifetime" savings in our quality home furnishings.

I regret the quantities are limited, so I suggest that you shop early for best selection.

Charge accounts and financing have been arranged in order to facilitate your purchases.

I sincerely regret being forced into the decision of quitting business and I want to personally thank you for your past patronage.

On behalf of my three children and myself, I thank you for your help, understanding and kindness.

Most Sincerely,

Annie Siris

New Cosmetic Face Lift Originated in Europe Gives Face Younger Smoothness!

To help yourself to a more youthful appearance, you must first deal, successfully, with age signs. Get right up close to your mirror and face them all at once. Lines around your eyes . . . around your nose and mouth, and how about your neck? Don't fear these demons any longer, for 2ND DEBUT, the cosmetic "face lift" is simple to use and very quickly makes most all its users passionately dependent upon it.

Apply at bedtime and in the morning. It works by supplying to the epidermis layer of the skin a synthesis of the natural ingredient that furnishes concentrated moisture to sustain youthful smoothness and freshness. The change takes place as rapidly as the rehydration of the epidermis is accomplished.

Get 2ND DEBUT 600 if your unhappiness with your looks is just beginning. In 4 ounce bottle. Get 2ND DEBUT 1200 if your unhappiness is every morning. Or, if you're still young, but your face doesn't show it, use the double potency 2ND DEBUT 1200 for quick help. In addition to the 4 ounce bottle, 2ND DEBUT 1200 is now available in the new 8 ounce Boudoir Size. Attractively boxed and a real "buy."

WELLS REPORT

The Orange Corridor

One of the frustrating things about being an urban planner is that streets tend to have ideas of their own about how they will develop. In the beginning, you pick out a spacious quadrangle in the center of your population area, you decree it the civic and business center of your city and sit back and wait for alabaster towers and tree-shaded streets to grow on the site.

Well, the public library and the city hall and the police station go up there, all right, but meanwhile, some twisty asymmetrical street in one corner of your map, a former cow trail that you were hoping ultimately to remove altogether, begins to sprout high-rise office buildings like crazy. Along with the office buildings come good stores and good restaurants.

Your city has suddenly grown a "strip" or "corridor." Unlike all the neat little lines that the planners drew on the map, it has character. No one would ever mistake Sunset Boulevard for, say, Eighth Street in Los Angeles; or Ventura Boulevard for Sherman Way in the San Fernando Valley. Wilshire Boulevard and New York's Fifth Avenue are each unique. No one would ever confuse Anaheim Street with Vermont Avenue, although both are leading contenders for the title of World's Ugliest Street.

Some planners have given up trying to beat urban corridors and have joined them. Constantinos Doxiadis, for example, has proclaimed the "linear city" as the only appropriate form for modern cities. This means you pick out a likely looking street and build a city on it that is 30 miles long and six or eight blocks deep. Well, maybe not that extreme but you get the idea.

It seems to me that somewhere here is a concept that may help to explain Orange County, a project that has occupied a full third of the waking time of some of the best minds in the nation. The trouble with Orange County is that it has few streets of distinction, no strips worthy of the name, and only one corridor.

It is easy to get lost in Orange County. In the old days, that is, from pre-Portola to post-Madame Modjeska, if you got lost you either hunted like crazy for the Santa Ana River or took a sight on Saddleback, turned your back on it and walked to the sea. Nowadays, you hunt like crazy for a freeway. Once you find it, you may have to follow it for miles before you find an entrance to it, but as long as you keep it in sight you're OK.

But it is easy to get out of sight of a freeway in Orange County and disappear into the vast trackless suburban delta where each street looks like the other and leads you into a maze of dead-end tract circles. Some travelers, despairing of ever finding their way out, settle down and intermarry with the natives. That is not easily accomplished either. The natives while physically attractive tend to be clannish and suspicious of strangers.

The main Orange County corridor in the old days was Highway 101 through Santa Ana. But Highway 101 has been replaced by the San Diego Freeway and freeways are throughways, not corridors along which the important functions of a city can cluster and grow.

There is a motel and bar strip of sorts around Disneyland. Contemplating it daily induced the Disneyland people to go to Florida and make a fresh start. Highway 39, Brookhurst, Harbor Boulevard and a few similar streets provide a nonfreeway north-south link. In a few years all these streets will have progressed to the point where they can rival Anaheim and Vermont for the title of world's ugliest. For the moment, however, their shanty shopping centers and garish neon merely make them rather ordinary looking disaster areas.

It is a pity, because Orange County away from its main thoroughfares is still beautiful — much more so than Los Angeles County.

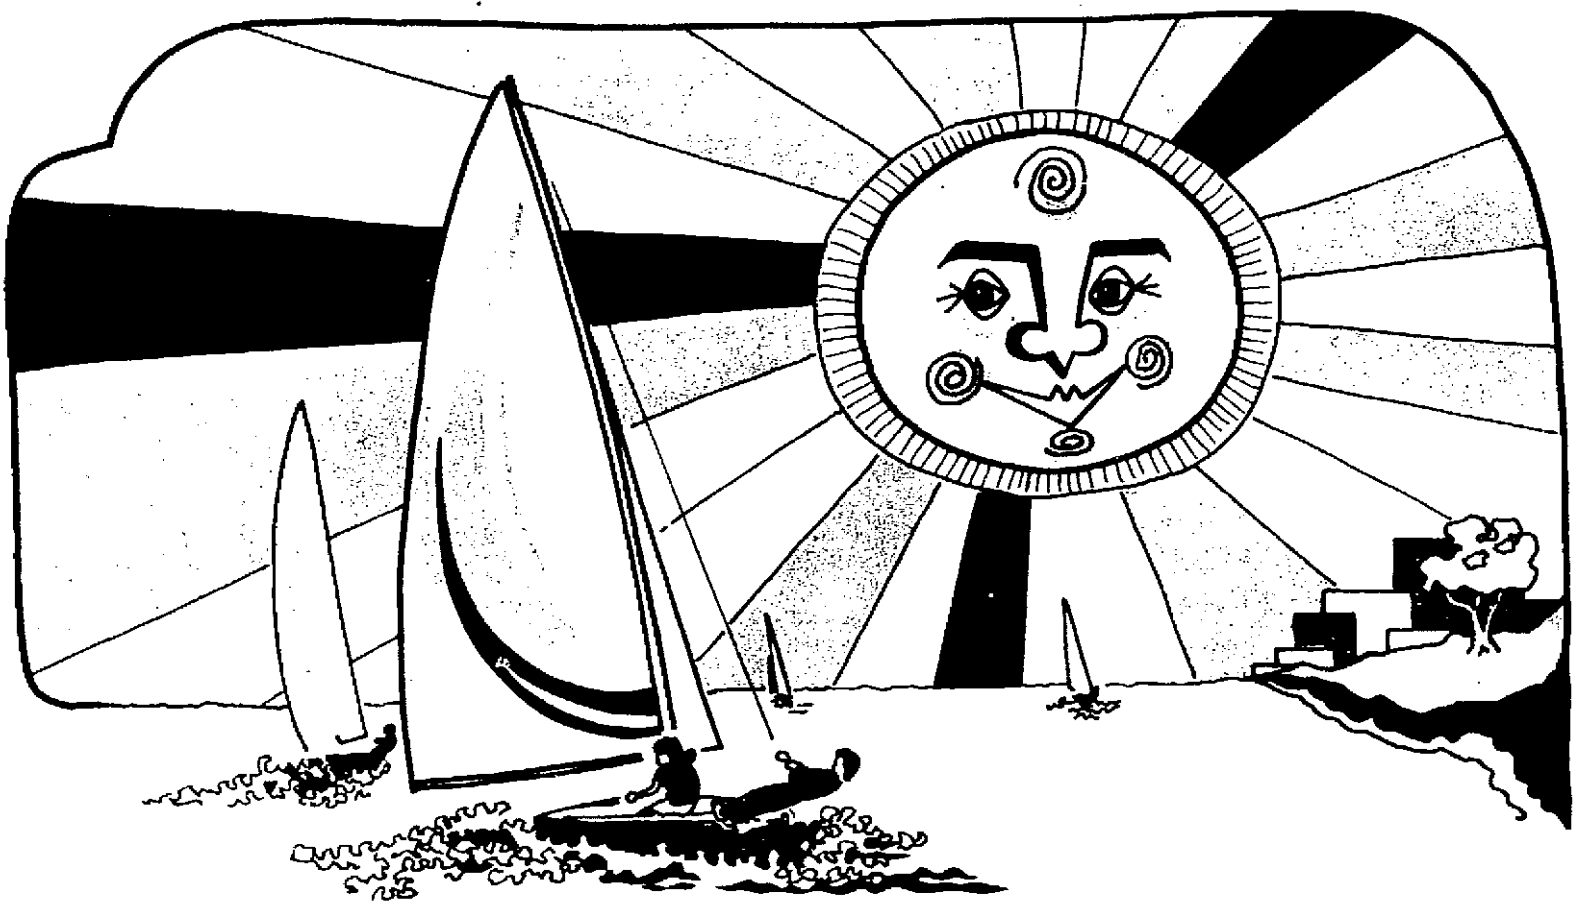

The county does have one corridor worthy of the name — Pacific Coast Highway, the old Alternate 101, the new Highway 1. It creates what amounts to one linear city all the way from Seal Beach to San Clemente.

Pacific Coast Highway does not have the sophistication of Wilshire Boulevard, nor the contrasts of Sunset, which runs from the Old Plaza through the Strip to Bel Air and Pacific Palisades. But PCH need not apologize. It has a natural beauty that neither of the other two corridors can match.

A great new shopping center is rising off the highway in Newport Beach, to be followed in a few years by a civic center. It is bordered by shops and art galleries in Laguna Beach. It has its own budding restaurant row in Corona del Mar. And like Pennsylvania Avenue, it can boast a home of the President.

For the moment the greatest threat to PCH — the Pacific Coast Freeway — seems to have been averted. The plans of the Irvine Co. for high-rise apartments in the Crystal Cove area pose a future threat of congestion and shutting off of sea and sky. But Pacific Coast Highway through Orange County right now is one of the great thoroughfares of the world. □

Q: Any truth to the rumor that the former bodyguard of President Nixon is now guarding Howard Hughes? And who is he? — S.C.R., Las Vegas.

A: James Golden — who's reputed to have a brain to match his brawn. He was just one of the Secret Service bodyguards assigned not only to Nixon but previously to LBJ. He resigned his job as chief security officer in the Nassau hotel now considered to be the billionaire's permanent home — to become a key V.P. in the Hughes organization.

Q: I heard that Peter Sellers' newest marriage is on the rocks already — because his third bride, Miranda, caught him making love to a beautiful actress. What's the lowdown? — J. Durland, Cincinnati.

A: The incident was only make-believe, and so was the love scene. It happened while Sellers was filming "There's a Girl in My Soup," and Miranda was invited to watch her Pete cheat. The actor copped out, explaining: "That kind of scene is shot about 50 different ways. Especially when you're rolling around in the nude — in case they show too much."

Q: John Mills, who just won an Oscar for his role in "Ryan's Daughter" — how much time and how many makeup men did it take to make this good-looking man so ugly? — Mrs. Anthony F., Dallas.

A: Surprisingly little, according to Charles Parker, MGM's makeup chief at Borehamwood Studios. Parker, who created the actor's facial transformation, reveals what was done — only a small addition to the nose and to one ear, and plating a special set of teeth. Otherwise, he says, Michael "The Mute" is John Mills. Unlike the old Lon Chaney days, when aging and monster makeup took three or more hours each day to put on and take off, Mills' makeup took only half an hour to achieve. Parker, incidentally, was one of the first in his craft to experiment with plastics.

Q: That lovely film actress, Dolores Hart, who quit movies to dedicate herself to God — where is she now? — R. O'Donnell, Long Beach.

A: The beauteous onetime star still glows — as Mother Dolores of the Regina Laudis Monastery, Connecticut. "Hollywood was good to me," she says. "It was a gift. If I had not been given so much, perhaps it would have been harder for me to enter the monastery. I was given a dream on one level which enabled me to dream even higher."

Q: You recently wrote that Johnny Carson challenged Virginia Graham to wrestle nude in Macy's window. What was her retort? — Rita L.T., Portland, Ore.

A: "I accept your challenge," Miss Graham wired Carson, "but my husband, Harry, insists I wear a body stocking. Besides, I'd prefer Bergdorf's window."

Q: Did Vanessa Redgrave have that baby yet? And has she become Mrs. Franco Nero? — Andy Anderson, Tampa, Fla.

A: Yes — and no. In the marriage game, the score with Nero remains zero. But the climate continues warm and humid — with a second baby reportedly on the way.

A Father's Magic

By Frank Anderson

A father is a man who is most visible to his sons when he is gone.

Then it's too late for the eyes to see. Only memory can look through the veil of time and find the strength a son lost to mortality and the call of God.

I look for my father, and I find him in yesterdays that flood back through the quiet tears of remembering. The hand I reached for as a toddler is calloused, lined with the ink of a printer.

I feel the hand on my shoulder, squeezing and transmitting a current of pride. It tells me much. It speaks of a man who didn't go to college but gloried in the son who did. And in the loving pressure on my arm there is a message of love from a poor man, a proud man who gave far more than he received from life.

And now I am merged into my father. The same gray is at my temples. And the worries he lived and surmounted remain to test me.

I know my father in death as I failed to know him in life.

He was a simple man. He prayed, he worked, he paid his bills. And he made small boys believe in tomorrow when today was bleak and hunger-filled.

His magic was made of many things — such as payments of 75 cents a week on a set of the Books of Knowledge. In 1933, this meant the equivalent of lunches for the week.

My brothers and I ran up a debt of love in the long-ago days when hope seemed such an empty dream. We didn't really reckon the cost until the Easter morning we got bright baskets of candy and new shoes.

At church that morning I found out the real price of the candy and shoes. My father knelt at the communion rail to receive the Host, and I saw that each of his shoes had a big hole in the sole.

My sons will give me presents today, and I'll be grateful to them and to their grandfather whose heart was as big as the holes in his shoes.

Men seek the meaning of love, while all the time it is there defined as big as their memories of yesterday. □

ABORTION

...fornia's 'reform' law
...n't so well, says the
...ree examples

Lana Claire Phelps has been since 1963 an outspoken proponent of total repeal of criminal sanctions that prohibit performance of abortion. Chairman of Women's Caucus, Assembly Democratic Committee; Chairman for Abortion Law Repeal, National Organization for Women; and Vice President West of National Association for Repeal of Abortion Laws (NARAL), and has lectured widely throughout the United States, she feels...

"Today, any woman wanting an abortion can get one easily. The 1967 Therapeutic Abortion Act is working splendidly, perhaps too well. A total of 50,000 therapeutic abortions will be performed in California this year."

The voice of the television newscaster made this smooth announcement in a recent Los Angeles area broadcast. His voice tinged with moral censure, he noted the projected total would include a "huge number of Medi-Cal and welfare abortions," with the cost borne by the taxpayers. He deftly linked the applications of women on welfare for the "now legal, therapeutic abortions" provided under the new "reform" law with sexual immorality, laziness, ignorance, carelessness and general conspiracy to load needless medical expense on California taxpayers.

To the uninformed listener, it would appear all legal barriers had been removed and that immediate, adequate surgical/medical abortions performed in accredited hospitals were now available to any woman, on request, and at reasonable costs, if not free.

Is obtaining an abortion really that simple in California under the "reform" law?

Mary M., a 34-year-old Caucasian woman, attended two years of college prior to marriage. She and her husband, a certified public accountant, had two children, both planned and welcomed. Forgetting to take The Pill for a couple of days proved a sad error on her part. The third pregnancy was confirmed by her private physician when she was five weeks pregnant. Having long been a patient of this ob-gynecologist, Mary was able to get a rush appointment for an early diagnosis of what this time was "fear" rather than "anticipation."

Mary's husband was in total agreement with her decision to terminate this third pregnancy immediately. Neither of them wanted a third child. Consulting with her physician, Mary found out for the first time that laws forbidding physicians to perform abortions still existed. He explained the laws to her, pointing out that she would not qualify under even the "reform" law -- except, perhaps, the "mental health"' clause. Mary was outraged, her husband incredulous that he, too, would have no voice in determining their best interests beyond this legal maneuver.

The physician explained the procedure required by the hospital in which the surgery would be performed. Mary was to go to one psychiatrist, recommended by him for swift cooperation, and obtain a letter addressed to the Hospital Abortion Committee. This letter would state that Mary's emotional health was endangered by continuation of the unwanted pregnancy. The law requires that, for an abortion, mental health must be endangered to the "extent the woman is dangerous to herself or to the person or property of others or is in need of supervision or restraint." The physician added that the letter would be more restrained but must comply with requirements of the law. Mary would never see the letter at all.

"It's just a formality," he assured Mary and her husband. "It doesn't really mean you are suicidal or psychotic. It's how the system works. Some private hospitals require two psychiatric clearances. You want this abortion, don't you? We can use a fictitious name if you really want privacy." They agreed to call her "Helen J."

The psychiatrist Mary visited was kind and cooperative, and Mary felt he didn't exactly relish the role into which the hospital requirements placed his profession. The interview took less than 30 minutes. The fee, including writing of the precious letter, was $100.

Mary's physician presented her case to the Abortion Committee that same week. Her petition was accompanied by a statement of medical agreement from a consulting physician obtained by her own gynecologist, along with the letter from the psychiatrist. The abortion, promptly approved on "mental health" grounds, was scheduled for the following day. "Helen J." entered the hospital at 6 o'clock that night. The total time elapsed for the processing of her application from the time of her pregnancy diagnosis till entering the hospital was six days. She was only six weeks pregnant.

Early the next morning, Mary's pregnancy was terminated by vacuum aspirator. This procedure is actually a gentle vacuuming of the interior of the womb, followed by a routine "scraping," commonly known as a "curettment," if the physician feels it necessary. Her operation took 15 minutes, start to finish. She walked out of the hospital before noon that day, spent the afternoon shopping and prepared dinner for her family that night.

Few medical insurance policies cover such surgery as Mary, otherwise known as "Helen J.," received. The cash payment eliminated insurance processing, and no one questioned her convenient new name. The cost of Mary's "deluxe" abortion was $750. Breaking this sum down, the physician's fee was $350; medical consultant-assistant surgeon, $100; anesthetist fee, $50; psychiatrist fee, $100; hospital room and board, operating room facility, dressings, miscellaneous, $150.

Relating her experience, Mary smiled when asked about guilt feelings or other trauma regarding her abortion. "I don't feel anything except relief," she said. "We both do. It's what we wanted, and certainly our right to decide. The cost is certainly terrible, isn't it? When are you people going to do something about this Dark Age rigmarole we had to go through?"

When asked her feelings about a false medical statement that she (or Helen J., in this case) was emotionally unstable, she shrugged. "It's a lousy system, but the only way I could get it done. At least, there won't be a record on me for the public to drool over."

For Mary M. and her husband, fortunate enough to have money, educational advantage, social and medical connections, the California abortion law worked as splendidly as the newsman predicted.

Carolyn L., 21 years of age, Caucasian also, found a somewhat different situation when she applied for a legal abortion. She had been 16, her husband 19 when they married. In five years, Carolyn bore three children. Her young husband was not drafted into military service, and, being comparatively unskilled, drove a truck for a small, local company to support their rapidly growing brood of children. He had been unable to get into a union apprentice program, and financial strains imposed by medical bills and rising costs had overwhelmed the youthful parents.

Neither had considered contraceptive use until after the birth of their second infant. The third child was accidentally conceived by miscalculation of Carolyn's ovulation period under the "rhythm" method advocated by her religious background. Following the third baby, Carolyn again figured the "rhythm" dates and also used a vaginal foam purchased without prescription at the drug store.

Her third baby was nine months old when she again missed her menstrual period. Frantic with a fear she could not share, hoping against hope she had just "missed a period," she saw the second month go by. There was no doubt left. She confided in her husband with the reaction she had been dreading swiftly forthcoming. Furious with her for what he termed "being so dumb" she was wrecking his life and ignoring the part he might have played in their miscalculations, he gathered up his scant supply of clothing and left the apartment. He didn't come back and sent no word as to his whereabouts. Carolyn found herself alone, except for three small children, a mountain of unpaid debts and no money at all.

A neighbor woman told her about the local Free Clinic. There, a pelvic examination and lab test revealed she was 11 weeks along in her pregnancy. The clinic suggested she apply for Medi-Cal in her present emergency, and even for welfare temporarily. At the Medi-Cal office, Carolyn said, she encountered a cool, clinical reception when she explained her needs. She learned the State of California was cutting back drastically on all Medi-Cal programs, particularly on abortion procedures for women without funds. Although Carolyn's depressed mental condition at this point might genuinely have met the state legal conditions as "suicidal," apparently there were no provisions or funds for psychiatric consultation. Although she pleaded for medical relief for "just this one emergency," so she then could go to work to support her existing three children, she was turned down. Reportedly, the reason given was that "too many women are using public welfare to 'escape the consequences of sexual carelessness'."

Perhaps the particular social worker who interviewed Carolyn did not know, or perhaps did not tell her for personal moral convictions, that county hospitals were taking a few women weekly, from 20 to 50 particularly needy patients, for abortion. The county hospitals charge on a sliding scale, according to ability to pay, from free to $140 or thereabouts, and permit payments as low as $5 down and $5 monthly on the debt.

The Free Clinic had not realized Medi-Cal would turn down what apparently was a most qualified applicant, and had not thought to mention this last resort to Carolyn. She had expressed her personal revulsion to the idea of going on "public relief" in this more understanding interview. To Carolyn, with a formal education only through the tenth grade and totally lacking previous experience of any similar nature, all avenues of help appeared to be exhausted.

In despair, she again talked with her neighbor, telling of her failure to get help. This time, the neighbor confided to Carolyn she had undergone an "illegal" abortion the previous year. A man had inserted a rubber catheter to start her second - month miscarriage, and it had turned out "just fine." He had charged her $50 for this service. She furnished Carolyn with the telephone number she had used. Carolyn's mind was now almost numb with despair and fear. She dialed the number and the "man" was still available for the quoted price of $50. To obtain the money, she sold her most precious possessions, a radio-phonograph and four place settings of sterling silver she had received as a wedding present in happier days.

The "man" inserted a rubber catheter in a dispassionate manner, with the $50 cash in advance. He told her to "go home and wait." For three days, nothing happened at all. On the fourth day she began to feel cramping, light uterine pains and noticed a light, bloody discharge. Less welcome symptoms were an increasingly severe headache and rising fever. The children's old thermometer showed 102 degrees. She tried hard to put it out of her mind, walking rapidly for blocks, scrubbing floors, lifting the children, anything strenuous she could think of to "help her catheter work." These had been her only instructions from the "man" except "not to come back."

A fifth day passed in the same physical misery. Carolyn spent a sleepless night. The following morning she could not get out of bed at all, even though the children were crying and hungry, the baby wet and cold in his crib. Now, thoroughly frightened, she sent the oldest boy to call the neighbor woman. The neighbor, appalled at the dire results of her sincere efforts to help, called first the fire department, then the police department, then summoned the ambulance they recommended. The help all arrived together, but in the interval, Carolyn's desperately sought abortion-miscarriage was well under way. The fever-wracked young woman, her bed-clothing soaked in blood, was placed on a stretcher and taken to County Hospital as a "septic" or self-induced abortion case. Neither woman mentioned the "man" throughout the whole affair. The wide-eyed children were temporarily taken to juvenile hall for care.

Thus, Carolyn finally got her cherished medical care from the county. The badly infected young woman clung staunchly to her claims of self - abortion. Even though she had suffered from his ineptitude in procedures requiring sterility and medical knowledge, at least the shadowy "man" had tried to help her without superimposing his morality over her own conscience and for a sum of money she could manage by great sacrifice.

Two weeks later, Carolyn was released from the hospital. Facing the doctor across his desk prior to her discharge, she was told she would be sterile for the rest of her life as a result of the severe infection. The doctor related later, "I told her right out. She didn't say anything for just a few seconds. Then she looked straight at me, smiled like an angel, and said 'Thank you, doctor, thank you from the bottom of my heart.' How can you understand women?"

The final price California taxpayers paid to save Carolyn's life was $2,000, plus Juvenile Hall costs for maintenance of her children while she was hospitalized.

When interviewed about her experience, she was a great deal more informed about such matters as abortion laws than she had been prior to her experience. Like many non-affluent women, she found them to "legislate morality for indigent women" and deeply resented the general punitive attitude of social institutions she found governed by males who, as she put it, "have never been pregnant."

She was understandably bitter. "I only wish one man doctor, one pious minister or priest, one politician could go through the hell they caused me." And about the medical counselor not referring her to the county facility: "I could have gotten this done for $350 if Medi-Cal could have helped me when I needed it. I could have paid it back a little at a time, but they would sure have gotten every cent of it."

Asked about her still-missing husband, she said flatly, "I don't want him to come back. Ever. He left us when we needed him most. I'll manage now, all by myself."

She was asked if she felt guilty about what she had done. "Not about the abortion . . . or even being sterile. The last thing I'll ever want is another child after this. I do feel bad about what happened to me because I didn't have money to pay right that minute." She glanced at her children playing nearby. "I want things to be better for them. It's awful to be poor. In fact, I think it's the worst crime in the United States not to have money . . . at least it seems that way."

The California law doesn't work so "splendidly" for the Carolyns of California, and there are many such women. Conservative estimates are that 100,000 illegal abortions have been performed annually in California alone for many years. Educated guesses are that from one to two million are done yearly in the United States.

According to the TV newsman mentioned at the start of our story, this year 50,000 California women will receive "legal, therapeutic" abortions. Perhaps half of these women will be the less affluent, such as Carolyn L. Some certainly will receive much swifter, kinder care than she did. Others will fare worse, at least psychologically, at the hands of bureaucratic or medical personnel, ignorant of their own sadism, even pious in their denial of medically safe, inexpensive surgical birth control for women not bound by religious restrictions.

In California, that leaves 50,000 women still in the underground seeking aid, or doing their own crude surgeries blindly hoping their lives can be saved when and if they reach the infection or hemorrhage stage where medical care can no longer be denied them, regardless of moral censure. These 50,000 women will all lack money or they would not be in this tragic position. The one thing they share in common is the desperation over an unwanted pregnancy that is felt so deeply they would rather risk death than compulsory maternity. Some will die. Abortion, a simple procedure in proper medical hands — seven times safer than natural childbirth — is the leading cause of maternal death in America. Others will be maimed, some made sterile; most will "luck through just fine."

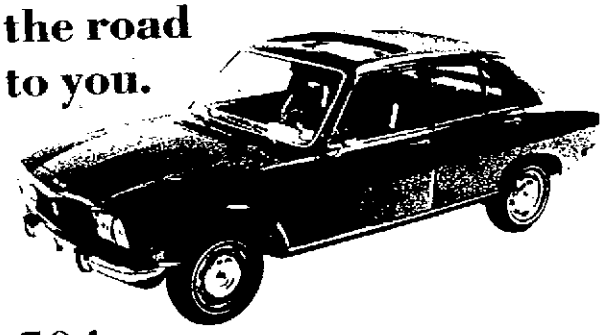

But all will be exploited financially and labeled socially as "criminals" for undergoing their "illegal abortions." No woman has ever been charged in court or convicted for having an abortion performed on her, or performing one on herself. Regardless of the stated or real intent for enacting abortion laws a century ago, the laws have served no useful purpose except to forbid licensed physicians to help these desperate women at the time they need help most.

What such laws do foster and support, however, is the third largest U.S. underground racket, exceeded only by gambling and prostitution, in that order. The aberrant laws have been kept in force by special interest groups, hierarchies of religious sects intent on increasing numbers of their flocks. Such advocates have ignored obvious medical and biological facts, utilizing criminal laws to enforce personal sexual determinations on all women. When criminal law is used for such purposes, disrespect and disregard for law is inevitable, as it only applies to the poor.

True, abortion laws are currently falling across the nation before every court test for constitutionality. However, it will probably not be until the new, self-administered, once-per-month, chemical abortion-contraceprion, Prostaglandins, becomes available (hopefully in the next two to three years) that American women will, at long last, gain physical custody over their own bodies and the precious constitutional rights of life, liberty and pursuit of happiness now denied them.

Abortion is birth control. Motherhood should not be punishment and educated men and women will never accept it as such. Society will continue to pay the bill for thousands of unwanted, unloved children as long as it tolerates such cruel compulsory childbearing laws, compelling the unwilling to bear the unwanted. □

WILDLIFE VERSUS FREEWAY

By Gil Bailey

High overhead a hawk circled and below a white bird, its wings fluttering, fished as the tide swirled around its long legs.

Nearby a golden eagle nested and in the tide pools and marshlands an estimated two thirds of the marine organisms renewed their cycles of life.

Here behind the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station's barbed wire fences and protected by armed guards, the one remaining natural tidal flat and marshland in Southern California sparkled under the sun, but the armed guards and barbed wire fences may be of no protection to this wildlife sanctuary.

Its advancing enemy is the state of California, the Division of Highways and its Pacific Coast Freeway.

The red planning line of the freeway cuts directly through the tidal marsh and what was once called Anaheim Bay.

"A freeway would do irreparable harm," said Dr. Charles T. Collins, a professor at Cal State Long Beach, a member of the research team studying the marsh.

Already California has destroyed two thirds of its tidelands and marshes, area scientists say are essential in the cycles of life of two thirds of the marine organisms. Here, too, migrating birds rest, and some, on the endangered species list, nest.

So this area, protected now because it is the storage area for weapons of war, including atomic bombs, is in desperate danger with the state engineers knocking on the door with bulldozers just behind them.

The U.S. Navy is fighting the freeway.

Conservationists are also fighting to save this area.

Some of them have formed an organization called "Friends of Anaheim Bay," which is headquartered at P.O. Box 911, Sunset Beach.

"Our coastline from Point Dume to Corona del Mar was half sea marsh.

at the beginning of this century," pointed out the conservationist group. "Now, because of development, there is one sea marsh left — Anaheim Bay."

The conservationist group is waging a two-front campaign to save the bay.

First, it is trying to get the route of the freeway changed, or eliminated, so far an uphill battle.

Voters of Newport Beach have rejected Pacific Coast Freeway routes through their city, but the State Division of Highways has announced it will not change its plans. At the other end of the proposed freeway, Santa Monica residents have been engaged in an equally futile struggle.

Second, the conservationists have suggested the area be named a National Wildlife Refuge.

Creation of the refuge would not cost the U.S. government a single penny, for it already owns the land.

Nor would such a refuge interfere with the present U.S. Navy use of the area.

Others have acted to save this area. The Orange County Board of Supervisors is protecting the nesting area of the tiny tern, a bird on the endangered species list, which nests just adjacent to the naval station.

But so far — at least as of this writing — no member of the U.S. Congress has stepped forward to call for establishment of a National Wildlife Refuge.

In South San Francisco Bay nine congressmen are cosponsoring such protection for that area, even though much of the land involved is private property and will cost money, millions of dollars.

One of the first steps in creation of a National Wildlife Refuge is introduction of legislation, usually by a local member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

The Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station, and the estimated one square mile of marshland and tidelands, was until 1944 the bayside community of Anaheim Bay. It was purchased during World War II for $4 million by the federal government and the homes there were bulldozed.

In the 1900s it had been a thriving port, serving the inland cities. In 1944 it became one of the major ports through which ammunition poured on its way to the Pacific theater in the closing days of World War II.

It served the same purpose in the Korean War, and today in the Vietnam War.

But during those 27 years of almost continuous war, the weapons station served a second and little known purpose.

Its barbed wire fences and armed guards kept out Southern California's exploding growth, and fish and bird life survived.

Today the guards must occasionally run off a poacher.

"The clammers come in," said a guard with a soft drawl of the South. "And we caught a kid who was trapping hawks the other day."

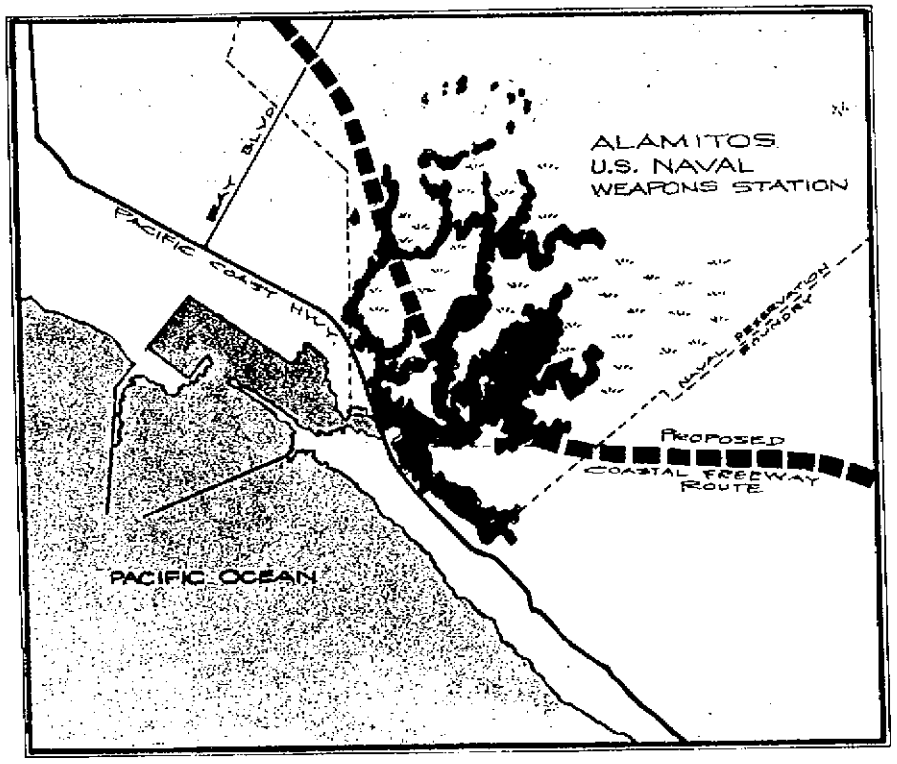

It is a strange mixture, weapons of war and life, one which has worked for 27 years.

Defeat of a freeway is a difficult task, but one was stopped in San Francisco. Other freeway battles are being waged and here and there success seems in sight.

The Pacific Coast Freeway makes an almost deliberate curve to chop into the heart of the bay. Other freeway routes might be possible. (See map.)

But the long term survival of the bird and marine life within the naval station will take more than just a change in or the elimination of the Pacific Coast Freeway. Someday, hopefully, there will be no need to rush munitions to the far reaches of the Pacific. And then there could be a change in use of the 5,000 acres which make up the station.

Only if the bay is made a National Wildlife Sanctuary can this last remaining spot of life along the man-dominated Southern California coast be saved. □

The proposed freeway makes an almost deliberate curve to chop into the heart of the bay

'The Most Fascinating Woman I Ever Knew'

By Patrick Dennis

"My mother began to enjoy her social humiliation, telling everyone who would listen of her 'mad tea party' and the Baroness' fall from grace."

It was Patrick Dennis who introduced the world to one of its most unforgettable characters, Auntie Mame, that vivacious lady of the stage, the movies and the towering musical. Recently, he was asked to recall the most fascinating woman he ever met, and who should materialize? The first woman who made him feel like a man. He knew her briefly. Hardly intimately. Yet she made an indelible impression upon a 10-year-old boy that even 40 years of experience with life and love cannot dim. Auntie Mame, move over and meet the Baroness.

My father was already home when my mother returned from lunch with the Baroness. "With Hoover doing nothing in the White House," he said, "there's nothing doing in the office."

"Well, how was it?" my father asked.

"Oh, fine. Very nice. Kiss?" They kissed.

"So what did this Baroness of yours want?"

"Why she didn't want anything, dear. We met at the Palmer House and had lunch in the Victorian Room. It was a little embarrassing when the check arrived. She couldn't quite make it, poor thing." (In the early '30s lunch at the Palmer House cost $1.50, including a strong quartette.) "I think she's had a pretty rough time."

"Who hasn't?"

"I don't mean just the depression. I mean always — her husband killed in the war, losing all her money, famine conditions in Vienna. It makes me appreciate being little Mrs. Housewife in Evanston, Ill.

"But I must say she doesn't sit around feeling sorry for herself. Very charming and genuine. Blonde. A little gone to seed, but beautifully groomed. Really chic. Marvelous big black hat. Merry Widow sort of thing."

"Merry Widow? How old is this dame?"

"It's hard to judge, dear. Thirty-five? She must be if she was married back during the World War."

"And she doesn't want anything?"

"Oh, she mentioned something about going into business here."

"She picks a swell time."

"And I suppose she'd like to meet some people in Chicago. That's what letters of introduction are for. I could ask a few couples in for dinner. Or maybe just some girls for tea."

"Make it tea," my father said. "Did Ray come?" (Ray was our bootlegger.)

"Yes, dear. He brought a case this morning. And the price . . ."

"Good. Drink?" Humming "The Merry Widow Waltz," my father went to the pantry.

EVANSTON'S NICEST LADIES

The tea party was in full screech when I returned from school a few days later.

Even at the age of 10, I could recognize the signs of grandeur. Our maid-of-all-work glowered from beneath a lace cap. The tea service, usually a tarnishing ornament to the dining room, had been polished and called into play. The Dresden china was out. (Dresden being practically next door to Vienna.) There were crabmeat sandwiches and miniature eclairs.

Also on hand were six of Evanston's nicest ladies, all card-carrying members of Le Cercle Francais. (In the Middle West it was assumed that the Viennese would rather speak French than breathe.) Their presence was further buttressed by old Mrs. Gilbert, who wore a "transformation," still could afford a Packard and chauffeur and who had been brought up by a "fraulein" in case a few words of German were in order.

The girls were all speaking English when I went into the room. And my mother, got up in what was known as a "tea gown," was looking grim. No other word for it. Grim.

Seated on the sofa, smiling beneath her big, black Merry Widow hat, was the Baroness. She wore a red dress and smelled strongly of violet. At her side was a black valise filled with mysterious blue jars. She beamed at me, patted the sofa cushion beside her and said, "Hello, young man."

By 1931 a spate of all-talking, all-singing, all-dancing movies dealing with the Austro-Hungarian Empire had made their way to the Varsity Theatre in Evanston. I had also been taken to the sappier operettas of Lehar, Friml and Strauss. But this was the first time I had ever met a real, live Viennese Personage.

What would Ronald Colman have done? Did one call her "Your Majesty" or only "Gnadige Frau"? Should I kiss her hand as they did in the movies? I settled matters with my best dancing class bow.

Then the Baroness took over. Grasping my head in her hands she kissed me on both cheeks. At closer range she also smelled of cleaning fluid and — ever so slightly — of sweat. The mixture was intoxicating.

"Charming. I should have known you anywhere. So like your beautiful young mother." That pleased me as my mother was far better looking than my father, whom I resembled.

"Patrick is the image of his father," my mother said. That displeased me.

"Well, he is stunning," the Baroness said. "Now, young man, sit down and tell me about yourself." She sounded as though she meant it.

"Why, sure, Baroness," I said, helping myself to an eclair.

"Patrick," my mother said, "you may be excused."

"But . . ."

"You may be excused." It was a pretty euphemism for "Get the hell out." Her tone was so definite that I went upstairs to where my father was stretched out on his bed reading The Saturday Evening Post.

A few minutes later we heard shrill farewells from below and the Baroness accepting Mrs. Gilbert's gracious offer of a lift to the elevated station in her Packard. It seemed odd that the toast of gay Vienna wouldn't have — if not a coach and four — at least a taxicab at her beck and call.

THAT OLD HARD SELL

Then my mother came stamping up the stairs, angrily undoing the snaps on her "tea gown." "Well, of all the crust! Of all the unmitigated gall!"

"What happened?" my father asked. "Did she steal the silver?"

"Worse. She arrived — oh, charming as you please — with a little sort of suitcase. And the next thing I knew she was trying to sell everyone face cream!"

"Working her way through college?" my father laughed.

"You may think it's funny, but I don't. She stuck poor Ellen for seven bucks' worth when Charlie hasn't made a cent all year. And if Patrick hadn't come in (I-was-never-so-glad-to-see-anyone-in-my-life-kiss-mother-darling-and-I'm-sorry-I-was-so-mean) . . . If Pat hadn't come in, the Baroness would have sold poor old Mrs. Gilbert the whole beauty course."

"She could use one," I said.

My father laughed. My mother didn't. "Don't be flip! Fun's fun, but just because she comes to Chicago with a letter from a girl I haven't seen since school doesn't mean that she can use my house and my friends as a . . . Well, I mean it's like giving a party for the Fuller Brush Man. Now I have to call all those women and apologize and . . . Well, I mean here I go and try to do something nice and that big Austrian cow . . ."

"Poor Kraut," my father said. "Drink?"

"Oh, yes, please. And a big one. Well, that's the last of her!"

"I hope not," I said.

"Go do your homework and don't butt in when your parents are talking."

Later that evening I found a white handkerchief buried in the cushions of the sofa — right where the Baroness had asked me to sit. It smelled of violet perfume; in one corner an embroidered coronet; in the other a smudge of lip rouge.

I took it to bed with me that night hoping that I might dream of the Baroness. I was 10 years old. She was the first woman who had ever made me feel like a man and I was hopelessly, helplessly in love.

MADAM WAS OUT

While I moped around, playing and replaying an old red seal recording of Kreisler's "Caprice Viennoise" on our Victor Orthophonic, orders were issued that, should the Baroness call, madam was "Out."

Then my mother, who was gay and, God knows, garrulous, began to enjoy her social humiliation, telling anyone who would listen of her "mad tea party." But I noticed that the adjectives originally used to describe "my friend the Baroness" had undergone a change. "Charming" became "terribly affected." "Genuine," of course, "phony." And "blonde" became "bleached" — something nice women just didn't do in those days. As the Baroness had never removed her hat, it was a doubtful accusation. But it made a good story better.

"Beautifully groomed" became "ra-ther careless; I don't know why European women won't use deodorants." "Chic," the crowning tribute of the 30s, was "dowdy" and "35" became "old," although it was exactly my mother's age. As for the fabu-

'The Most Fascinating Woman'

lous black hat, it was "like something you'd wear to McKinley's funeral."

When I chivalrously reminded my mother of how lovely she had found the Baroness at first, she told me not to eavesdrop on the conversations of adults. My father only shook his head and winked at me.

But my wish was granted. The Baroness returned.

There was no maid to say that madam was "Out" because it was the following Sunday and the maid herself was "Out." No one was "In" except me when the Baroness appeared at our door.

Again, she wore the big black hat and, this time, a string of small brown animals nipping at each other, thus adding the scent of mothballs to her other odors. In the bright sunlight of Asbury Avenue she looked old and tired and worn.

"I'm sorry, but my parents are out," I said quite truthfully. "They're playing golf. At the golf club," I added inanely.

"Ah, what a pity when I have come so far. Let me leave a card." With not-quite immaculate gloves, she groped into a handbag that looked depressingly empty. "I seem to have left my cards . . ."

She swayed and grasped at the door jamb for support. "Could I come in for a glass of water, young man? It is so warm and I have walked so much."

Well, what could I do?

"A charming room," the Baroness said faintly as she sank to the sofa. It wasn't. It was a standard Middle West, middle class department store living room, hopefully swanked up with a grand piano, a signed photograph of Mary Garden and the portrait of some undistinguished ancestor. "And now, if you would be so kind . . ."

"Oh, yes. Your water!" And then a daring thought struck me. "Or would you rather have a drink?"

"Why, that would be lovely. How very gallant. It's so difficult here in the United States with the . . . I can't remember the name of the law."

"Prohibition. Dad calls it . . ." Well, I couldn't possibly repeat to the Baroness what my father called it. "Would you like a scotch and soda?" No mean suggestion considering the price of Ray's right-off-the-boat whiskey. Besides, I didn't know how to mix anything else.

"That would be lovely, my dear."

ALONE WITH THE BARONESS

She looked so ill, drooping there on the sofa, that I also added a crock of rather stale cheese and some crackers, putting it all on a silver tray as a major domo would in the court of Franz Josef — at least in the movies. She brightened immediately. "So careless of me," she said, "I quite forgot to eat lunch today."

Alone with the Baroness, I was suddenly no longer a boy in short pants, pouring her drinks and offering her stale cigarettes from the box on the coffee table. I was a man of the world. And the only man in the world.

"Alone with the Baroness, I was no longer a boy in short pants . . . I was a man of the world and helplessly in love."

Telling her of summers at camp and the trials and tribulations of being in the sixth grade. I felt like every suave seducer in every forbidden film.

With the Baroness the trite room became charming. Evanston was Vienna, Paris, Budapest and I was Douglas Fairbanks, John Barrymore and William Powell. For the Baroness had mastered a difficult art: not that of talking but of listening — listening wholeheartedly.

It was nearly dark when my parents returned and past my bedtime when the Baroness finally left, having first shared our cold Sunday supper and having "borrowed" $20 from my father.

My mother was seething. "How dare you let that woman into the house when you heard me give strict orders . . ."

"Oh, leave the kid alone. He's only 10. Did you bring him up to slam the door in a lady's face?"

"Lady, you call her? And as for you, shelling $20 to that adventuress when we have a stack of bills on the desk that . . ."

"Aw, lay off. Besides, I thought she was kind of fascinating."

"Fascinating? How? She hardly said a word — just listened to you rant and rave about Hoover and how lousy business is."

"Poor Kraut," my father said.

"Poor, she? Well, if I collected 20 bucks every time I heard you griping, I'd be richer than Doris Duke." My mother set about snapping off the lights while her two lovelorn males went upstairs to bed.

We never saw the Baroness again. About a week later she was arrested.

In the Chicago of Al Capone her crimes were hardly colorful enough to be front-page stuff, but her title made her newsworthy. The story was simply sad. The Baroness had been caught cooking up face creams on a hot plate in some shabby hotel. She had been charged with entering the country illegally, with manufacturing cosmetics without a license and peddling them without a permit.

There was an enticing hint — but only a hint — of moral turpitude. Deportation proceedings etc, etc, etc. "So that's the story of your fascinating Baroness," my mother said triumphantly.

"She is fascinating," I announced. "As for you, Mr. Fresh, finish your breakfast and get to school."

"Poor Kraut," my father said again.

Poor she was. Shabby and hungry. And, like thousands of down-and-out gentlewomen, using her title, her connections, every fragile weapon at her disposal to keep alive. I hope she succeeded. I'm certain that she did, for the Baroness had fascination.

She was attractive but not beautiful; intelligent but not brilliant; amusing but not witty. She was never "on stage" as fascinators are supposed to be. There was no "I-Me-My" in her conversation; only "You-You-You." What made the Baroness seem fascinating to males of all ages was that, by merely listening intelligently, intently and wholeheartedly, she made them seem fascinating. And that is fascination.

It has been said before, but I will say it again: There are no femmes fatale, only stupid men. □

An Indian Boy Named Reelfoot

Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee, popular with tourists and sportsmen, is the largest body of water in the United States formed by an earthquake. The quake, in 1811, formed the lake when an entire cypress forest sank. Named Reelfoot for an Indian youth who perished, the lake is fringed with cypress trees.

THE LAKE OF THE QUAKE

by Grover Brinkman

Today's visitors to Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee are often loud in their praise for its beauty. The lake seems to be part of a giant cypress forest, one of the few virginal stands left in the nation.

When these same visitors realize that the lake was formed by the New Madrid earthquake of 1811, they direct more adjectives to it. But such is the case.

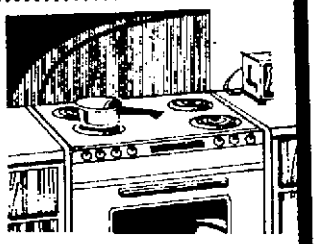

On the terrifying night of Dec. 16, 1811, one of the greatest cataclysms ever registered in the nation occurred at New Madrid, Mo., across the river from what is now Reelfoot Lake. By comparison, the recent California earthquake pales into insignificance.

For some time the circuit riders had been predicting the end of the world, and, on this particular night, New Madrid's residents were positive the dreaded day was at hand.

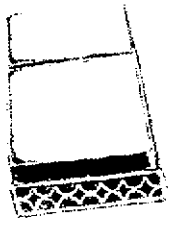

Settlers inside their log cabins suddenly found themselves knocked off their feet. Dishes toppled off cupboard shelves; chimneys fell in; entire buildings disintegrated.

LAKE OF THE QUAKE

Men at the nearby river front told an unbelievable story. The current of the Mississippi had actually reversed itself! Yesterday it flowed to the south, now it was north. New Madrid had really been claimed by the devil.

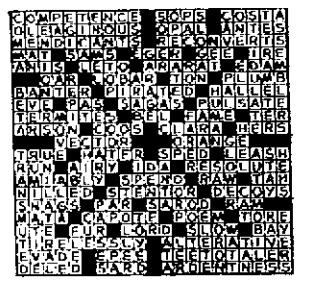

The settlers were unaware at the time that they had survived one of the worst earth tremors ever recorded. And there was more to come. The quakes continued from mid-December in 1811 until March 1812. A Kentucky historian charted 1,874 separate tremors in the New Madrid area before the tremors stopped. The tortured Mississippi constantly changed course. The quakes cracked walls in homes as far distant as the Carolinas; stopped clocks in Boston and tolled church bells in Virginia.

Had the area been densely populated as it is today, the death and property toll would have been enormous. But this was the day of the pioneer. Most of the wilderness was still the home of the Cherokee.

Across the river, in Tennessee, the quake formed an immense lake when an entire cypress forest sank. Later it was named Reelfoot, in remembrance of an Indian youth, Kalopin (Reelfoot), who because of his lameness perished. Today Reelfoot is 25,000 acres of water, fringed with cypress trees of great beauty. □

WORKSHOP

TAKE A LITTLE TIME

By Steve Ellingson

Never before have floor clocks been as popular as they are today. Any room in the home is enhanced by these functional decorative pieces. The distinctive model shown is colonial in motif. It chimes every hour and strikes on the hour and half hour.

Floor clocks are traditionally expensive. You'll find that it costs considerably less to build your own floor clock than to purchase one ready-made.

The granddaughter clock shown can be made with just a few basic tools. You don't have to be a crackerjack woodworker to build it. It has been designed in the form of three basic boxes: top, center and bottom. The three sections are built separately, then joined with screws. The addition of ready-made mouldings and wood turnings magically transforms the assembly into the beautiful clock pictured.

The clock shown was finished in fruitwood, but you may like to try your hand at the "new look" using the exciting antiquing finishes on the market. No matter which finish you choose, this clock will please everyone with its dignity and graceful elegance. Because of its size, slightly smaller than a grandmother clock, it will fit easily into any nook or cranny of a room and brighten it up considerably. A pleasure to make, and a pleasure to look at.

If the turnings, clock movement and dial are not readily available from your local dealer, a source where these items may be purchased is listed on each pattern.

To obtain the granddaughter clock pattern number 485 for $1 (add 25 cents per pattern for airmail delivery) send currency, check or money order to:

GOURMET GUIDE

by Tedd Thomey

Dinner in a fine restaurant should be in many ways like a symphonic work. The flavors, timing of the courses and the surroundings should all be coordinated as beautifully as woodwinds, flutes, violins, cellos and horns under the baton of a great maestro.

One gets such an impression when dining at the Stuft Shirt, 2241 W. Coast Hwy., Newport Beach, about a 35-minute drive south of Long Beach. Perhaps it's only a coincidence that its owner, Norman Goss, was, in his youth, a gifted cellist who played in symphonies conducted by such masters as Leopold Stokowski and Alfred Wallenstein.

At any rate, Norman is a perfectionist who despises discord whether the subject is music or dining out. His Stuft Shirt is a stunningly designed restaurant which resembles a modern Venice palace sitting grandly at the water's edge. View windows enable his guests to watch sailboats gliding on Newport Bay.

The restaurant, elegantly furnished and soundproofed, is a place of quiet where the guests can appreciate the culinary splendors created by manager Warren Roberts and his well-trained staff. Each Sunday from noon to 3 p.m., they serve a gourmet brunch, including a glass of champagne, hot blueberry muffins, entree and choice of fresh fruit cup or French onion soup. Sunday dinner is served starting at 4:30 p.m.

The brunch entrees, $2.25 to $3.75, range from eggs Benedict on an English muffin to brochette of sugar-cured ham with fresh pineapple, Spanish omelette with hashbrown potatoes, roast beef hash with poached eggs, French pancakes stuffed with crabmeat, Welsh rarebit with bacon and steak with eggs. The children's brunch is $1.50.

The dinner entrees, $4.75 to $8.75, include filet of sole Marguery (simmered in a creamy white wine sauce with tiny

BILL COX
Views of Trees and Jets
Caricatures by Larry LaVone

Nothing is quite so restful and enjoyable as starting Sunday with breakfast or luncheon served with a beautiful view of blue sky, green trees and faraway rooftops.

The place for such pleasures is the Skyroom view restaurant high atop the Long Beach Holiday Inn, Lakewood Boulevard at Willow Street, quite near the San Diego Freeway. Many Long Beach area residents aren't aware that you don't have to be a room guest to enjoy a meal in its attractive green-and-gold-accented dining room. The restaurant is always open to the public for breakfast, luncheon and dinner as well as banquets.

Many Long Beach restaurants don't serve breakfast or luncheon on Sunday. The inn is happy to do so, to accommodate its traveling guests who often depart early to avoid heavy traffic congestion. Breakfast is served from 6 to 11 a.m. every day.

Bill Cox, the friendly smiling innkeeper and his assistant, Jim Penrecost, offer a wide variety of breakfast attractions. Included are the continental, 95 cents, chilled juice with Danish pastry and coffee, and the eye-opener, $1.05, including an English muffin topped with two poached eggs, accompanied by jelly and coffee.

Also emphasized are delicious fresh omelettes, $1.65. The choices range from the Denver omelette with chopped ham, bell peppers and onions, to the sausage omelette and bacon omelette. Each comes with hash-brown potatoes, toast, jelly and coffee. Also served are ham, bacon or sausage with two eggs, $1.65, and hot, fragrant waffles and pancakes.

For those who wish waker-uppers from the lounge, the menu offers such cocktail creations as Bloody Marys and Tequila Sunrises. Luncheon is served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., with entrees ranging from $1.85 to $2.25. Dinner is served on Sunday from noon to 10 p.m. and daily from 5 to 10. The dinners, $2.45 to $4.65, emphasize broiled rainbow trout, Town Crier pork chops, skillet-fried chicken, golden fried sea scallops, shrimp, and eight-ounce top sirloin steak and roast turkey with dressing. They are served with handsome green salad, potato or vegetable du jour and bread basket.

The views from the restaurant's windows are colorful and varied. Looking to the east, one can see jetliners coming in low on their final approach to Municipal Airport, passing over the busy freeway. When you look to the south, you are impressed with the vast number of handsome trees gracing Long Beach's streets and parks. □

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A painful, degenerative gum disease in women has been cured by sex hormone treatment.

This is disclosed by researchers at the Baylor University College of Dentistry in Dallas.

The Baylor studies, funded in part by a grant from the National Institute of Dental Research, were begun with the knowledge that the gingiva (gum tissue) is sensitive to certain hormones. Hormonal effects on gingiva are sometimes seen during puberty, pregnancy, menopause and in treatment with oral contraceptives.

The four patients initially studied had red, swollen, sore gums that bled so easily that they could not eat many foods nor clean their teeth properly. Dental surgery and topical application of certain drugs had given only temporary relief.

Investigators then discovered that these women had abnormal hormone cycles. So estrogen and progestins (hormones) were prescribed on a schedule and in amounts that corresponded to normal physiological cycles. The treatment corrected not only the hormonal cycles but the gum conditions as well. Within two months, all four women reported improvement. For one thing, swelling disappeared.

The report is in Dental Abstracts, a publication of the American Dental Association.

This country's drug culture may stem from more than youngsters merely watching their parents use medications with reckless abandon.

Dr. Joseph J. Angella of Hollywood, Fla., in a letter to the Journal of Pediatrics, thinks that indiscriminate prescribing of medications for the youngsters may play a role.

As he puts it: "... The attitudes of a five-year-old in using medication for every little discomfort might be reflected in needing drugs to escape later discomfort and anxiety."

He adds: "I feel it is up to us as practicing pediatricians to use medication wisely when necessary and to reflect and think of how often the simple Band-Aid cures a scrape with greater facility than ointments or sprays."

Even Alaska has its pollution problems, reports the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Sitka and Ketchikan have their pulp mills, Kodiak has its seafood wastes, Anchorage its municipal wastes and Fairbanks its ice fog.

Ice fog is a form of air pollution that forms when air temperatures remain below about minus 31 degrees Fahrenheit for several days. Created is an inversion that acts as a lid, to concentrate combustion products of heating systems, auto exhausts and respiration products of all life.

Since carbon dioxide and water make up the bulk of combustion products, they are trapped within the inversion, and below minus 31 degrees the water vapor becomes ice that forms around the nuclei of smoke particles. Toxic materials associated with burning coal, fuel oil and gasoline may reach alarming concentrations to pose a health hazard.

(An inversion is the trapping of a layer of cool air by a layer of warmer air above it so that the bottom layer cannot rise.)

Even non-smokers have a 10 per cent greater chance of developing lung cancer if they live in a badly polluted city, a government health official says. The contrast between a polluted area and one with clean air was given by Dr. John J. Hanlon, deputy administrator of the Environmental Health Service of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Methadone, the drug substitute sometimes used to curb the drug hunger of heroin addicts, can cause side effects for some patients, two doctors report.

Drs. William A. Bloom and Brian Butcher of Tulane University cited some of them at the Third National Conference on Methadone Treatment held in New York City.

They include:

Drowsiness. Tended to disappear in all patients as they achieved a stable dose level.

Decreased sexual interest. Reported in both men and women. In some patients, however, sexual interest increased.

Nausea. Eventually grew less in long-term maintenance patients.

Alcohol abuse. Older addicts and those on high methadone doses tended to drink more.

Difficulty in urination. Younger patients and those taking higher doses had more trouble with this problem.

Fertility. Women appeared to become more fertile on the drug. □

Q. Two questions about film actor Michael Caine—his real name, and is it true that he is indiscriminatingly fond of animals, minerals, vegetables, girls, trees, and fish?—R.E., Los Angeles, Calif.
A. Caine's real name is Maurice Micklewhite. While he has had affairs with many women, his interest in animals, minerals, vegetables and nuts is the interest of a naturalist and not a Casanova.

Q. How many Americans are now living in poverty?—Salvatore de Lucca, Clifton, N.J.
A. According to the Census Bureau, 25.5 million are living below the government-designated poverty level.

Q. The girl Dean Martin has been squiring all over London, Kathy Hawn—isn't she younger than his daughter-in-law, Olivia Hussey? -Patricia Jenkinson, Provo, Utah.
A. Dean Martin's latest girlfriend, Kathy Hawn, is 23. His daughter-in-law, Olivia Hussey, is 20.

Q. The chick Mick Jagger married - her name, nationality, and former boyfriends, please.— Mindy Thomas, Somerville, Mass.
A. Bianca Perez Morena de Macias, 26-year-old Nicaraguan, is the lucky bride. Previously she dated seriously Lord Litchfield and the record baron, Eddie Barclay.

MICK JAGGER AND WIFE BIANCA

Q. "He who hesitates is sometimes saved." Who said that?—Mildred Huneker, Bangor, Me.
A. The late humorist James Thurber.

McCLOSKEY

SIMON

Q. Who is providing Republican Congressman Paul McCloskey with the seed money to run against Richard Nixon?—Tanya Dodwell, San Mateo, Calif.
A. Art collector and corporation tycoon Norton Simon of Los Angeles provided the first $25,000 of seed money.

Q. What did Leonid Brezhnev, General Secretary of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, do in World War II? I understand he was a pants presser.—Helen Fairchild, Portsmouth, Va.
A. Brezhnev was a political officer with the rank of colonel in the 18th Soviet Army which defended the north Caucasian front against the German army. He was in charge of encouraging morale and loyalty, and on the recommendation of his sponsor; Nikita Khrushchev, was promoted to major general in 1945.

Q. I understand that South Vietnamese drug peddlers are turning our GI's into an army of heroin addicts. How many of our soldiers have become addicts in Vietnam, and why do we support a corrupt government which permits this?—May Wander, Philadelphia, Pa.
A. According to Alvin Shuster of The New York Times filing from Saigon on May 15, 1971: "The figure on heroin users most often heard here is about 10 to 15 percent of the lower ranking enlisted men. Since they make up about 245,000 of the 277,000 American soldiers here, this would represent as many as 37,000 men."

The general modern foreign policy of the U.S. is to support anti-Communist governments however undemocratic they may be. This policy applies to Greece, the Latin American nations, and South Vietnam as well as to other countries. This policy is based on the protection of our own interests and security vis-à-vis the Soviet Union. This, of course, is a simplistic and too brief exposition of a complex and ramified foreign policy.

Q. Which black show business personalities are or have been married to white women?—O.T., Lancaster, Pa.
A. Harry Belafonte, Sammy Davis Jr., Lou Rawls, Quincy Jones, James Earl Jones, Chubby Checker, Billy Daniels, several others.

J. Edgar Hoover and His Alumni

by Jack Anderson

J. Edgar Hoover and right-hand man Clyde Tolson outside Washington headquarters. Tolson, an old buddy of FBI chief, retired last year at mandatory age of 70, was rehired as outside specialist, thus bypassing a physical checkup.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

J. Edgar Hoover, now under pressure to step down as director of the FBI, has outlasted 10,000 of his former agents. Most of them moved on to successful careers in professions ranging from law to ranching. Yet they seem to share one common trait: an almost umbilical attachment to the bureau and the 76-year-old man who has been its chief for 47 years.

Hoover's agents may grumble about the director's dictatorial powers, but they also benefit from basking in his image. The greenest agent in the field is accepted by his community as fearless and incorruptible.

This reputation has accompanied the 10,000 agents who have quit the FBI. In their new pursuits, they continue to benefit from the Hoover mystique. But they also find it difficult to shake free from the FBI discipline and conformity.

Rare is the agent who is willing to risk Hoover's wrath either inside or outside the bureau. Inside, it can mean a one-way ticket to some remote FBI outpost; outside, Hoover can revoke the FBI seal of approval, a vital credential for an agent seeking new employment.

This was discovered by special agent John Shaw, who made the mistake of criticizing Hoover in a private letter to a college professor. A discarded copy was fished out of the wastebasket by office colleagues who forwarded it to Washington.

Resignation

Shaw was immediately transferred to Butte, Mont., long considered the bureau graveyard. Because his wife was gravely ill, Shaw refused the transfer and resigned. Hoover accepted the resignation "with prejudice" although Shaw's record had been spotless until the controversial letter. Shaw, now a widower, has been unable to find other work in law enforcement.

Far more typical was the experience of Charles M. Noone, a prosperous Washington lawyer and a strong Hoover admirer. "There are business advantages to being an ex-FBI man," he told PARADE. "From my work in the FBI, I know someone in just about every government agency. And if I need the services of a lawyer in another city, I can usually find one who used to be in the FBI."

Although Noone has been out of the bureau for 20 years, he says many of his FBI habits remain. "In the bureau, we used to have to call into the office every two hours to let them know where we were and to find out if there were any new developments. Now I don't have to do that anymore, but I find myself calling home instead. And I ask the younger associates in our law office to call in just so we can keep in touch when they're out on a case."

Hoover has ways to retain the loyalty of agents who have passed beyond his discipline. Rep. Don Edwards (D., Calif.), an ex-agent who has criticized Hoover, found this out several years ago when his opponent made charges against him which could only have come from his confidential FBI employment file.

Also, the intensive indoctrination given agents and the extraordinary camaraderie that develops among them promotes a uniformity of viewpoint. Under Hoover, a man learns to be a strong anti-Communist and is likely to retain such views when he leaves the bureau.

As Edwards puts it: "There's a process one goes through in the bureau that weds you to the Hoover view—the traitors-in-our-midst attitude."

Hoover men

The total effect of all this is to make ex-agents Hoover men for life. Rep. Edwards, for instance, finds himself the lone critic of Hoover among 13 Congressmen who are former FBI men. The rest take every opportunity to defend or praise the director.

Most are members of a group called the Society of Former Special Agents of the FBI, which started as a social organization but has evolved into a sort of alumni cheering section for the "Old Man." The society's membership list is studded with prominent names. A few of them: Gov. William Cahill of New Jersey; Jack Tuthill, tournament director of the Professional Golfers Association; William Flynn, athletic director at Boston College, and Cartha "Deke" DeLoach, a vice president of Pepsi-Cola.

There are also a few, like the late Sen. Tom Dodd, who have become an embarrassment to the FBI. Under Hoover's reign, agents have been fired for drunkenness, for insubordination, even a few for homosexuality. Yet not a single FBI man has tried to fix a case, defraud the taxpayers or sell out his country.

Can be frustrating

But at its upper levels, the FBI's suffocating discipline, the obeisance to the director can make it a frustrating place to work.

An excellent example is Quinn Tamm, once the bureau's No. 2 man, now president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Although Tamm will not publicly criticize Hoover, it is no secret that he left the bureau because he found Hoover impossible to work for.

An indication of how difficult Hoover can be is the story Tamm's friends tell of his last days with the FBI. After making a speech in Milwaukee the night before a fishing vacation, Tamm drove all night to a lake deep in the wilderness. Far out on the water, as he was finally prepared to cast his line and relax, a motorboat came roaring out of nowhere with a man standing in the stern waving an urgent message.

Called back

Tamm's speech, which had been cleared with Hoover and distributed to the press, had been misquoted, and he was ordered back to Washington to explain. He resigned soon afterward.

Although few ex-agents publicly criticize Hoover, there are a number besides Tamm who departed the bureau's upper echelons quietly in dismay at Hoover's egocentric behavior and his determination to hang on to the top job forever.

Quinn Tamm, former No. 2 man, found Hoover impossible to work for, quit.

Rep. Don Edwards (D.,Calif.): alone of 13 ex-G-men in Congress, he's critical.

These men include Edward P. Morgan, the noted Washington trial lawyer, and Louis Nichols, Hoover's ex-assistant who left to become a vice president of Schenley Industries.

Deke DeLoach, an exceptionally able man who was a favorite of President Johnson, says he left the bureau for purely financial reasons. "FBI pay and retirement benefits are good, but not good enough to put seven children through college, especially these days," DeLoach says.

Yet, despite the controversy that may have surrounded some departures of top FBI men, most ex-agents have made good on the outside.

Take Rev. Oliver Collier, for example. He looks on the FBI as a useful practical education.

'My seminary'

"The bureau was my seminary," says the Bethesda, Md., minister. "It was a period of self-development because when I was a youngster I was sheltered, my knowledge was limited, and so was my ability to meet people. Through my FBI experience I was forced to meet many different kinds of people and learn how the other half lives.

"But ever since I can remember I felt God was calling me, and I had entered the FBI mostly for economic reasons. While in the bureau I began to work in the churches where I lived. After a time my two careers began to conflict. I wanted to preach sometimes when the FBI needed me in the field. Finally I resigned and went into the ministry full time.

"There were no hard feelings. My FBI colleagues even gave me an inscribed Bible when I left, and I still have—and use—it today."

And just as far removed from tracking down kidnappers and bank robbers has been the career of Richard Nilsen, M.D., a general practitioner in Las Vegas, Nev., who attended medical school after he'd been out of the FBI for several years and had held several other jobs in private industry. As he says, "I just never would have made it through medical school starting as late as I did, with a family and all, without the self-discipline I learned in the FBI."

Nilsen adds that sometimes it helps to be an ex-detective in sleuthing out patients' symptoms and diseases. "My extensive interviewing experience in the FBI helps me most in taking health histories from patients for purposes of making diagnoses," he says. "From the FBI I learned how to pay attention and really listen to people."

Glory and excitement

But in spite of all the diverse opportunities open to former FBI men, there seem to be many who just cannot tear themselves away from the glory, excitement, and activity of FBI work. Director Hoover himself, of course, is the prime example, but according to Thomas E. Bishop, assistant director of the FBI, his office frequently receives requests from ex-agents who want to get back on active duty. Says Bishop: "They get outside and learn pretty quick that this job is a lot more exciting than selling vacuum cleaners for the rest of your life."

Clyde Tolson, Hoover's 70-year-old right-hand man, is one of the few ex-agents to beat the system and stay on at the FBI even after he had reached the mandatory retirement age.

When Tolson became 70 last year, he retired from FBI service so that the 76-year-old Hoover (who has a special Presidential waiver allowing him to stay on the job) could rehire him as an indispensable outside specialist. Now Tolson continues at his old job as the FBI's No. 2 man, and also as Hoover's closest personal friend and daily luncheon companion. Since, officially, Tolson was retired, he did not have to pass the rigorous physical checkup required of other active FBI men.

As assistant director Bishop, who himself has been with the bureau for 30 years, says: "The overall FBI turnover rate among special agents is maybe .3 percent a month. And for every one who retires we have 15 or 20 applicants who would like to take his place."

And when Hoover finally leaves the bureau, there will be no dearth of well-trained and eligible successors. Perhaps some day an agent will retire from his field service only to step up to the director's chair.

It may not be quite as remunerative as a corporation vice presidency, or as placid as real retirement, but J. Edgar Hoover, who took office in 1924, has proven one thing about it: it sure is steady work.

"Deke" DeLoach, a vice president of Pepsi-Cola, with his wife and two of their seven children. An exceptionally able man, he says he left the bureau for financial reasons.

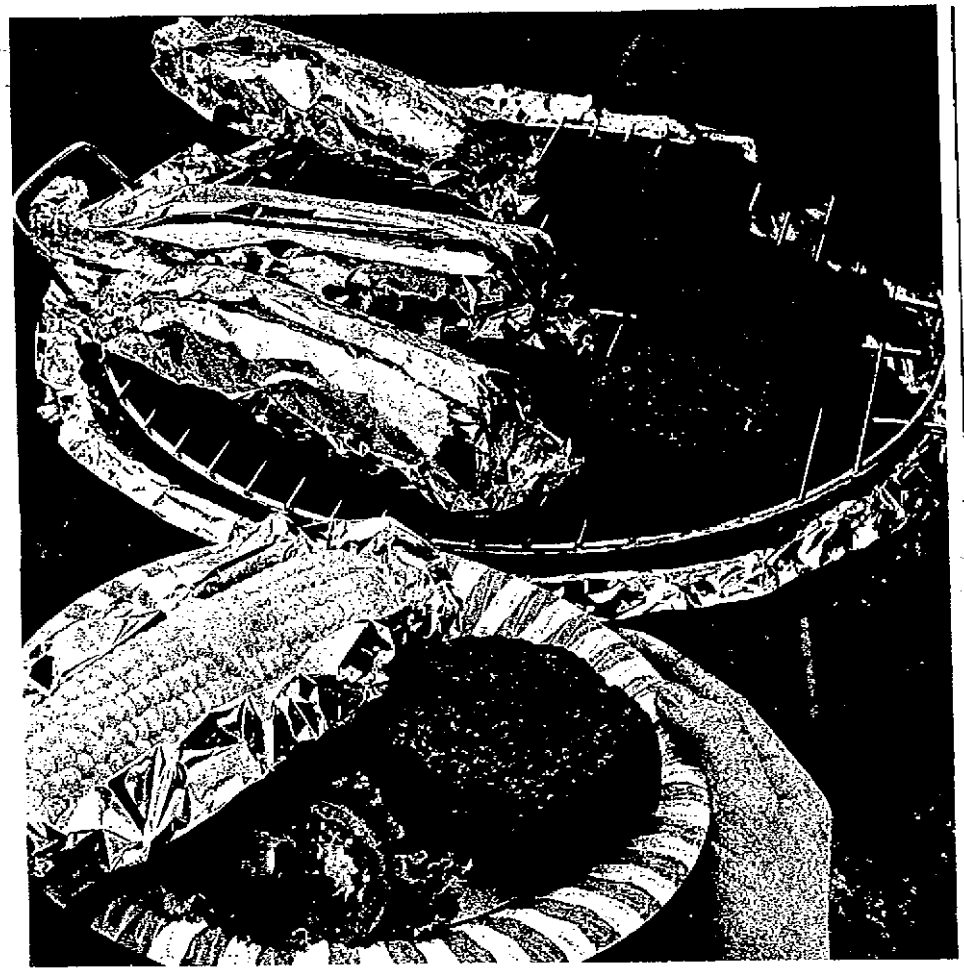

Lawyer Charles Noone says there are business advantages being ex-FBI man.

John Shaw's criticism of Hoover led to a quick transfer and his resignation.

Burgers brushed with Brer Rabbit Molasses? Corn-on-the-cob cooked in Reynolds Wrap?

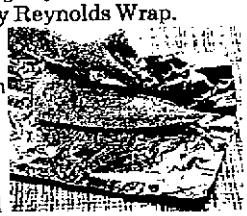

Two crazy ideas that work like crazy.

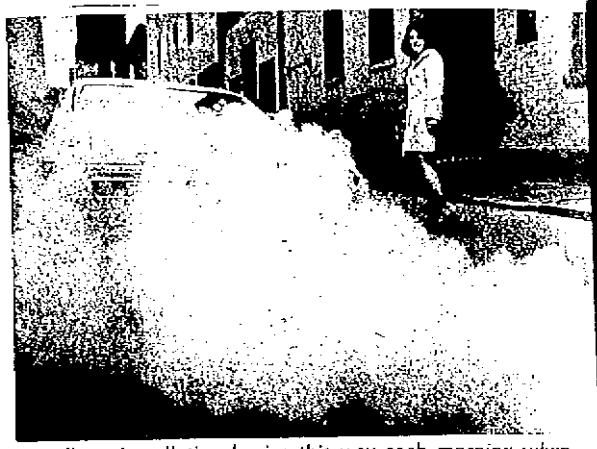

The molasses seals in all the burgers' natural juices. Here's all you do: before broiling, brush the burgers with Brer Rabbit® Molasses. Put 'em on the grill and in seconds the molasses sweetness is seared away, leaving a crisp charcoal crust that seals in the juices. And try Brer Rabbit Molasses on your steaks, chicken, spareribs too. Terrific! Brer Rabbit—Green label or Gold label—they both work like crazy!

The foil seals in all the corn's fresh-picked flavor. Here's all you do: Remove outer layers of husks and silk. Dip corn in cold water. Wrap tightly with double-fold in Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. Cook about 30 minutes. Turn occasionally. When done, remove remaining husk. Butter corn and serve on foil. And line your grill with Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. It spreads the heat evenly. Needless air pollution begins this way each morning when commuters start their engines with a smoke cloud and a roar.

How Drivers Can Cut Air Pollution

DETROIT, MICH.

The whole country is worried about the gassy "smoke" cars pour into our dirty air. The U.S. Government is out to stop it. The American Automobile Association is teaching several million drivers how to avoid it—by "clean-tuning" their engines, a job easily done in any good garage.

And because most of the filth comes from "sick" engines, U.S. Senator Abe Ribicoff of Connecticut has just introduced a bill requiring your engine to be checked—once a year.

But an astonishing fact is: in spite of all this effort to clean our air, nobody has yet pointed out that how you drive can make pollution—lots of it.

Take the fellow who starts in the morning with a great roaring blastoff. Lots of us do this. It blows out clouds of pollution. (See photo.)

And many drivers think they have to start their engines this way. The fact is—they don't. It's all wrong. If you know what to do, you can start the same fellow's car with no smoke cloud (or roar).

Experts call this "clean-foot" driving. Young Prof. David E. Cole of the University of Michigan, which is worried about air pollution, says clean-foot driving is really quite easy to learn.

"It's like driving with an egg under your foot," he says. "You just don't hit the pedal as hard as usual, or as often."

And, besides that, you never "idle"—except when absolutely necessary.

'Clean-foot' driving

Here are some easily-learned "clean-foot" driving rules developed by PARADE with the help of Prof. Cole and four other anti-air-pollution experts: General Motors' Dr. Fred Bowditch, Ford's Don Jensen (former boss of California's famous air pollution board), Chrysler's Charles Heinen and American Motors' Carl E. Burke:

Never drive a "smoker." The real danger to our air, scientists say, is not the long trail of blue smoke you see. That's only oil. But it's the invisible fumes that may come with it that cause the trouble. And smoke means a sick engine.

Never be a "gas-pumper." The needless pollution that millions of us make actually begins right at home. We jump in the car and pump the gas throttle—sometimes several times. Then we start. Result: raw gas hydrocarbons all over the neighborhood. When the sun hits it—smog!

To be a "clean-foot" driver, says Cole, depress the throttle only once. This "sets the choke." Next, let the throttle come up halfway or all the way, depending on your car (see your manual). Now turn the key. A "clean-tuned" engine will start instantly.

Skip the warmup (and never make a "vrooom-start"). Thanks to good new oils no hard warmup is necessary with today's cars. Only exception: below-freezing weather. But even then no "driveway warmup" should ever last more than 5 to 20 seconds!

Use an easy takeoff. Cold engines pollute, especially when pushed fast. So when you leave home for work, for school or for shopping, keep a light touch on the gas. This is the time you should begin to pretend there's a big egg between your foot and the pedal! Otherwise you may actually leave a trail of fumes five miles long before your engine warms.

Don't "blast off" to overtake another car (or when entering a superhighway). Kicking the throttle all the way down does all sorts of things to your engine (unless it's perfectly "clean-tuned"). Instantly, the tailpipe spits fumes.

Try to time your driving when entering a superhighway so you get into the No. 1 (slow) lane fast and safely. And look for a wide gap in traffic. This helps you avoid the familiar, desperate, last-minute blastoff.

Keep "level speed." The new (since 1967) engines can run fantastically clean if (1) well maintained and (2) run at a good, even speed. Even older engines can be quite clean if speed is steady. The less you press the throttle the less you'll foul up America's air.

Use a "medium" speed on superhighways. Polluter-cars are often those traveling under 40 and over 60. You'll help clean the air if you'll run a good steady 55-58 when you can.

At Ford test

Swear off sudden "slowdowns." Most of us, when ready to exit from a superhighway, hold 60 mph until the last possible moment. Then we lift our foot and apply the brakes for the exit curve.

The results, if you could only see them, can be really fantastic pollution. I did see them in a big Ford test area where a driver was checking engines.

Running at 55 mph he made a gradual slowdown. Nothing much happened. His engine spat out a little extra pollution, but it wasn't bad.

Then he did it the way you and I often do. At superhighway speed he suddenly took his foot off the gas. The pollution caused by that sudden slowdown was bad.

Hit 'on the green'

Avoid those pollution traffic fights! I was astonished to learn that traffic lights (and stop signs) may be among our worst sources of pollution.

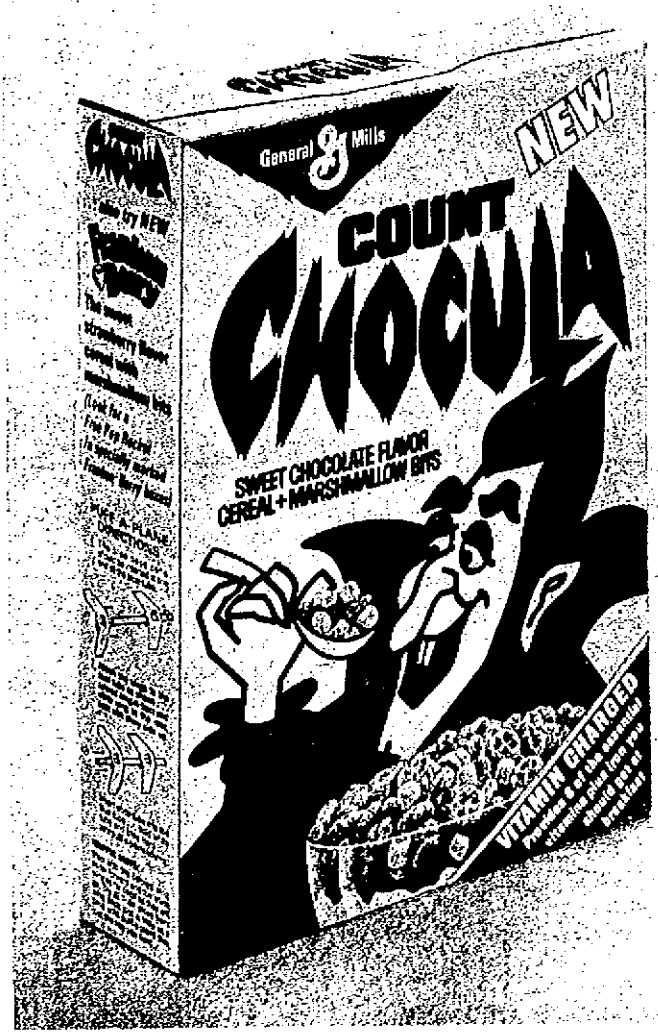

In fact, PARADE'S investigation indicates that an incredible coast-to-coast cloud of pollution rises over America every morning simply because millions of cars get blocked in rush-hour traffic. If 10,000,000 cars have to make three traffic light stops that's equal to 30,000,000 stops. And every stop creates pollution!

PARADE feels that this traffic-light pollution, hitherto unrecognized, is something that now needs the serious attention of our best pollution experts and traffic engineers.

Meanwhile, for clean driving, avoid traffic-light stops all you can! Time your driving to hit lights "on the green." And seek better routes that let you keep your car moving. In cities with beltways, you'll make far less pollution if you go around the stop-light traffic than through it—even if you go farther.

And urge your officials to put an end to three other pollution causes: (1) double-parked cars, (2) road repairs during rush hours, and (3) a host of stop signs that could be replaced by yield signs. To cut down pollution, rush-hour traffic should always move steadily!

'I Feel Human Again'

Taking Patients Out to a Show

by Theodore Irwin

Ready for the show: Michael Spencer, arranger of free entertainment for hospital patients, checks the seating lists.

NEW YORK, N.Y.

On a recent evening several buses drew up before the Biltmore Theater and deposited scores of mental patients to see Hair, the Broadway hit rock musical. Behind the buses came station wagons bringing alcoholics and drug addicts. In all, 248 patients were admitted free.

During the performance few, if any, of the regular ticket buyers realized that the audience had a different quality that night. At final curtain when the cast invited those who wished to join them on stage, 20 or so psychiatric patients and alcoholics ran joyfully up to take part in the closing dance.

On one of the buses, returning to a suburban hospital, a schizophrenic young man remarked, "I feel free, like a human again." His seatmate, recalling the antics of the long-haired actors, laughed and said, "And they call us crazy!" On another bus a 28-year-old woman drug addict said, "Tonight I feel as though I might make it."

Dedicated people

The theater outing was arranged by a dedicated non-profit group, Hospital Audiences, Inc. (HAI). In the last two years, it has brought more than 60,000 patients from 250 hospitals and agencies to plays, concerts, ballets, circuses and sports events. Through HAI, programs also have been presented at institutions to 120,000 patients. The objective is to give these people—most of them feeling lost and neglected—a chance to come out of the shadows, to help them gradually return to the "real world."

Founder of HAI is 33-year-old Michael Jon Spencer, a bantam, bearded musician who gave up a career as a concert pianist for his project. The idea struck him one day as he prepared for a recital by performing at a mental institution.

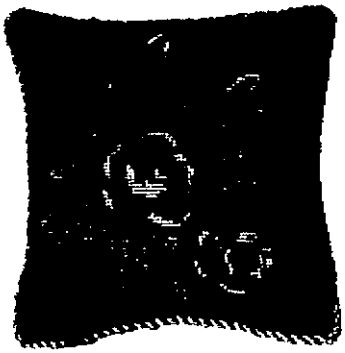

Contagious cheer

"As I played," he recalls, "I sensed the patients were breathing with me. When I paused, they paused. When I was happy, they became happy. I could see, hear and feel their reactions. What more can a pianist ask? I realized that through music I was able to arouse a remarkable response."

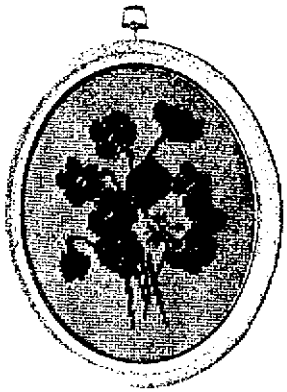

Performing at other hospitals, Spencer was imbued with a missionary zeal

Moments of diversion: Grateful psychiatric patients in a New York hospital auditorium enjoy entertainment by this musical group. Doctors praise shows as therapy.

as he recruited other musicians and entertainers, then evolved his Hospital Audiences concept. Funds have come from foundations, banks and corporations; recently, from government agencies. Now, often working a 16-hour day and seven-day week, Spencer runs HAI from a small, crowded street-floor apartment with a five-member staff and some 150 volunteers who assist with patient groups at theaters.

Acquiring free tickets—as many as 2000 a week—calls for a constant barrage on producers. But only once was a producer squeamish. "Should I notify the police in case of trouble?" he asked. "Won't these patients distract our regular patrons?"

Spencer reassured him that a serious disturbing incident had never occurred, only such minor irritations as too much talk or laughter.

At Bellevue Hospital one evening last April, patients gathered in a large dining room for a concert by a Latin American band. Jamming the room were about 300 men, women and children—mental cases, lung cancer and postoperative patients, drug addicts and alcoholics, some in wheelchairs or on rolled-in beds.

Tambourines and bells were handed out. To the lively music, patients swayed and clapped hands. Even alcoholics and "narcos" joined in singing familiar songs. Children trotted up front to dance. Patients in wheelchairs and beds nodded with the rhythm. At one point, a drug addict took over the drums and played a number to loud applause. The place was "jumping."

"It's a great party," said a long-term emphysema patient. "I haven't had so much fun in years." A gaunt, bedridden woman told her nurse, "This is just what I needed. I was so uptight. I'll sleep tonight."

A doctor watching from the sidelines commented: "Music talks to all of them. Look at the alcoholics, so hard to motivate yet they respond instinctively. It's a very warm involvement in a lonely city. For a while they are part of it."

Therapy

Whenever HAI has provided the entertainment, the impact is discernible. From the medical view, doctors agree on its therapeutic value. The Hospital Audiences endeavor has been endorsed by Dr. Robert S. Garber, president of the American Psychiatric Association, as "an outstanding example of citizen support in furtherance of the objectives of community psychiatry."

Explaining the effect on mental patients, Dr. Edward Masuz, psychiatrist at Rockland State Hospital in Orangeburg, N.Y., observes:

"These people are isolated, excluded from society and instilled with the idea they've been committed to an institution. The Hospital Audiences type of activity shows the patient the community is still interested in him. On a trip to the city, he is impressed with the fact that those 'outside' can't tell the difference between patients and attendants. All this boosts his self-esteem, building up confidence and self-motivation—to want to go out into the community again."

Recreation therapists also point out that by carefully grooming for a trip, patients prepare themselves to mingle with "normal" people. Vague fears of the world beyond the gates tend to be overcome. Often it's a first step toward eventual release.

"Such activities," adds Dr. Lawrence C. Kolb, director of the New York State Psychiatric Institute, "make it possible for patients to test themselves with responsibilities they must accept in leaving the hospital."

The retarded are sent to plays that may be meaningful to them and apt to elicit rare expressions of emotion. Particularly at comedies, rodeos and circuses, they have shown surprising exuberance. Their attention span increases, an important goal in their therapy. The elderly, lured away from radios and TV sets in hospital wards, may gain incentive to return to their families or live in a foster home.

The feedback from all kinds of patients is revealing. At one off-Broadway play, a group of mental patients, ordinarily restive, seemed glued to their seats. Later, a hitherto listless 19-year-old girl said to her psychiatrist:

"I feel awake now. That play jolted me out of my confusion and loneliness. I had stopped living. Now I again want to be part of what's going on."

A number of drug addicts, after seeing four or five plays, have become "hooked" on the theater. "I learned," says one young man, "that you don't have to be high to enjoy something worthwhile. What's more, being trusted outside our treatment center, I felt I was given the respect I must have to succeed, to stay off drugs."

At Kings Park State Hospital on Long Island last November, a brass quintet performed a program of majestic medieval church music. In the audience was a middle-aged man diagnosed as catatonic, his condition marked by muscular rigidity and phases of stupor. As the music reverberated, he suddenly leaped to his feet. "Damn it," he yelled, "I don't like this music!" and started to rush out. It was the first time in years he had uttered so many words or moved so vigorously. "The fact that he responded," his psychiatrist reported, "indicated a definite improvement."

Now and then, on a visit to Manhattan, a patient "elopes" to freedom, usually to see his neighborhood or family. Doctors, not upset, tend to regard such incidents as encouraging. Instead of clinging to the hospital for shelter, the "eloper" is self-assertive enough to go off on his own. Generally he returns voluntarily.

Elsewhere in the nation, HAI has stimulated widespread interest. Inquiries have poured in from some 100 cities. Although many communities, especially those with a Veterans Administration hospital, may have a small group set up to entertain patients from time to time—usually around Christmas—HAI is the only organization of its kind with a broad scope and ongoing program.

Spreading

Now, Michael Spencer, indefatigable, is spreading his wings. Recently, branches of HAI sprouted in six upstate New York cities — Buffalo, Syracuse, Rochester, Utica, Albany and Poughkeepsie. Aided by a special government grant, Spencer will be helping communities in other states to organize similar projects.

Spencer's dedication to the mission he has chosen as a life work was recently bolstered by a letter from Dr. Roy W. Menninger, president of the world-famed Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kans.

"Your program," wrote Dr. Menninger, "in helping patients to recover their sense of touch with the world, is certainly an imaginative and exciting effort in behalf of the forgotten and forsaken. It is worthy of the support of all of us."

Bring the bloom of beauty to your complexion

Every day your complexion can grow a little lovelier, lavishly cared for with a remarkable blend of tropical moist oils which has the skin-cherishing ability to help capture and maintain the precious bloom of true complexion beauty.

The fine, fair promise of skin beauty is initially determined beneath the surface of normal skin where the tiny oil and moisture reservoirs establish a delicate balance by releasing just the right natural nourishment to keep the complexion soft, supple and gloriously alive.

Cosmetic researchers have constantly borne in mind this basic understanding of the human skin in their efforts to find ways and means to improve and cherish its most precious qualities. With Oil of Olay, a unique blend of tropical moist oils, has come the realization that at last it is possible to assist nature by complementing the flow of the skin's natural oil and moisture and help to bring long-term youth and beauty to the complexion of women living in all the differing climates of the globe.

When the beautifying moist oil is lavished on your skin nightly before you sleep, and worn every day beneath your make-up, your complexion will begin to benefit immediately. Being remarkably compatible with the natural fluids of the skin, the moist Oil of Olay readily merges with nature's existing reserves and helps maintain the vital measures of moisture responsible for the dew-fresh appearance of a lovely complexion. Youthful freshness and radiance can become wonderfully constant on the skin.

In America this unique moist oil is available from druggists as Oil of Olay, a remarkable blend of precious elements that can bring your skin a soft, smooth bloom of beauty.

Beauty Skin-Care Specialists Recommend

To take advantage of the beautifying properties of this moist oil and to give your complexion smoothness, clearness and youthful loveliness, always smooth on a film of Oil of Olay over the face and neck before applying make-up. Besides cherishing and beautifying, the Olay oil will assure that your make-up has a perfect lasting glow.

* * *

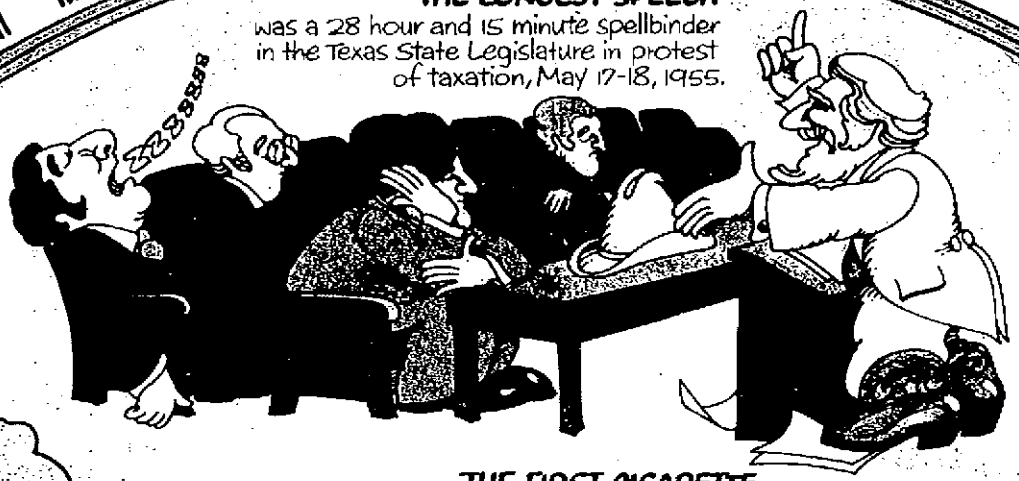

Areas where age-signs first begin to show need extra rich care at night. Massage Oil of Olay over your throat and neck and tap it lightly into the delicate tissues around your eyes to help smooth and beautify the skin.

* * *

To keep your lips soft and pretty, give them a generous quota of the beautifying moist oil when you do your face. This light film of Oil of Olay will also act as a foundation for the smooth and lasting application of your lipstick.

My Favorite Jokes

by Jackie Mason

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jackie Mason pulls out the contradictions in life and comes up with what you'd expect—humor. In his non-stop staccato style, he talks about our society, about crime, politics, the police, doctors.

Mason was born in Sheboygan, Wis., grew up in New York, and attended City College and Yeshiva University. He became a rabbi but switched to show business where he has had a successful career in night spots and on television.

Nowadays Mason is spending less time in comedy, more on business. He has formed his own production company, and says: "I'm tired of just being a comedian. The first years I played the Copa was the biggest accomplishment in the world to me. But after going back five times I don't feel successful anymore . . . So I decided to find new creative talents: producing movies, seeing them grow from an idea." But Mason still makes jokes. "The kind that appeal to me most," he says, "are the jokes that say something about society."

Herewith some of Jackie Mason's swipes at the world we live in:

I was driving and a cop comes over and says, "Where's the fire?" I said, "I don't know, I didn't get there yet." He said, "Do you know you're doing 60 miles an hour?" "That's ridiculous," I said. "First of all, I'm not even on the road an hour."

I know a guy who phoned the police station: "I just spotted a murderer." The cop said: "Follow him, if he double-parks, call me!"

Politics is the only area where absolutely no qualifications are needed for the job. A doctor graduates medical school, even a football player has to go to college. Would you say making a mistake on the football field is more important than making a mistake declaring war? In this country a guy who has the right to declare war could be a lunatic—because he doesn't have to pass any test to be a Congressman—which explains why we have such good football players in this country, and such lousy Congressmen.

This country's losing money every year—the richest country in the world. Someone's fooling around with the books. The reason is the Congress and the Senate—they get paid whether we lose money or not. So they don't care. I say, put 'em on commission, that's the only way.

About Vietnam. We say if we don't stop them there, they'll come here. First of all, you know what a round trip costs from Indochina? And where are they going to land? They can get to the airport, but everyone knows it takes three weeks to land. You think nobody will notice that they're coming by then? Won't we have an army mobilized by the time they land? And when they land where are they going? To Central Park in New York? We got guerrilla fighters there that'll wipe 'em out in a second!

I went to a doctor for a kidney condition. Of course, you never know how a doctor will deal with kidneys. You don't have to get 100 percent in every subject to be a doctor. You can get 65 in one subject and 90 in another and you're a doctor because it averages out OK. He might have gotten 35 in kidneys, 90 in liver. That's why when I go to a doctor I don't want to see his degree, I want to see his report card.

I went to a doctor for a checkup. Think he's going to tell you there's nothing wrong? He's got to make a living.

He said: "Stick out your hand."

I stuck it out.

"How long you got that?"

"Got what?" I asked.

"Can't you see it?"

"See what?"

"Whatever you got."

"I don't know what I have."

"Why did you wait so long to come here?"

"I didn't know there was anything wrong with me."

"Can't you see it?"

"No," I insisted.

"I see you have an eye problem, too. And since when have you noticed that you don't notice there's anything wrong with you?"

"I've never noticed."

"In other words it's been going on all your life, and you neglected it all this time—it's a terrible condition, can't you see it?"

"I told you before, I can't see it."

"Oh, you mean it's not improving? Well then, did your father have it?"

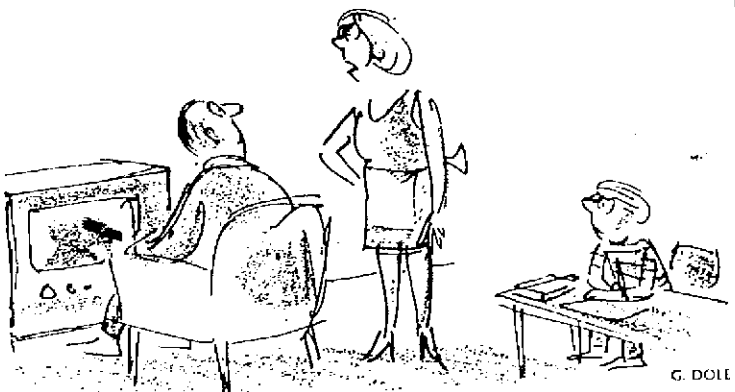

"Look, I don't know if my father had it."

"Oh," he said. "You got a memory problem, too."

It's to Laugh

"How nice!" "How much?"

"He can't get his homework done—you're blocking his view of the TV."

Veal Julienne

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

You can stretch a pound and a half of veal to serve six in a most delicious way by using this recipe for Veal Julienne. It can be made ahead of time, except for adding the sour cream, and reheated gently at serving time. The contrasts in texture and the delicate intermingling of flavors will appeal to everyone.

Begin the meal with chilled tomato juice. Serve parsley rice and green lima beans with the veal. Add a crisp salad if you wish. End with fresh strawberries.

VEAL JULIENNE

- 1½ pounds veal steak cut in julienne strips
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- ½ cup water
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1 medium green pepper, diced
- 1 cup thinly sliced onions
- 1 can (6 oz.) broiled sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 can (15 oz.) special tomato sauce
- ½ cup canned, halved or chopped water chestnuts
- Few drops hot pepper sauce
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Salt and pepper to taste
- ½ cup dry sherry
- 1 cup dairy sour cream

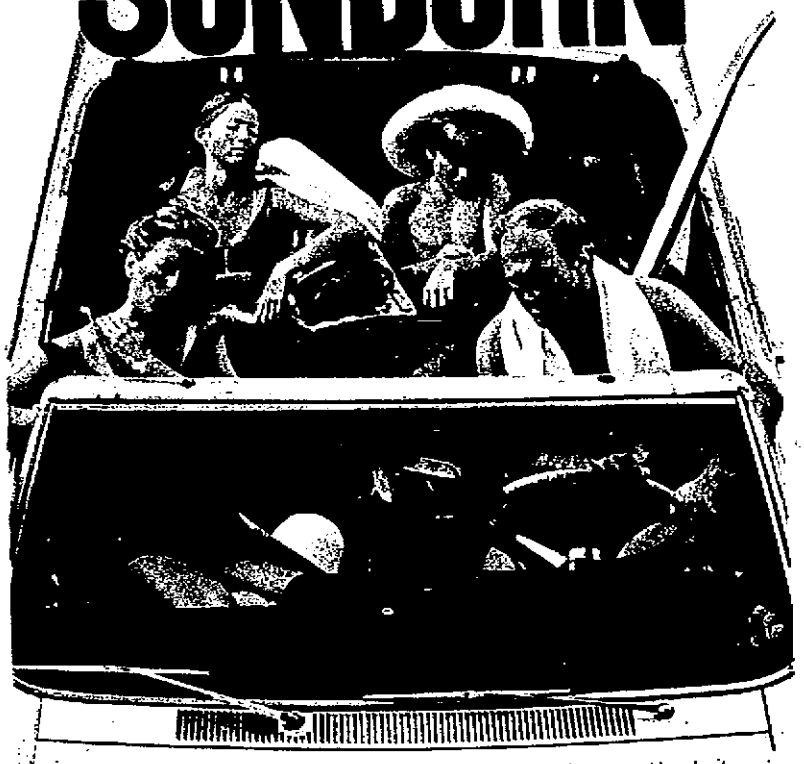

Brown veal strips slowly in 2 tablespoons butter, stirring often to prevent burning. Add water and basil; simmer 20 minutes. Meanwhile, cook green pepper and onions in remaining 2 tablespoons butter until soft but not brown; add to veal with mushrooms, tomato sauce and water chestnuts. Mix well. Simmer 15 minutes longer. Stir in hot pepper sauce, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper and sherry. Simmer 5 minutes. Lower heat; stir in sour cream slowly. Makes 6 servings.

Beth Merriman, whose "Fondue Cookbook" proved so popular with our readers, has written a sequel called "The Fondue Party Cookbook." Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Coed Scouting

The Boy Scouts of America have come up with a new attraction to fill their declining ranks: girls.

In an effort to eliminate the "little-kid image" of scouting, new troops called "explorers" are welcoming girls at the high school level. The explorer groups, which have grown by 9 percent since going coed, are formed around common interests such as horseback riding, carpentry, medicine, engineering, oceanography.

"We have proved conclusively that young women do have concerns and interests similar to young men," declares Scout spokesman Ron Phillippo. "And we found that the guys wanted contact with girls in other than dating situations."

As one member of a mixed explorer group puts it, "I'd say it's definitely more interesting with girls. There's less fighting, for one thing. Maybe the guys are trying to be friendlier with the girls around."

Another group reports that the girls have added spice to scouting life—specifically, by cooking. "There's a kind of conflict now and then at mealtime on account of Women's Lib," admits one member, "but the girls do the cooking because they're better at it."

The coed revolution may even filter down to the younger ranks of Scouts. One Cub Scout from Port Washington, N.Y., announced that he was bored with his all-boy troop, would like the Cubs to go coed too.

Youth Air Fare

The youth air fare, which created a whole generation of young jet-setters, is in danger.

The U.S. Department of Transportation recently recommended that the ailing airline industry drop reduced air fares for young people. Instead, the department argues, the airlines should offer some financial incentive to air travelers during off-hours, thereby redistributing traffic and cutting costs.

On the international front, however, young people may be in for a break. Pan Am has proposed a flat $99 one-way fare between New York and London for those aged 17-22. The proposal will come up for discussion in Miami next fall by the international carriers whose expensive new 747 jumbo jets are flying below capacity because of increased competition from the cut-rate charter airlines.

Short on Brass

Britain has a problem: not enough brass to command its shrinking army.

Enrollment at Sandhurst, the Royal Military Academy which turns out Britain's officers and gentlemen, is down from 1000 a few years ago to 586 today.

Old army hands attribute the shortage of new officer candidates to Britain's loss of empire and concomitant loss of exciting billets. "Riot duty in Northern Ireland isn't nearly so appealing as prancing on horseback through the Khyber Pass," declares one veteran of the India wars.

Others point to the growing anti-war feeling among Britain's young. The public schools (British term for prep schools), which once provided the bulk of Sandhurst applications, are particularly anti-militarist in sentiment.

"My son is at Wellington," reports a career officer. "I attended an entertainment night recently when each of the houses put on skits. Three of them were anti-war."

YOUTH IS HAULED AWAY AT RECENT PEACE DEMONSTRATION IN WASHINGTON.

Arrested Careers

If you have ever been arrested during a campus demonstration or a peace march, you may have difficulty getting a job.

A few years ago, most major companies and business firms did not even ask if their applicants had police records, simply assuming the contrary.

Now, however, there is evidence that a college record of arrest may seriously jeopardize your career.

A former campus activist recently charged that the New York City Bar Association would not admit him because of his past political activities. In a similar case in California, a law school grad was temporarily barred from practice for failing the state bar's "character test."

Most companies readily admit that a police record is a handicap to employment. Others say they will overlook an applicant's arrest during a civil rights march, but hesitate at a string of such arrests.

A major California bank, Wells Fargo, is relatively unconcerned about the problem. "Real campus activists aren't going to be applying for jobs at banks," they say.

LOVES OF A GORILLA When the gorillas at the Frankfurt Zoo became lethargic and apathetic, a television was installed in their cage as an antidote to boredom.

The experiment proved that the old flick King Kong wasn't just a flight of Hollywood fancy: gorillas do love pretty girls.

Keepers at the Frankfurt Zoo report that the television gave the gorillas a new lease on life. Gorilla TV favorites, in order of preference: love scenes, weight lifting, and auto racing.

BILL-PADDING How many hotels, motels, and inns in this country pad their customers' bills?

How many charge guests for incoming calls and messages even though no such messages are received?

Apparently quite a few. Several weeks ago, Louis J. Lefkowitz, Attorney General of New York State, filed a civil suit against the hotel Waldorf-Astoria, which is operated by the Hilton Hotel Corporation. The Waldorf rents a single room from $30 to $38 per night, a double from $40 to $48.

Lefkowitz charged that the hotel added a 2 percent charge to the hotel bill without telling the customer in advance that this was being done.

Between December, 1969, and May, 1970, Lefkowitz charged the Waldorf-Astoria with padding bills to the tune of $113,202 with unitemized charges. He asked for the return of alleged overcharges and triple damages of $339,608 to the 64,336 guests who were overcharged.

Next time you book a hotel room, it might be a good idea to ask if the hotel will charge you for messages and incoming phone calls.

The Hilton and Loews hotels have now stopped the practice of hidden charges, but reportedly it is still going on elsewhere.

FRANCE: 1940-45, THE TRUTH

Every nation likes to portray its people as patriotically heroic. France, for example, nourishes the myth that most of its men and women fought stubbornly and gallantly against the German occupiers from 1940-1945.

The fact, of course, is that only a relative handful of Frenchmen took part in the Resistance. As many, 12,000, volunteered for the Waffen SS as joined General Leclerc's fighting French division.

Three French film producers, Andre Harris, Marcel Ophuls, and Alain de Sedouy, who used to work for French TV, have produced a documentary which reveals the true but unromantic view of the German occupation. They had a devil of a time getting their work shown.

The film opened recently in Paris at a 200-seat art house on the Left Bank and drew such crowds that it was also booked into a large Champs-Elysée theater. The film has been purchased for television by six European countries: West Germany, Switzerland, Belgium; Holland, Sweden and Hungary.

Entitled Le Chagrin et la Pitié (The Affliction and the Pity), the film is a composite of testimony and remembrances of German occupation officers, members of the Resistance, former Nazi collaborators, British and French intelligence agents and old film clips.

These clips reveal how enthusiastically the Paris police greeted Adolf Hitler, how actresses Danielle Darrieux and Viviane Romance took off to entertain in Berlin, how Parisians during the occupation continued to enjoy life, stuffing themselves at Maxim's, and attending the horse races at Longchamps.

The all too sad truth about the French Resistance movement is that it was sparked by British intelligence agents parachuted into France. It was these men who helped recruit France's "little people," the salesgirls, the secretaries, the railway workers. Most of all, say the producers, it was the French Communists who provided the bulk of the Resistance against the German occupiers.

Originally produced in 1969, Le Chagrin et la Pitié was not cleared for viewing in France until this year. Under De Gaulle, France would never have seen it.

BRIDE PRICE UP Inflation stops at nothing. In Turkey where tradition requires that men buy their wives, especially in rural areas, the bride price in one year has jumped from $1000 to $1500, a rise of 50 percent.

In Turkey the per capita income is approximately $300 annually. Thus $1500 represents five years of income, a substantial investment in a young woman who has yet to prove herself.

In Central Anatolia, for example, it is customary for the bride's father to ask an additional payment for his wife. This is known as "the right of milk" and frequently costs the prospective buyer an additional $250.

BOOK MARK What's the best-selling paperback in U.S. publishing history? The American Bible Society claims it's Good News for Modern Man, new translation of the New Testament, which recently passed 25 million total circulation mark in U.S. and Canada. Previous record-holder was Dr. Benjamin Spock's Baby and Child Care, with 24.1 million in print.

TAXES What the government gives with one hand, it takes with the other.

Starting in 1972, your income tax is scheduled to go down, but Social Security and payroll taxes are likely to increase.

Standard deductions and exemptions have been increased, but rising Social Security and welfare costs will more than offset the savings.

A family man earning $10,600 yearly, reports The Kiplinger Washington Newsletter, will save $58 in 1972 through larger deductions. Congress, however, will probably raise the Social Security wage base (from $7800 to $10,600) and tax rate (from 5.2 percent to 5.4 percent), resulting in an additional $166 in taxes. Net increase--$108.

Beneficiaries of the tax increase--the poor, the sick, and the elderly.

TELEPHONE CONFESSIONAL One of the most popular phone numbers in Italy is Rome 3131. Each day about 6000 Italians try to reach it in a confessional of sorts run by the state.

Approximately 500 get the number, and of these the five most interesting are chosen to appear on one of Italy's most popular radio programs.

Franco Moccagetta, who monitors the calls, says, "It's the desperate loneliness of men and women which drives them to confess their sins and troubles in public. They phone from a neurotic compulsion to unburden themselves, to share their worries. So many people in Italy are friendless that they want to get on our radio program and cry out for anyone to listen to their troubles."

NEVER TOO OLD Colonel Harlan Sanders, of Kentucky fried chicken fame, made his first million at age 73.

A former gas station operator and restauratcur, Sanders was penniless when he retired at 65.

With his first Social Security check for $105 he embarked on a promotion campaign for his recipe for fried chicken. Eight years later he sold the American and Canadian rights to the recipe for $4 million. "I went from rags to riches," he recalls.

Now 79, Colonel Sanders is a multimillionaire who still tours the United States promoting his fried chicken, still collects his monthly Social Security check.

People over 72 in this country can work and earn as much as they like without having any benefits withheld.

THEY'RE GETTING BIGGER ALL THE TIME AND SOMETIMES BETTER.

BIGGER BABIES The world's population is growing bigger and taller with every generation, and the process begins in the womb.

German gynecologist Heinz Kirchoff reports that the average weight at birth increased by 114.5 grams (4 ounces) in the case of 27,000 Germans born over the last 35 years. At the same time, the number of newborn babies measuring 22-23 inches increased by 12 percent.

What this means for mothers is that more and more babies are too large to navigate the birth canal and must be delivered by Caesarean section.

In addition to improved standards of living and nutrition, geography may also be a factor in the big-baby boom. As travel and mobility increase, more and more young people marry outside their community of birth. And bigger babies, reports German biologist Richard Nold, are born to parents who come from different geographic areas, hence a greater genetic admixture. Biologists call this phenomenon heterosis: when two species with different characteristics are mated, the progeny are frequently larger and stronger than the parents.

THIS IS A TRUE STORY:* All details in our file #3789. Only the name of the Universal graduate has been changed to respect his desire for privacy . . . Ed.

HOW TED VERNON AVERAGES $20,000 WORKING 6 MONTHS A YEAR

NO COLLEGE! NO SELLING! NO EXPERIENCE!

When Ted Vernon* walked to a mailbox that day in his small home town, the things he wanted seemed far beyond his reach. Like lots more money, freedom from his dead-end job, independence and security, a new future.

Chances looked dim. Ted had no college. His only experience was his old job. And he was already past 40.

Yet, when Ted Vernon mailed his envelope, everything he dreamed of suddenly became possible. It was the single most profitable act of his life. Yet all he did was mail a coupon like the one at the bottom of this page.

Free book put Ted on road to big income

The coupon brought Ted the same fascinating Free Book you can have in just a few days. It's an eye opener! It tells the story of a world of opportunity all around you in the booming Accident Investigation field.

It was all new to Ted. He'd hardly even heard of Accident Investigation. Yet Ted Vernon felt he had found his perfect opportunity.

And he had! Soon Ted was forging ahead fast in his new exciting career. His first full year he made $14,768.72. Since then he's averaging $20,000 working about six months a year. The rest of the time he relaxes and takes it easy.

He learned secrets of success in 30 minutes

Ted skimmed through Universal's Free Book in 30 minutes and changed his life. He learned many money-making facts! But the three big points that headed Ted to his success are:

- Accident Investigation is a $19 billion dollar industry booming to new heights every year. It's safe from layoff, recessions and automation —accidents continue no matter what.
- More men are urgently needed to investigate some 22 million accidents each year.
- For more than 20 years, Universal's training-by-mail has been the path to success for thousands of men in this high-pay field.

So there it was—the opportunity of a lifetime. Ted grabbed it—fast. He enrolled for Universal's by-mail training at the mere cost of cigarette money.

It was surprisingly easy. Ted simply studied his brief, interesting lessons at home in his spare time, at his own pace. He didn't risk a single paycheck because he kept right on with his old job until he could start making money quickly in Accident Investigation.

Ted Vernon's income is unusually high and not typical of the industry. He's a busy specialist in storm loss adjusting. But it does show the big potential in this great field even for men with no college and no experience. Read these reports from recent Universal students:

"My income has more than doubled."
—J. T. Woodruff of Louisiana.

"Thanks to you, I was contacted by 17 top companies."
—Donald Doris of Illinois.

"My income averages $1,200 to $2,000 a month."
—Ed Crouch of California

"A raise every three months for the next two years, plus new car and expense account."
—Oscar Singletary of Georgia.

"My salary has increased by 63%."
—Marcel Roy, Canada

A noted physician says:

"You May Suffer From This SECRET SICKNESS That Makes Millions Of People Weak And Weary All Their Lives."

It is called HYPOGLYCEMIA, a dangerous and hidden cause of chronic fatigue and painful illness that medical science hardly recognized until now. And now you may knock out this SECRET SICKNESS with a diet so simple, you'd hardly call it a diet at all!

Does it shock you to be told there is a widespread SECRET SICKNESS?

And that it masquerades as symptoms of liver and kidney trouble, diabetes, chronic indigestion, failing memory and other serious conditions? And that even in its mildest form it can doom you to decades of aches and pains, low-grade health and bitter disability?

Many physicians were even more shocked than you are —when the full extent and full effect of this SECRET SICKNESS were recently discovered!

I have made a special study of the SECRET SICKNESS, which is hypoglycemia, or low blood sugar. What it does to you is this: it robs your bloodstream of natural blood sugar—and natural blood sugar is your body's absolutely indispensable fuel!

Now you can understand the true hidden dreadfulness of hypoglycemia. It does not allow you to properly "fuel the furnace" of your body. So, instead of enjoying a bright blaze of energy, your strength dwindles down to a miserable smoulder.

It's not your fault,

It's not your fault, but you may suffer from headaches, backaches, bone-pain, muscle-pain—and get treatment—but it may be the wrong treatment! All you may need is treatment for low blood sugar, to make many such miseries simply go away!

It's not your fault,

but nobody has explained why your so-called "balanced" diet may be disastrously UN-balanced if you have hypoglycemia. Or why it may be as true for you, as it has been for so many, that a few, inexpensive food supplements will give a special boost to glandular functions that have let you down for years!

It's not your fault—

but, in the words of Dr. Luther Terry, former Surgeon General of the United States: "This year... one million avoidable disabilities will occur because knowledge already at our command is not being applied." So I want this priceless new health knowledge to be known to the public, not merely to a few health researchers. I want ordinary men and women to be able to search out their own symptoms of hypoglycemia (although you should go to your doctor in some cases). And, most of all, I want to give everyone the diet that has proved effective, over and over, in balancing this vital blood sugar —a diet that has already helped many men and women toward better health and strength—that you'll want to follow it even if you don't have hypoglycemia!

I Want To Send You, At NO RISK, The Information You Need About Hypoglycemia And How To Get Rid Of It:

You are going to see, first of all, that you eat hearty helpings of meat, eggs, fish, cream, favorite fruits and vegetables, some desserts, and some absolutely wonderful food combinations that everyone enjoys. In many cases, SIMPLE FOOD AVAILABLE AT ANY SUPERMARKET!

Are you far overweight?

The trouble may be hypoglycemia. Read the story of Shirley M. (page 7 in my book) and you may realize your fatness is an adaptation to hypoglycemia. Your way to a slender, healthier body does not lie in frantic exercise or starvation. The chances are that it lies in GOOD NUTRITION, and its helpful effect toward getting your blood sugar balanced and keeping it that way!

Are you growing old too fast?

The trouble may be hypoglycemia. When you get your approval copy of my book, turn to Chapter Five. Here I combine tested diet principles with my lifelong work in geriatrics. This chapter can be priceless for anyone over 50. It can make your friends and family ask you, "What makes you look so young, lately?" You feel that way too!

Is insomnia your problem?

The trouble may be hypoglycemia. I want to give you an utterly simple SOUND SLEEP SECRET that is so natural, and has such long-term health-building benefits, you'll bless the day you took two minutes to find out! Read, on page 135, the "bed sheet" signal of trouble with blood sugar. Read new findings about SLEEP that can make you feel as though you had been born again!

Must you have sweet snacks or alcohol every little while to keep you going?

The trouble may be hypoglycemia. You may need snacks—and the anti-hypoglycemia diet includes special between-meals snacks and before-bed snacks, so you never have to go hungry. When enjoyable snacks become—not a "secret vice"—but your "best medicine"—you know you have found a new way to eat that is not only a way of health but also a way of good living!

Are you troubled with brain-lag, brain-fag, or even serious mental symptoms?

If you are nervous, or edgy, or suffer lapses of memory, hypoglycemia may be flying a red flag of warning. Read page 21—neurological symptoms. Yes, your brain can be literally crippled, or at least badly hampered, when it does not get its proper nourishment. Give your brain a chance to "fuel up", and you may discover, as so many already have, that you start living a new life almost immediately!

DO YOU TAKE THIS WOMAN TO BE YOUR LAWFUL WEDDED WIFE?

ONLY BECAUSE IT'S A LESSER EVIL THAN NOT BEING ABLE TO PROVE THAT I'VE OUTDONE THE MEDICAL WORLD AGAIN.

DOCTOR DUDGEON DECIDES THAT AN ENHANCED REPUTATION IS EVEN WORTH MATRIMONY.

MEANWHILE, GENERAL SNAPPER BRASSARD VISITS THE WIDOW OF A DEAD FRIEND IN HER NEW YORK APARTMENT.

I GUESS YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE I COULD TALK TO ABOUT IT.

I'M GLAD YOU DID, GAIL. I THOUGHT HIGHLY OF COLONEL GAR BACK DURING THE BAD TIME IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC.

MY LATE HUSBAND OFTEN SPOKE OF HIS EXEC IN HIS LETTERS, SNAPPER — AND YOU WERE THE ONLY ONE WHO DIDN'T TURN AGAINST HIM WHEN, WHEN IT HAPPENED.

DON'T GET ME WRONG, GAL. I COULDN'T CONDONE WHAT HE DID!

I KNOW, BUT MUST IT BE RAKED OVER AGAIN — AND BY OUR OWN DAUGHTER?

SHE'LL MAKE IT COME ALIVE ALL OVER! GALEE IS A GOOD PLAYWRIGHT. THREE HITS IN A ROW OFF BROADWAY.

"SHE'S CAUGHT ON WITH THE AVANT-GARDE, THE SMART INTELLECTUALS. THEY'LL MAKE ANYTHING SHE'S WRITTEN SUCCESSFUL. WHO KNOWS? PERHAPS EVEN A FILM!"

SUPPOSE THEY GAVE HER THE IDEA FOR HER PLAY? THE MILITARY ISN'T VERY POPULAR AT THE MOMENT.

WE USUALLY AREN'T — UNTIL WE'RE NEEDED.

"WELL, SHE HAS A PERFECT EXAMPLE TO DRIVE HOME HER POINT. A JAPANESE HOSPITAL SHIP, PLAINLY MARKED AND SAILING IN CLEAR WEATHER, ALREADY REPORTED BY A PATROL PLANE, YET A PLANE PILOTED BY GALEE'S FATHER BOMBED IT BADLY."

YOU KNOW THERE'S MORE TO THE STORY THAN THAT, GAIL.

LIKE HIS FURY WHEN ONE OF HIS PILOTS DITCHED AT SEA AND WAS MACHINE-GUNNED IN HIS LIFE RAFT. HE WROTE ME ABOUT THAT.

SUPPOSE THAT WAS PART OF IT, TOO... AT ANY RATE, WHEN GAR SPOTTED THAT SHIP HE WAS IN NO CONDITION TO MAKE A RATIONAL JUDGMENT.

HE MADE A HORRIBLE MISTAKE AND AN ATROCITY!

FOR WHICH HE PAID! COURT-MARTIAL! DISGRACE! PRISON!

I KNOW HE REALIZED WHAT HE'D DONE LATER. THAT'S WHAT KILLED HIM IN THAT CELL.

THAT'S THE WHOLE STORY, THE GOOD AND THE BAD — BUT, SNAPPER, THAT IS NOT GALEE'S PLAY!
